The Music Festival
Intro shot - Music up; Lu, Lloyd, and Mrs. Moore are driving in the car. They stop at a bus station. A young man gets into the car.
Lloyd	Hooray! Tom is here. My big brother is home!
Tom Jr.	Hi, Lloyd. How are you?
Lloyd	I am fine! Tom, this is Lu.
Tom Jr.	Nice to meet you, Lu. I am the other Tom in the family. My name is Tom Junior.
Lu	Nice to meet you.
Lloyd	What are we going to do this week? I want to have fun!
Tom Jr.	Lloyd, you are silly. I just arrived! I need to relax! I'll be here for two weeks.
Mrs. Moore	Hello, Tom Jr. Welcome back, son! Did you have a good semester at school?
Tom Jr.	Hi, Mom. School is fine. Where are Dad and Shannon?
Mrs. Moore	They are at work.
Lloyd	Can we make plans for next week, Tom?

Tom Jr.	Okay. Okay. Look at this.	Pulls out flyer for music festival
Lloyd	A music festival!
Tom Jr.	We can go to the music festival next weekend.
Scene changes and Tom Lu and Lloyd are sitting at the table with the brochure from the music festival.
Tom Jr.	There are so many bands at the festival! We can't see all of them. We can only see a few bands. Lloyd, what kind of music do you like?
Lloyd	I like hard rock music. It is great
Tom Jr.	Which bands do you like?
Lloyd	I like the Heavy Rockers and the Music Drivers. I want to see them at the festival.
Tom Jr.	I saw the Heavy Rockers last month. They played a concert at my college. They are a great group. Their concert was really good.
Lloyd	That is so cool!
Tom Jr.	What kind of music do you like, Lu?
Lu	I like....hmmm...pop music.
Tom Jr.	Which bands do you like?
Lu	I like the Square Cubes and some Chinese bands.
Tom Jr.	Pop music is okay. I like rap. I don't like to listen to jazz music. I don't like to listen to classical music. Classical music is boring.
Lloyd	No, it isn't. I like classical music. I really like the Music City Symphony. They play terrific music!
Tom Jr.	Okay, okay. Lu, do you like rap?
Lu	I don't know. I don't like country music.
Tom Jr.	I saw a country group last year. They were the Foot Stompers. They were bad. Their music was terrible!
Scene Mrs. Moore enters the room
Lloyd	Mom, what kind of music do you like?
Mrs. Moore	I like blues music and jazz.
Tom Jr.	Which bands do you like?
Mrs. Moore	My favorite blues band is the Blues Boys. My favorite jazz group is the Tip Top Trio.
Tom Jr.	Sorry, Mom. The Tip Top Trio isn't playing this year.

	We'll find another jazz group.
Lloyd	What kind of music does Dad like?
Mrs. Moore	He likes old rock and roll music. His favorite singer is Henry Rocker.
Lloyd	I don't like to listen to old rock and roll music. It is for old people! I don't want to hear Henry Rocker at the festival. Henry Rocker is boring!
Tom Jr.	Be careful, little brother. Dad doesn't like to hear bad things about Henry Rocker! Oh, look. Henry Rocker and his band aren't playing at the festival this year.
Mrs. Moore	Well, we have many choices. We need to make a decision. Lloyd, you can choose the groups for Saturday. Lu, you can choose the groups for Sunday.
Lloyd	Cool! What kind of music does Shannon like?
Mrs. Moore	I don't know. Shannon likes to change her mind. You'll need to ask her. She will come home at 7:00 p.m.
Tom Jr.	Everyone likes different groups. Lloyd, you should make a list. Then, you can choose the groups. Lu, you should do the same thing.
Lloyd	What kind of list do we need?
Tom, Jr.	You need to write the names of everyone's favorite groups. Then look at the schedule. Find the performance times for the groups. Then, Lloyd will choose the groups for Saturday. Lu will choose the groups for Sunday.
Lloyd	OK. That sounds great. Lu, why don't you talk to Shannon and Dad? Ask Shannon for the names of two groups. Ask Dad for the names of two groups. I will ask Tom and Mom. Then we can plan a schedule.
Lu	Okay . . .	Scene ends with Lu looking a little concerned

GRAMMAR LINKS
what kind of music to you like?	A question that begins with "what kind of" is asking for a descriptor or attribute of the object following "of." The pronoun "what" indicates that the inquiry is regarding a thing, not a person ("who") or a place ("where".) "Do" refers to an action performed or enacted, the main verb, followed by the object to be modified.

country music, classical music, hard rock music	A noun is a person, place or thing. It can be used to modify another person, place or thing, especially in the absence of an appropriate adjective form. Such constructions can be clear and concise, as in "country music." Overuse of nouns to modify other nouns can lead to awkward or confusing constructions, so keep two principles in mind. First, whenever possible, use a possessive or an adjective as a modifier. Second, use only short nouns as modifiers, and use them only in sequences of no more than two or three words.
which	When the word "which" begins a question, it is an interrogative similar to "what kind of". "Which," in this case, is an adjective that modifies a specific thing as distinct from another.
aren't, isn't	The contractions "aren't" and "isn't" are used as an abbreviated form of "are not" and "is not" when the subject of the sentence is a proper noun or the pronouns "he", "she", "it" or "they." The apostrophe is substituted for the "o" in the negation "not" creating the contraction.

festival	A music festival is a concert, spanning one or more days, and featuring a number of acts. Festivals are frequently devoted to only one genre of music. Many cities around the US sponsor annual music festivals. These festivals may be focused on a single genre such as the infamous New Orleans Jazz festival or may include all kinds of music like the Music Midtown festival in Atlanta, Georgia.

Music festivals in the US	Music festivals have enjoyed a long history in the US. A music festival is a concert, spanning one or more days, and featuring a number of acts. Festivals are frequently devoted to only one genre of music. One of the oldest music festivals is the Newport Jazz Festival, in New Port, Rhode Island, which began in 1954. For over 50 years it has delighted millions of jazz fans. This festival is also famous for an incident in 1965. When Bob Dylan plugged in his electric guitar, he was booed off the stage. Perhaps the most famous of all American music festivals was The Woodstock Festival and Concert, usually referred to simply as “Woodstock.” During this three-day event in 1969, nearly half a million people gathered for a three-day concert in the rain and mud to hear music from almost all the top rock bands of the time. The filthy, joyous, peaceful crowd drew attention from media around the world. Today, there are more than 8,000 music festivals every year in North America. In addition to jazz and rock, you can find festivals focusing on blues, folk, world music, heavy metal (“Lollapalooza”), bluegrass, country, reggae, and any other musical genre you could think of. Most are held at outdoor venues, spread over a large area. This allows them to have multiple stages, with several acts playing at once. In addition to the music, a vendor area is usually prominently featured, where people can buy food, souvenir T-shirts, musical instruments, CDs, and a variety of other items.
Famous American music genres	America is the birthplace of many different genres of music, many of which sprang from African American communities. Blues developed in the delta region of the Mississippi river, the largest river in the country. It was simple music, mostly accompanied by acoustic guitars and hand claps. Songs expressing the troubled times of African American life followed the migration of farm workers in the South to the industrial cities of the north. Along the way, jazz developed out of the blues. It has grown to encompass very intricate forms and its hallmark is improvisation – and the more innovative, the better. Jazz is played by small “combos” (trios and quartets) and large bands with many musicians. Blues also spawned rock and roll music, which was popularized by Caucasian performers, the most famous of which was Elvis Presley. The 1950s sound of rock and roll evolved into the rock music of the 1960s and beyond. Folk music developed from simple tunes brought by settlers from their European origins. These songs we adopted and changed by the simple folk of the Appalachian Mountains in the Eastern United States. Folk music evolved into bluegrass and country/western music (or simply “country”). Bluegrass is performed mostly on acoustic instruments. Country/western music is most often sung by musicians wearing cowboy hats and contains references to the woes of the simple life, marital discord and failed romance. Rap and hip-hop music developed in urban centers in the 1990s. This music focuses on the words more than the music but frequently has a driving beat.
