DIFFERENCES IN FY 1998 FORMULATION AND EXECUTION DATA

Narrative Explanation

This volume shows the differences between FY 1998 budget formulation and execution data. Budget formulation data are published in the prior year column of the Program & Financing (P&F) schedule in the President's FY 2000 Budget. FY 1998 year-end budget execution data are reported on the SF 133 Report on Budget Execution.

Formulation and execution data need to be correct because decision-makers use both sets of data to understand the financial status of Federal programs and to make future funding decisions. If they do not agree, this means that at least one set of data has errors -- and possibly both sets of data.

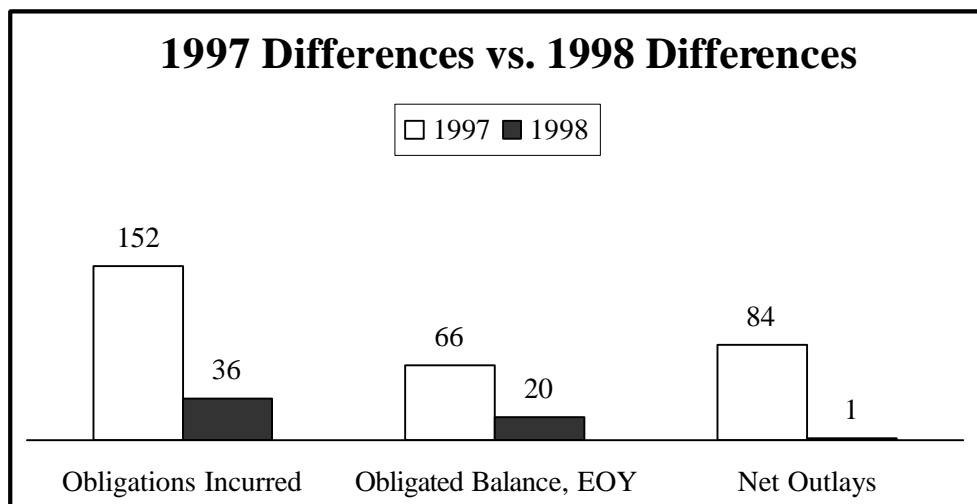

There are a number of reasons why formulation and execution data may differ:

- È Agencies submit these data using different computer systems. Formulation data is submitted via OMB's MAX A-11 data entry system, while execution data is submitted to OMB via the Department of the Treasury Financial Management Service's (FMS) GOALS data entry system.
- È Agencies submit these data at different times. Formulation data is submitted from November through January, while year-end execution data is submitted in November. Flaws that existed in the SF 133 reports may have been corrected by the time the Budget data submissions were completed.
- È Formulation and execution data are often submitted by different organizational units within a given agency. Different staff reporting the SF 133s and the P&F data may not have adequately communicated with one another.
- È Formulation data is collected for more than 1,000 formulation accounts that are published in the Budget, while more than 5,000 accounts are involved in executing the budget. The linkage between the formulation account and the execution account(s) may not have been properly in place.

Because the definitions are the same for key financial measures reported in both places, those measures -- such as new obligations incurred, end-of-year balances, and net outlays -- should agree.

With the exception of identifying those accounts in the Budget that do not have a corresponding SF 133 submission, this analysis does not attempt to determine which reason explains why there is a discrepancy in a given account.

Findings. Government-wide, FY 1998 SF 133 data are under-stated by $36 billion (2%) in new obligations, $20 billion (3%) in balances, and $1 billion (less than 1%) in net outlays when compared to data reported in the Budget. As the chart below indicates, this is a significant improvement compared to 1997 reporting.

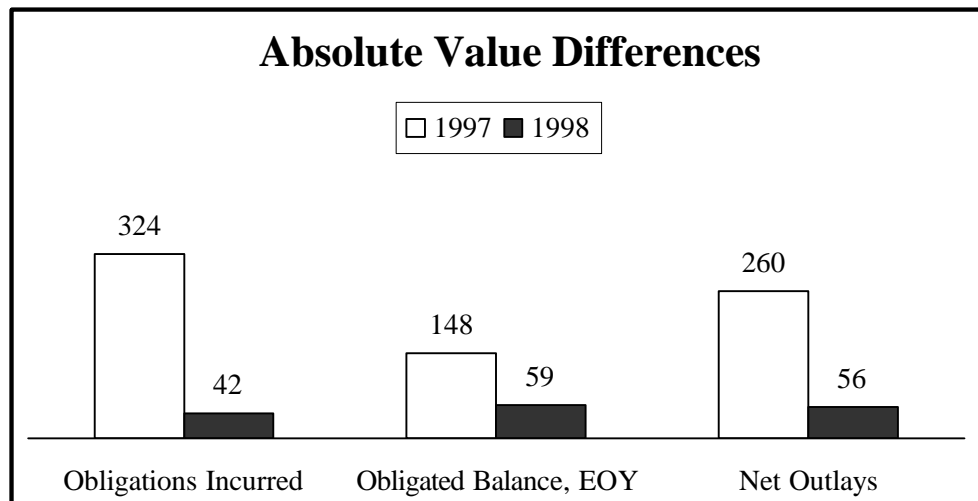

No SF 133 reports were submitted for 5 percent (50 out of 1,080) of the accounts published in the Budget that were expected to have SF 133 submissions. In total, this accounts for $13 billion of the differences in new obligations, $19 billion of the differences in balances, and $7 billion of the differences in net outlays.

For the 1,080 accounts published in the Budget that had SF 133 submissions, the SF 133 data are over-stated by $24 billion in new obligations, by $2 billion in obligated balances and under-stated by $1 billion in net outlays.

Of these accounts:

- 638 Budget accounts tie when comparing new obligations incurred, end-of year balances, and net outlays.
- 241 Budget accounts have discrepancies of $5 million or less in at least one of the three financial measures.
- 201 Budget accounts have discrepancies of more than $5 million in one or more measures.

It is important to note that using Government-wide totals masks the magnitude of differences because on an account-by-account basis the SF 133 submissions can be either greater than or less than the corresponding data in the Budget. The absolute value of Government-wide differences is $42 billion (15%) in new obligations, $59 billion (22%) in balances, and $56 billion (14%) in outlays.

The majority of the differences between formulation and execution data was caused by a handful of accounts that had differences of $1 billion or more, as follows:

- Eighty-three percent of the $42 billion of differences in new obligations was caused by 7 accounts in 5 agencies;
- Eighty-three percent of the $59 billion of differences in obligated balances was caused by 13 accounts in 7 agencies; and
- Ninety percent of the $56 billion of differences in net outlays was caused by 12 accounts in 9 agencies.

Future Directions: Integrating Budget Formulation and Budget Execution.

OMB and FMS, along with significant input from Federal agencies, have made changes to the Standard General Ledger (SGL) and created a reporting system to collect SGL data from agencies.

Beginning with year-end FY 1999 reporting, agencies will use the new reporting system, the Federal Agencies Centralized Trial-Balance System II (FACTS II), to submit a single set of data from their accounting systems to simultaneously fulfill all reporting requirements of the SF 133 and the FMS 2108 Year-End Closing Statement and most requirements of the prior column in the President's Budget. The FMS 2108 is a primary source of data that Treasury publishes in the Treasury Annual Report (TAR) and TAR Appendix.

All agencies are required to comply with the SGL and use FACTS II.

The new data collection system will not, by itself, resolve the differences explained in this volume. However, collecting a single set of data is anticipated to alleviate problems in FY 1999 and later years relating to: accounts not being reported; timing differences; maintaining linkages between the formulation and execution accounts; and, communication within the agencies.

GENERAL NOTES

- È All years in the tables are fiscal years.
- È Because of rounding, the detailed amounts in tables may not add to ~~totals~~ totals.
- È In the tables section, all even numbered pages appear on the top half of the page, while odd numbered pages appear on the lower half of the page.
- È Only accounts with differences of more than $5 million are presented in the tables that show differences between the formulation and execution data.
- È The comparisons exclude accounts presented in the Budget that do not submit budget execution reports, e.g., Legislative Branch, Judicial Branch and Postal Service, as well as Government-Sponsored Enterprises and payments to the District of Columbia (which are not part of the Federal government).
