A Message from USCIS Acting Director Scharfen

I recently enjoyed the privilege to travel abroad and visit with USCIS Refugee Corps officers in Tanzania, Thailand, Turkey, and Jordan.

In Tanzania, Refugee Corps officers interview Burundians who fled their homes in 1972.

In Thailand, I visited a camp where some Burmese refugees have lived for over a decade. In both Turkey and Jordan, I witnessed interviews of especially vulnerable Iraqi refugees.

While recently visiting Jordan, I met the dedicated USCIS Refugee Processing team in Amman. The team's leader, Mr. Michael Burt, informed me of the day-to-day operations involved in efficiently admitting Iraqi refugees to the U.S while simultaneously maintaining our commitment to national security. Additionally, Mr. Burt explained how these Iraqi refugees were victimized for sectarian and religious reasons as well as for any association with the United States. These are just some of the many issues that USCIS officers must consider before formulating a decision that could change the lives of those applying for refugee status.

Later that evening, I was able to converse with Mr. Burt and his team in a less formal setting while having dinner at a local restaurant. The traditional cuisine laid before us was a wonderful combination of hummus, lamb, dolmas, rice, pitas, tabouli, and babaganoush.

During this fabulous meal, we spoke of our families and how USCIS continues the American tradition of "building a nation of immigrants."

How fitting it was to see such a mixture of cultures on the table, traditional Jordanian foods and the bright red Coca Cola can that is an icon of the United States. There we were, a team of American civilian employees, meeting in Jordan, bringing some of our culture with us, but with a common mission to resettle Iraqis back in the US where they'll bring their own experiences to merge with the great melting pot.

Mr. Burt's keen observation reminded me that our American ideals, civic history, and way of life is admired well beyond our nation's borders. Furthermore, our accomplishments as a nation are not solely attributed to one entity or ethnicity, but rather to the families of immigrants, their descendents, and a collective effort on behalf of the many people from different backgrounds that have made this country their home.

The U.S. Refugee Admissions Program is something that all Americans can be proud of and I applaud the members of the Refugee Corps in Amman for their skill, professionalism and dedication to the USCIS mission.

Celebrating Independence Day: At a Natz Near You

President Bush attends Monticello Naturalization

The 46th annual Monticello Independence Day Celebration and Naturalization Ceremony was held at the home of President Thomas Jefferson in Charlottesville, VA on July 4, 2008 with special guest and keynote speaker President George W. Bush.

On his final Fourth of July as president, Bush told an audience assembled in the Monticello lawn that he was honored to be present for the naturalization. "When you raise your hands and take your oath, you will complete an incredible journey. From this day forward, the history of the United States will be part of your heritage."

Bringing attention to the author of the Declaration of Independence, Bush cited Jefferson's words, saying "Throughout our history, the words of the declaration have inspired immigrants around the world to set sail to our shores. ... They made America a melting pot of culture from all across the world. They made diversity a great strength of our democracy."

"Those of you taking the oath of citizenship at this ceremony hail from 30 different nations,

" Bush noted. "You all have one thing in common — and that is a shared love of freedom, and this is the love that makes us all Americans."

"This is a fitting place to celebrate our nation's independence. Thomas Jefferson once said he'd rather celebrate the Fourth of July than his own birthday. To me, it's pretty simple — the Fourth of July weekend is my birthday weekend." Bush turned 62 on July 6.

Before his brief remarks, the president was given a tour of Jefferson's home. The ceremony was hosted by USCIS and the U.S. District Court, Western District of Virginia with presiding Judge James P. Jones. 76 candidates for U.S. citizenship were naturalized.

Philadelphia District Welcomes 3,000 New Americans

3,000 new citizens and hosted the largest ceremonies ever held in the district's history. Among the applicants taking the Oath of Allegiance were 11 members of the armed forces. Keynote speaker at the morning ceremony was Roberto Diaz, a newly naturalized citizen from Chile who is President of the world renowned Curtis Institute of Music. Sara Manzano-Diaz, Deputy Secretary of State for Regulatory Programs in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania addressed the new citizens in the afternoon. Both ceremonies were presided over by the new Philadelphia District Director Karen Fitzgerald.

San Juan Hosts Ceremony at Historic Location

A naturalization ceremony took place on July 2 at the 243-year-old Fort San Cristobal in San Juan, PR. Within the walls of this historic Fort, 250 San Juan area residents became U.S. citizens. The ceremony was presided over by Jose A. Fuste, Chief Judge, United States District Court and USCIS Miami District Director Linda Swacina was the featured speaker. The new citizens hailed from 26 countries.

Vice President Cheney Surprises New Citizens in Boston

On July 4, 26 new United States Citizens were sworn in by U.S. District Court Judge, Richard G. Stearns at the Boston Harbor dock. The U.S.S. Constitution served as a historical backdrop. Following the ceremony, Vice President Richard Cheney and his wife Lynn arrived to greet the new citizens.

After shaking hands, the Vice President and Mrs. Cheney were escorted onboard "Old Ironsides" for a tour of the Harbor and a twenty one gun salute. Also in attendance were USCIS Chief of Staff Tom Paar and Boston District Director Denis C. Riordan.

Major League Baseball Player Joins the Field as New Citizen

On July 9, the Detroit District of USCIS and the U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Michigan were hosted by the Detroit Tigers for a naturalization ceremony that was held immediately preceding a game between the Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians.

Approximately 100 new citizens took the oath of allegiance before United States District Court Judge Gerald E. Rosen on the field, including one of the Detroit Tigers players, second baseman, Placido Polanco. The Detroit Tigers Foundation donated three hundred tickets for the new citizens and their families to attend the game after the ceremony, many of whom were attending their first baseball game.

A Day in the Life

SDAO Ely P. Borjal during Orlando Natz Ceremony on July 2, 2008

Ely. P. Borjal
Supervisory Adjudications Officer
Orlando, FL Field Office

Start date:
May 21, 1996

Previous jobs:
Retired U.S. Navy Chief Warrant Officer

What made you want to work for USCIS?

I met and became friends with an INS employee. He told me about INS and how satisfied he was with the work. I decided that it was important work with a good future, so I applied for a job with the agency when I retired from the Navy.

Describe your career path:

I started out as a GS-5 Inspector in Miami. It became clear to me that my Master's Degree was not going to get me promoted. I needed to apply the same work ethic in this new career that I had applied to get ahead in the Navy.

I volunteered for the jobs that were hard and that no one else wanted, I worked hard and I worked smart and quickly rose through the ranks to become an Adjudicator and Supervisory Adjudications Officer. I tried very hard to make sure we denied benefits when they should be denied, that we granted benefits when they should be granted, and that we did it as quickly and efficiently as possible.

Most rewarding part of your job:

Nothing even comes close to a Naturalization Ceremony. I get to see the staff in action, guiding, directing, coordinating, assisting; all of them working hard to make this very important day the very best it can be for our newest citizens. I also get to see the results of our hard work culminate in the joy and heartfelt gratitude of hundreds of new citizens and their families. I was born in the Philippines and I am an American by choice, which makes the work I do even more rewarding to me.

Second to that is the genuine pleasure I get when I see my people get recognized and rewarded for their hard work. I am motivated by the enormous importance of my job and the quality of my coworkers. I feel very fortunate to be able to do a job I love, and do it among people that I truly like and admire.

Most challenging part of your job:

My biggest challenge is getting my staff here in Orlando to push themselves, day in and day out, to be the very best employee that they can be. I know that I can push them and get them to produce, but if I can get them to push themselves, they will produce even greater results. I think that my staff is among the very best in USCIS, and they are getting better all the time.

What advice would you give to a new USCIS employee?

Put your heart into your work.

Recognize the enormous importance of what we do. Work hard, work smart and be a team player.

Frequently Asked Questions at USCIS

How Do I...Help My Relative Get Refugee or Asylee Status in the United States?

If you are currently in refugee or asylee status, you may be able to help your relative get asylee or refugee status. You can start the process by filing a Form I-730, Refugee/Asylee Relative Petition.

Who are the relatives that I may file for?

If you entered the United States (U.S.) as a refugee or were granted asylum less than two years ago, you may file an I-730 for the following relatives:

- Husband or wife
- Unmarried children under age 21

An I-730 petition must be filed within two years of entering as a refugee or being granted asylum. If it has been longer than two years since you entered as a refugee or were granted asylum, you may want to get legal advice to determine if there are any other immigration benefits available to your relative.

What happens after I file for my relative?

After you file the I-730 petition, we will mail you a receipt so you know we received it for processing. If your petition is incomplete, we may have to reject it, or ask you for more evidence or information, which will delay processing. Please send all required information the first time to avoid delay. If your relative is in the U.S., we may require him or her to appear for an interview with an immigration officer. We will notify you when we make a decision regarding your case.

If we approve your petition, and your relative is inside the U.S., we will send you an approval notice, notifying you that your relative is a refugee or asylee and what steps to take next. If we approve your petition and your relative is outside the U.S., we will send you an approval notice and forward your petition to the U.S. Embassy/Consulate nearest your relative. The U.S. Embassy/Consulate will notify your relative when and where to appear, inviting him or her to apply for a visa to enter the U.S.

After I file, how long will it take before my relative's petition can be approved?

The time it takes to process and approve your relative's petition depends on a number of factors. Once you file, we will send you a receipt. You can check and monitor current processing times on our website.

If I marry after I become a refugee or asylee, can I file an I-730 for my husband or wife?

You cannot file an I-730 for your husband or wife if you marry after you become a refugee or asylee.

However, you may want to get legal advice to determine if there are any other immigration benefits available to your spouse.

Can I help any other relatives?

The law limits eligibility to the relatives listed on this Fact Sheet.

If my relative is granted refugee or asylee status, can he or she file the I-730 for another family member?

If your relative was granted refugee or asylee status based on his/her relationship to you, he/she cannot file a Form I-730 for other family members.

Seattle, WA

82 year old Eduardo Mariano Orbeta was born in Manila, Philippines into family of six children. Moving in Quezon City after World War II, Eduardo worked as a security guard at a bank for 30 years. Married to Andreлина Racasa Obeta for almost 50 years, they raised three children - Edylynn, Ferdinand, and Johnas.

After retiring, Eduardo relocated to the United States when his daughter Edylynn petitioned for his entry. He adjusted his status to Lawful Permanent Resident on October 10, 1998.

Eduardo became a Naturalized U.S. Citizen during a private ceremony conducted by USCIS Seattle Officers on July 2 at the Arden Rehab & Healthcare Center in Shoreline, WA, accompanied by his family, USCIS officers and nursing staff.

Dallas, TX

Mrs. Iram Akram was a lawful permanent resident working in a convenience store in Dallas, Texas. While at work on July 27, 2007, she was robbed at gunpoint and shot in the neck. Today, Iram is a quadriplegic and recuperating at Dallas Parkland Hospital.

Less than one year after this tragic event in her life, Mrs. Akram celebrated becoming an American. On June 20, USCIS Dallas Field Office Supervisory Adjudications Officer Alfonso Gonzalez and Adjudications Officer Jackie Russell made a "house call" to Ms. Aram's bedside and administered the naturalization exam and the Oath of Allegiance fulfilling Ms. Akram's wish to be a citizen of the United States while her husband proudly watched the ceremony.

Houston, TX

Houston Field Office Director Sandra Heathman administered the Oath of Allegiance to medically retired soldier, Javier Negrete. Mr. Negrete served 5 years in the U.S. Army and completed 2 tours of duty in Iraq. When asked how he felt about becoming a U.S. citizen, Mr. Negrete replied, "I'm really, really, really, really nervous." The 24-year-old soldier was in an automobile accident that left him disabled. An interesting note is FOD Heathman administered Javier's international adoption application when he was being adopted by a U.S. citizen couple in 1989.

Los Angeles, CA

When Rember Colocho, originally from El Salvador, graduated from Los Angeles High School, he wanted to give something to the country that gave his family freedom and opportunity. So he joined the U.S. Army National Guard, hoping to "see the world."

The part of the world this father of four wound up seeing was Iraq where, in 2007, he sustained injuries to both his knees while serving as turret gunner on a Humvee. Nonetheless, he stayed on duty for two more months following his injury. "I just didn't want to leave my buddies," he explained.

Returning home in May 2007, he had surgeries on both knees. Colocho is still serving, doing light duty at the armory in Corona, where the family lives. Today Colocho attends the College of Oceanering, where he's training to be an underwater welder. He'll reluctantly leave the Army when his commitment expires; knowing that the physical demands of the job are too much for his damaged knees. "I'd like to be able to run with my three sons when they're older," says Colocho.

Branch: U.S. Army
Rank: Captain
Commendation: 12 citations for valor, including the Bronze Star (2), the Silver Star (3) and Purple Heart (2)
Combat Theatre: Vietnam

Felix Sosa-Camejo came to Miami, FL as a 20 year-old refugee from Fidel Castro’s regime in Cuba. He enlisted in the Army in 1963. Serving for five years, Captain Sosa-Camejo earned 12 citations, including the Bronze Star, three Silver Stars and two Purple Hearts.

On February 13, 1968, in the heat of the Tet Offensive on the streets of Hue, his platoon was pinned down by enemy fire and unable to reach a wounded comrade. With disregard for his safety, Captain Sosa-Camejo ran through the intense enemy fire and pulled the wounded man to safety. After ensuring that the wounded man was receiving medical treatment, Captain Sosa-Camejo returned to the firefight and again exposed himself again to fire by assaulting an entrenched enemy position bunker with grenades. He killed two North Vietnamese soldiers before he was mortally wounded. This action would earn Captain Sosa-Camejo his second Bronze Star and cost him his life.
