

Special Thanks

Special thanks is extended to the many individuals who assisted in the work of this manual. State liaisons from all 50 state departments of education, Washington, D.C, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, worked to ensure that the information provided here is accurate and up-to-date. Representatives from national and state private school associations also reviewed the manuscript for its reliability. Without the help of these dedicated individuals, the manual could not have been successfully completed.

In addition, special thanks is owed to Peter Spurzem, 1993 Summer Intern, and the office support staff; but, most especially to Michelle Doyle, Director of the Office of Private Education, for her leadership in spearheading this project.

Our readers are cautioned that in reviewing any particular legal questions, the underlying state constitutions, laws and relevant court decisions should be consulted. Nothing in this study reflects the position of the U.S. Department of Education as to the meaning or effect of any state legal requirement.

INTRODUCTION

Under the United States Constitution, parents have a fundamental right to direct the education of their children. In 1925 the Supreme Court recognized that "liberty," protected by the Fourteenth Amendment, includes the right to choose a private education. Confronted with an Oregon statute mandating public school attendance, the Supreme Court ruled the statute unconstitutional. Pierce v. Society of Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary, 268 U.S. 510 (1925). In the words of the Court,

The fundamental theory of liberty upon which all governments in this Union repose excludes any general power of the state to standardize its children by forcing them to accept instruction from public teachers only. The child is not the mere creature of the state; those who nurture him and direct his destiny have the right, coupled with the high duty, to recognize and prepare him for additional obligations. 268 U.S. at 535.

Today, a parent's right to choose a private education is reflected in the statutes of all fifty states. The compulsory school attendance laws typically specify private education as an alternative or exception to public school attendance requirements. (See e.g. the sections on Nevada, North Dakota, and Rhode Island laws.)

It is also well-established that states have the power to regulate private schools. Based on the "high responsibility for education of its citizens, [a State] may impose reasonable regulations for the control and duration of basic education." Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205, 213 (1972). See also Board of Ed. of Cent. Sch. Dist. No.1 v. Allen, 392 U.S. 236, 246-247 (1968). The state's interest in an informed and self-sufficient citizenry capable of participating in a democratic society is generally cited to support the regulation of private schools. Yoder at 221; Kentucky State Board v. Rudasill, 589 S.W.2d 877, 883 (1979).

The right to regulate is not without limitations, however. Since 80 percent of America's private schools are religious institutions, any regulation of these schools must conform with the First Amendment's guarantee of the free exercise of religion. A state regulation that interferes with the practice of a legitimate religious belief will stand only if the regulation serves a compelling state interest in the least restrictive means. Yoder at 214-215. This limitation on government action was recently codified in the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993, 42 U.S.C. § 2000bb et seq., enacted by Congress. The principle is generally reflected in most, if not all, of the state codes. For example, special provisions are included for church-related schools, as in the laws of Alabama and Tennessee, or exemptions are provided for schools operated by religious organizations, as in the laws of Wyoming and Nebraska.

A state's excessive regulation may in fact eliminate a parent's right to direct the education of their child. In 1923, the Supreme Court struck down a Nebraska statute that prohibited the teaching of German to elementary school age children. The Court determined that the law unreasonably interfered with the power of parents to control their children's education. Meyer v. State of Nebraska, 262 U.S. 390 (1923). Similarly, in 1927, the Supreme Court held a Hawaiian law unconstitutional that regulated the teachers, curriculum, and textbooks of private language schools and placed control of the schools in public officers. "Enforcement," the Court said, "would deprive parents of fair opportunity to procure for their children instruction which they think important and we cannot say is harmful." Farrington v. T. Tokushige 273 U.S. 284, 298 (1927).

In 1976, the Ohio Supreme Court applied Farrington in a constitutional challenge to the state's "minimum standards" governing nonpublic schools. The state court determined that the standards were "so pervasive and all-encompassing that total compliance with each and every standard by a non-public school would effectively eradicate the distinction between public and non-public education, and thereby deprive these appellants of their traditional interest as parents to direct the upbringing and education of their children." Ohio v. Whisner, 351 N.E.2d 750, 768 (1976). But see, State v. Faith Baptist Church of Louisville, Nebraska 301 N.W.2d 571, 579 (1981) (state requirements did not reach an impermissible level), appeal dismissed for want of a substantial federal question 454 U.S. 803 (1981).

The challenge to state legislators in regulating private schools, then, is to draft legislation that 1) respects the fundamental right of parents to direct the education of their children, 2) protects the state's interest in an informed citizenry but avoids interference with religious beliefs unless compelling interests are at issue, and then only in the least restrictive manner, and 3) avoids comprehensive regulation of private education that would deprive parents of any choice in education.

This study, initiated by the Office of Private Education, culminates extensive hours of research by individuals at both the state and federal level. The task began with a computer search of the state databases for statutes, caselaw, and regulations affecting private schools. The data was reviewed, analyzed and condensed. As much as possible the terms adopted by the states were used to retain the distinctive characteristics of the provisions. Each state summary was submitted to the appropriate state department of education for their consideration and approval. Private school leaders also participated in the review. We have tried to make this document as accurate as possible. Nonetheless, nothing in this study reflects the position of the U.S. Department of Education as to the meaning or effect of any state legal requirement. The underlying state constitution, laws and relevant court decisions should be consulted in reviewing any particular legal questions.

The study revealed five general areas of regulation advanced by state legislatures. They are: recordkeeping and reports, licensing/registration/accreditation, health and safety, curriculum, and public funding.

1. Recordkeeping and Reports: To ensure compliance with compulsory school attendance statutes, states often require private schools to maintain student attendance records. Annual or periodic reports must then be forwarded to state or local education agencies. Nineteen states require the maintenance of student attendance records. Thirty-one states and the Virgin Islands require periodic reports of attendance and/or enrollment to a government agency.

2. Registration/Licensing/Accreditation: For compulsory education purposes, states generally license, register, accredit, or approve private schools. Many states "approve" elementary and secondary private schools for this purpose.¹ The criteria for approval usually includes compliance with basic education requirements and health and safety standards. Nine states have voluntary approval provisions for private schools. Fourteen states have mandatory approval provisions; two of these states provide exemptions or alternatives to approval while three of these states mandate approval only on a limited basis.

No state in the union mandates the accreditation of all private elementary and secondary schools. Some states accept accreditation in lieu of approval (Nebraska, Maine), registration (Kansas), certification (Kentucky), and licensing (Nevada). Fifteen states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, will accredit private schools upon request generally in the same manner as public schools.

3. Health and Safety: The majority of states have statutes requiring certificates of immunization prior to enrollment, allowing for religious or medical exemptions. In addition, safety standards generally include regular fire drills, drug and alcohol free zones and protective eyewear for certain laboratory classes. Several states have enacted statutes that restrict smoking in private school buildings, outlaw disturbances on private school property and assist law enforcement officials in finding missing children. A few states require criminal record checks for teachers or employees directly working with students.

4. Curriculum: Curriculum requirements are generally broad -- referring only to the "subjects usually taught in the public school" or itemizing basic subject areas such as reading, writing, English, arithmetic and history. Many states specify studies in the state and federal constitutions. Texas merely requires "a study of good citizenship". Iowa goes further and requires "a multicultural, nonsexist approach" with a "global perspective [be] incorporated into all levels of the educational program" for state accredited nonpublic schools. Some states additionally require health education in private schools. (E.g. See Illinois.)

5. Public Funding: The public funding of private education is restricted under the United States Constitution. State statutes reflect the numerous decisions handed down by the Supreme Court on the matter. The Establishment Clause of the First Amendment prohibits "government-financed or government-sponsored indoctrination into the beliefs of a particular religious faith." Grand Rapids v. Ball, 473 U.S. 373, 385 (1985). But there is no absolute prohibition against private school children, or even religious institutions, participating in government-sponsored social welfare programs. Bowen v. Kendrick, 487 U.S. 589, 609 (1988). The difficulty of applying these principles has produced a wealth of Supreme Court decisions.

The Supreme Court has upheld a New Jersey statute that made transportation equally available to both public and private school children, Everson v. Board of Education of Ewing Tp. 330 U.S. 1 (1947); upheld a New York statute providing free textbooks on loan to parochial school students, Board of Education of Cent. Sch. Dist. No. 1 v. Allen 392 U.S. 236 (1968); invalidated Rhode Island and Pennsylvania provisions that paid salary supplements to nonpublic school teachers of secular subjects, ¹It should be noted that eleven states do not engage in any of these processes.

Lemon v. Kurtzman, 403 U.S. 602 (1971); struck down a New York statute that reimbursed religious schools for teacher-prepared tests, Levitt v. Committee for Public Education, 413 U.S. 472 (1973); upheld an Ohio statute permitting diagnostic and therapeutic services to nonpublic school students but struck down the provision of instructional materials and field trip transportation left within the control of the nonpublic school, Wolman v. Walter, 433 U.S. 229 (1977); upheld a New York statute reimbursing nonpublic schools for state mandated recordkeeping and testing, Committee for Public Education & Religious Liberty v. Regan, 444 U.S. 646 (1980); upheld a Minnesota statute providing an income tax deduction for tuition, textbooks, and transportation that benefitted parents of children attending public, sectarian and nonsectarian schools, Mueller v. Allen, 463 U.S. 388 (1983); prohibited New York's placement of remedial reading public school teachers in parochial schools under a federal program (Chapter I), Aguilar v. Felton, 473 U.S. 402 (1985); and, permitted an Arizona school district under a federal program (IDEA) to place a publicly funded sign language interpreter in a sectarian high school to assist a disabled student, Zobrest v. Catalina Foothills School District, ___ U.S. ___, 113 S.Ct. 2462 (1993). (For an overview of the Court's early decisions, see School Dist. of City of Grand Rapids v. Ball, 473 U.S. 373, 392-395 (1985).)

For the last 20 years, the Supreme Court has generally been guided by the landmark decision, Lemon v. Kurtzman, 403 U.S. 602 (1971), when deciding the validity of public funding statutes. Lemon sets out the following three-part test to determine when public funding is permissible:

1. the funding statute must have a secular legislative purpose;
2. its principal or primary effect must be one that neither advances nor inhibits religion; and
3. the statute must not foster an excessive entanglement with religion. Lemon at 613.

The state statutes incorporate these Supreme Court decisions on the types of permissible public aid. Twenty-seven states and the Virgin Islands have provisions permitting public funding of transportation; Idaho law dictates that the costs must be recovered. Seventeen states have the power or duty to loan free textbooks to private school students. Some states provide significant assistance for health needs such as immunization, vision and hearing services, and diagnostic testing. (See e.g. the laws of Michigan, New Hampshire, and New Jersey.)

While the parameters of state regulation of private schools is to a large extent shaped by our federal constitution, it should also be noted that federal law on occasion directly influences the operations of private schools. For example, federal law prohibits discrimination in the admission policies of nonsectarian schools, 42 U.S.C. § 1981; Runyon v. McCrary, 427 U.S. 160 (1976). And the relationship between state governments and private schools can be forged through federal grant statutes. For example, regulations implementing several federal funding grants direct that states and local educational agencies provide private school children with a genuine opportunity to participate, ensuring consultation with the private schools and comparable benefits for the private school students. 34 C.F.R. 76.650 et seq. But the actual regulation of private schools remains the prerogative of the state governments.

The study illustrates our country's remarkable ability under federalism to approach the same issue in a variety of ways. Not one of the states regulates private schools in the same way as another. Rather, the statutes reflect the unique circumstances and concerns faced by the local communities. It has been the goal of the Office of Private Education to provide a concise summary of the relevant state laws in an accessible format. It is our hope that the information gathered here will serve the needs of state and federal legislators, public and private school administrators and the general public.

STATE SUMMARIES

ALABAMA

Alabama distinguishes between "private schools" and "church schools" in some but not all of its governing provisions. Church schools are exempt from certain reporting requirements, curriculum mandates and deliver standards, but can waive the exemptions.

Registration/Licensing/Accreditation: All private schools, except church schools, must register annually on or before October 10 with the Alabama Department of Education and report on the number of students and instructors, enrollment, attendance, course of study, length of term, cost of tuition, funds, value of property, and the general condition of the school. Ala. Code § 16-1-11. The state superintendent of education furnishes the necessary forms for reporting. Ala. Code § 16-4-16.

"Church schools" are defined as schools offering "instruction in grades K-12, or any combination thereof including the kindergarten, elementary, or secondary level and are operated as a ministry of a local church, group of churches, denomination, and/or association of churches on a nonprofit basis which do not receive any state or federal funding." Ala. Code 16-28-1.

Licensing by the Alabama Department of Education is required annually prior to the operation of a private school. Ala. Code § 16-46-5. However, most private elementary and secondary schools would qualify for exemptions, as schools operated by "a parochial, denominational, or religious organization, and/or as a ministry of a local church or group of churches on a nonprofit basis" or schools operated by "a community, educational organization, or group of parents, organized as a nonprofit educational corporation with the expectation of establishing a more favorable environment for those in attendance." Ala. Code § 16-46-3. Exempted private schools may voluntarily request to be licensed without surety. Ala. Code § 16-46-3(d). Licensing is based on specific criteria, such as, the quality and content of curriculum, adequate space, equipment, instructional materials and personnel, recordkeeping, and financial stability. Ala. Code § 16-46-5(i)(1)-(7). Ala. Admin. Code r. 290-030-050.

By definition, a private school, but not a church school, holds a certificate issued by the state superintendent of education showing that the school conforms to the following requirements:

- (1) instruction is given by persons holding certificates issued by the state superintendent of education;
- (2) instruction is given in the several branches of study required to be taught in the public schools;
- (3) the English language is used in giving instruction; 4) a register of attendance is kept indicating every absence of each child from school for a half day or more. Ala. Code § 16-28-1(1).

Recordkeeping/Reports: The principal teacher of private and church schools must keep an attendance register showing the enrollment of the school and every absence of each enrolled child from school for a half day or more. Ala. Code § 16-28-8. The registry is admissible as evidence in compulsory attendance hearings. Ala. Code of Ala. 1975 § 16-28-23.

Private schools, i.e. a profit or nonprofit entity as opposed to publicly owned or operated schools, which cease operations shall place student academic attendance and financial aid records in the following repository: (1) if merged, consolidated, or change of ownership, in the continuing school; (2) if part of a system, organization, franchise, or church ministry, in the administrative office; (3) if without system support, with the local superintendent of the public county or city. Code of Ala. 1975 § 16-46-3(e).

At the end of the fifth day from the opening of the public school, the principal teacher of each private school, but not church school, must report to the local superintendent the names and addresses of all children age 7-16 enrolled; and thereafter, at least weekly the names of students absent without excuse. Code of Ala. 1975 § 16-28-7.

At church schools, enrollment and attendance must be reported to the local public school superintendent by the parent or guardian on a form provided by the superintendent. The administrator of the church school countersigns the enrollment form. If a child leaves the church school, the church school will notify the local public school superintendent, by prior consent of the parent or guardian. Ala. Code § 16-28-7.

Length of School Year/Day: Under the compulsory attendance law, children attending private schools, but not church schools, are required to attend "the entire length of the school term." Ala. Code § 16-28-3.

Instruction in English: Private schools, but not church schools, are required to use the English language in giving instruction. Ala. Code § 16-28-1(1).

Teacher Certification: Instruction at private schools, but not church schools, must be provided by persons holding certificates issued by the state superintendent of education. Ala. Code § 16-28-1(1)a, (2).

Curriculum: Private schools, but not church schools, are required to offer instruction in "the several branches of study required to be taught in the public schools." Ala. Code § 16-28-1(1).

Private schools, but not church schools, must provide a physical education program which conforms to the program outlined by the Alabama Department of Education. Ala. Code § 16-40-1.

Health: A certificate of immunization or testing (as designated by the state health officer) is required prior to admittance to a private school. Ala. Code § 16-30-4.

No teacher or school administrator employed by a nonpublic school is excluded from participating in in-service teacher education institutes or curriculum development programs for drug abuse prevention provided under Chapter 41, Drug Abuse Education. Ala. Code § 16-41-5.

Safety: Alabama requires all private schools to conduct monthly fire drills and to have all doors and exits open out, and that all such doors and exits be unlocked during school hours. Ala. Code § 36-19-10.

Private school employers must check the sex crime records of job applicants or volunteers for positions having supervisory or disciplinary power over minors under 18 years of age. The Department of Public Safety will furnish the information to the requesting employer and may charge the employer a fee for the actual cost. Ala. Code § 26-20-1.

Private schools must fully meet the building code requirements unless the building was used for that purpose prior to the effective date of the code. Ala. Code § 41-9-163(c).

An additional penalty of 5 years incarceration, with no provision for probation, is imposed for the unlawful sale of a controlled substance on the campus of a private school or within a three-mile radius of the campus. Ala. Code § 13a-12-250.

Transportation: A license tax or registration fee of $13.00 is imposed on motor buses owned by a church or a private school that are used only for the purposes of the institution. Ala. Code § 40-12-246 (d).

Public Aid for Private Schools/Private School Students: No money raised for the support of the public schools can be appropriated to or used for the support of any sectarian or denomination school. Alabama Constitution, Article 14, Section 263.

The Alabama state legislature is prohibited from taxing school property, real or personal. Alabama Constitution, Article 4, Section 91.

No teacher or school administrator employed by a nonpublic school is excluded from participating in in-service teacher education institutes or curriculum development programs for drug abuse prevention provided under Chapter 41, Drug Abuse Education. Ala. Code § 16-41-5.

ALASKA

Private schools that elect to comply with Alaska Stat. §§ 14.45.100-103 are considered "exempt schools", i.e. exempt from other state education requirements. However, health and safety provisions apply equally to "exempt" and "non-exempt" private schools. Alaska Stat. § 14.45.100.

Registration/Licensing/Accreditation: The Alaskan Department of Education is not authorized to require the licensing of religious or other private schools. Alaska Stat. § 14.07.020(10).

Under Alaskan law, the Department of Education has a duty to accredit private schools that request accreditation and that meet accreditation standards prescribed by regulation by the Department. Alaska Stat. § 14.07.020(10). (In practice, Alaska does not accredit private schools and has not adopted accreditation regulations, but has an informal agreement with the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges to provide accreditation to public and private schools that request accreditation.)

Recordkeeping/Reports: An "exempt" school must maintain monthly attendance records for each student enrolled. Alaska Stat. § 14.45.110(b). "Exempt" schools must maintain permanent student records reflecting immunizations, physical examinations, standardized testing, academic achievement, and courses taken. The chief administrative officer must certify that the records are being maintained. Alaska Stat. § 14.45.130.

"Non-exempt" private schools must make regular monthly attendance reports and annual reports to the Commissioner of Education in the same manner as teachers and superintendents in the public schools. Alaska Stat. § 14.45.030. "Exempt" schools must make an annual report to the Commissioner of Education of the number of students in each grade and the school calendar. Alaska Stat. § 14.45.110(b).

Parents/guardians of children attending "exempt" schools must file an annual notice of enrollment with the local public school superintendent. The form must be signed by the parent/guardian and chief administrative officer of the exempt school and then submitted to the local public school superintendent by the parent. If the child withdraws, the "exempt" school must notify the public school superintendent within a reasonable time. Alaska Stat. § 14.45.110(a)

Length of School Year/Day: "Exempt" schools must operate on a regular schedule excluding reasonable holidays and vacations during at least 180 days of the year. Alaska Stat. § 14.45.110(b).

Non-exempt private schools must comply with the laws and regulations relating to education. Alaska Stat. § 14.45.030. To satisfy the state compulsory attendance requirement, students at non-exempt private schools must receive an academic education comparable to the local public schools. Alaska Stat.

§ 14.30.010(b)(1). A public school term must include not less than 180 days, unless approved by the Commissioner. Alaska Stat. § 14.03.030.

Teacher Certification: "Non-exempt" private schools must employ teachers certificated according to Alaska Stat. § 14.20.020. Alaska Stat. § 14.30.010(b)(1)(A).

Curriculum: Private education satisfies the Alaskan compulsory school attendance law if the academic education provided is comparable to that offered by the public schools in the area. Alaska Stat. § 14.30.010(b)(1).

"Exempt" schools must administer a nationally standardized test selected by the chief administrative officer of the school to all students enrolled in grades four, six, and eight at least once each school year. The test must measure achievement in English grammar, reading, spelling and mathematics. The school must maintain records of the results and make them available to parents/guardians. Composite test results for the school must be made available annually to the Alaskan Department of Education. These results are not public information unless the public school is also required to release identical information. Alaskan Stat. § 14.45.120

Safety: The Alaskan Department of Education has a duty to prescribe by regulation standards to assure healthful and safe conditions in the private schools. Standards for private schools may not be more stringent than those for public schools. Alaskan Stat. § 14.07.020(7)(10).

Private schools must instruct pupils by means of drills to safely exit school buildings in an emergency. Drills must be conducted once each month during the school term, weather permitting. Alaska Stat. § 14.03.140.

School teachers and school administrative staff members of private schools who in the performance of their occupational duties have reasonable cause to suspect that a child has suffered harm as a result of child abuse or neglect must immediately report the harm to the Alaska Department of Education. A person required to report child abuse or neglect to the Department is not relieved of the obligation by notifying his supervisor of the harm. If the alleged abuse occurred at a private school and was caused by a school employee, the law enforcement agency will notify the chief administrator of the school. In the event the allegation of abuse is against the chief administrator or his immediate family, the agency will notify the Commissioner of Education. The notification must set out the factual determination of the law enforcement agency. Alaska Stat. § 47.17.020(a)(2), (f), (g).

Transportation: The Alaskan Department of Education provides transportation for nonpublic school students who travel comparable distances and the same routes as public school students. Alaska Stat. § 14.09.020

Public Aid for Private Schools/Private School Students: Private schools and religious schools by definition do not receive direct state or federal funding. Alaska Stat. § 14.45.200.

The Alaska Constitution provides "No money shall be paid from public funds for the direct benefit of any religious or other private educational institution." Alaska Constitution, Education, and Welfare, Art. VII, Sec.1.

The Alaska Constitution exempts property used exclusively for nonprofit religious, charitable, or educational purposes from taxation. Alaska Constitution, Finance and Taxation Art.IX, Sec. 1.

Miscellaneous: Private schools may apply for membership in the Alaska School Activities Association, an association established to promote and govern interscholastic activities. Alaska Admin. Code tit. 4, § 06.115.

Registration/Licensing/Accreditation: An independent school is defined by statute as "a school other than a public school, which provides a program of elementary or secondary education, or both." Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 11(8). Private schools may apply for approval by the State Board of Education or file an enrollment notice as a recognized independent school.

The State Board of Education approves independent schools if the school provides a minimum course of study and substantially complies with the Board's rules for approved independent schools. The Board's rules require at a minimum: 1) adequate resources to meet the school's objectives, including financial capacity; 2) faculty qualified by training and experience in the areas assigned; 3) physical facilities and special services in accordance with state and federal law. Approval may be granted without state board evaluation if the school is accredited by a private, state or regional agency recognized by the State Board. Approval may be revoked or suspended, after opportunity for a hearing, for failure to comply with state requirements. Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 166(b).

The State Board of Education is charged with adopting rules for approved independent schools relating to instruction, faculty, curriculum, libraries, educational materials and physical facilities, which are necessary to provide an acceptable educational opportunity for pupils in those schools. Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 164(14).

A recognized independent school may operate in Vermont upon filing an enrollment notice with the State Commissioner of Education. The notice must include: 1) a statement that the school will be in session an amount of time substantially equivalent to public schools; 2) a detailed description of the minimum course of study for each grade level and how the annual assessment will be performed; and 3) assurances that the school maintains attendance records, maintains annual assessments of each pupil's progress that is reported to parents/guardians, provides the minimum course of study as provided by § 906 (See Curriculum), employs teachers and materials sufficient to carry out the educational program, and meets applicable state and federal laws concerning physical facilities and health and safety matters. An enrollment notice must be renewed annually unless the school has been recognized or accredited by a state approved organization for the purpose of recognizing and accrediting purposes. If a school is unable to comply with any requirement due to a deep religious conviction shared by an organized group, the commissioner may waive the requirement if the educational purposes are being met. Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 166(c).

If the Commissioner has information that creates significant doubt that the school is able to meet the recognition requirements, or once in operation, is meeting the requirements, he may call a hearing for a determination on the matter. If a school fails to establish that it can meet or has met the requirements, the commissioner will require specific action to come into compliance or the students must attend another school, or the school may be closed for the remainder of the year. Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 166(c).

Independent schools which offer kindergarten, but no other graded education, will be approved by the state if the school substantially complies with the board's rules for approved independent kindergartens. Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 166(b)(1).

Recordkeeping/Reports: An approved independent school must provide parents/guardians a statement of its status under Vermont's approval requirements and a copy of Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 166 prior to accepting any tuition payments. Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 166(b)(3).

A recognized independent school must provide parents/guardians a copy of its currently filed statement of objectives and a copy of Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 166 upon enrollment or September 1, whichever comes later. Failure to do so may create a permissible inference of false advertising.

Recognized independent schools and approved independent schools must provide the names and addresses of enrolled pupils to the Commissioner on October 1 of each year. The school must also notify the commissioner of the names and addresses of any pupils withdrawing from the school within 7 days of their withdrawal. Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 16, § 166(b)(4), (c)(6).
