OVERVIEW

USAID STRENGTHENS PUBLIC-PRIVATE PARTNERSHIPS WITH PRIVATE VOLUNTARY AND NONGOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS WORLDWIDE

INTRODUCTION

The registration of U.S. Private Voluntary Organizations (PVOs) originated in 1939, on the eve of WWII, as a means to identify the nongovernmental, private and voluntary organizations working in Europe. Since that time, U.S. and international PVOs have achieved a remarkable record of service in humanitarian relief and development, working both independently and in partnership with the U.S. Government and the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). Today, 68 years later, USAID's PVO and nongovernmental organization (NGO) partners are vital to its development efforts and to alleviate human suffering and poverty through initiatives that help countries address pandemic diseases, overcome natural and man-made disasters, and engage in democratic reform.

This publication, "The Voluntary Foreign Aid Programs: Report of Voluntary Agencies Engaged in Overseas Relief and Development" (VolAg Report), presents an overview of the work of U.S. and international PVOs registered with USAID to become eligible for grants and cooperative agreements. Information about registration is on the USAID Web site at www.usaid.gov | Keyword: PVO Registration. This VolAg Report includes 496 U.S. PVOs, 7 U.S. Cooperative Development Organizations (CDOs), and 59 international PVOs. The "VolAg Report" provides a snapshot of these organizations, summarizing each PVO's activities and key financial information. The 2007 "VolAg Report" is available on the Web at www.usaid.gov | Keyword: VOLAG.

THE VOLUNTARY, AUTONOMOUS NATURE OF PVOs

USAID values PVOs as partners in our efforts to carry out long-term, sustainable development and humanitarian relief activities. USAID recognizes the independent mission of PVOs, as well as the public-private partnership, when implementing USAID's programs. By joining forces, USAID and the PVO community can accomplish more together than either can accomplish alone.

One of the challenges inherent in such partnerships is the need to achieve a balance of collaboration and independence between public and private organizations. A healthy degree of separation is essential to preserve the independent mission of PVOs as well as their unique competencies. At the same time, cooperation and some interdependence are the hallmarks of a successful USAID-PVO partnership. In keeping with USAID's emphasis on public-private partnerships, nongovernmental recipients of USAID assistance are often encouraged to contribute resources secured voluntarily through the private sector to supplement USAID-funded activities.

VOLUNTARY AGENCIES: A TRADITION OF SUPPORT FOR HUMANITARIAN AND DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE

The involvement of U.S. PVOs in emergency relief and humanitarian assistance began decades ago in response to the social consequences of armed conflict and natural disasters. As a result of their ability to respond quickly and effectively, PVOs emerged as leaders in disaster response. Gradually, their efforts broadened from emergency relief and food distribution activities to longer-term sustainable development programs designed to address the root causes of poverty and to mitigate disasters. This transition from short-term relief efforts to long-term development programs, often with USAID's capacity-building investments to PVOs, has further strengthened the cooperative ties that have grown between USAID and the PVO community since the 1970s. Today, many PVOs are engaged in both short-term relief and long-term development programs. The effort to bridge the gaps between emergency relief, humanitarian aid, and development assistance is increasingly central to USAID's program goals. Many PVOs possess the skills, experience, accountability, and innovative methodologies needed to address these priorities.

USAID recognizes the significant and independent role that PVOs play in providing humanitarian and development assistance in rebuilding, transforming, and sustaining development in the countries where USAID operates. Although the PVOs registered with USAID vary markedly in size, scope, and capability, they share a strong commitment to improving the quality of life of people in need. In their work overseas, registered PVOs demonstrate traditional American values of pluralism, voluntary action, and concern for others. In addition, PVOs can foster sustainable self-help efforts at the community level by supporting programs that directly increase the organizational and technical capability of local organizations that empower and heighten the participation of the most marginalized citizens in the social and economic decisions that affect their lives.

A SHARED BASIS FOR COLLABORATION

The PVO community and USAID pursue shared priorities aimed at achieving effective, results-based programs. The independent work of PVOs contributes to the success of USAID's objectives in economic growth, agriculture, trade, natural resource management, education, health and population, and democracy and governance. USAID works in more than 100 countries and in close partnership with more than 300 PVOs. These working relationships, established through contracts, grants, and cooperative agreements, provide technical assistance and local capacity building, training and scholarships, food aid, disaster relief, infrastructure construction, small-enterprise loans, budget support, enterprise funds, and credit guarantees to developing countries around the world.

STRENGTHENING LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS

USAID emphasizes programs that build strong, free-market economies; stimulate agricultural development; support democratic participation and transparent effective governance systems; encourage broad-based public education; and promote health and well-being. USAID is working to strengthen partnerships between and among PVOs and their local NGO partners. USAID's partnerships with PVOs and local NGOs help to ensure active local civic participation in the development and governance process, which is essential to the work of identifying needs and effective responses, and local empowerment.

USAID's goal is to create a large, diverse community of local NGO members of civil society capable of promoting sustainable development. USAID recognizes that each developing country's needs are different and that the nature and roles of local NGOs will differ significantly from country to country. Even so, a broad vibrant civil society worldwide is important for articulating collective interests and ensuring citizen participation in the development process.

LEVERAGING PRIVATE RESOURCES FOR DEVELOPMENT

By enlisting the PVO community's expertise and program delivery capacities, USAID is better able to direct humanitarian relief and development assistance to areas of need. Additionally, since registration recognizes organizational standards, and financial and programmatic capabilities, USAID is able to ensure its funds are used effectively. Moreover, as the data presented in this report indicate, the privately generated resources that PVOs devote to international development activities far exceed the resources they receive from USAID or the wider U.S. Government.

During fiscal year 2005, U.S. PVOs received $18.6 billion in support from U.S. citizens and private sources, which is nearly eight times the $2.4 billion that USAID channeled to PVOs. Furthermore, support from private sources increased by $3.7 billion during the year, climbing more than 24 percent from the 2004 level. Other U.S. Government agencies and international organizations provided an additional $2.4 billion, bringing the total support and revenue for registered U.S. PVOs to $23 billion.

U.S. PVOs received $18.6 billion in support from U.S. citizens and private sources, which is nearly eight times the $2.4 billion that USAID channeled to PVOs.

To further leverage its ability to deliver humanitarian and development assistance, USAID works with NGOs in foreign countries. International PVOs and local NGOs help USAID support local capacities to address local needs and bring additional resources to its efforts to facilitate sustainable development. USAID provided more than $93 million to registered international PVOs in 2005, supplementing their $1.6 billion in direct spending on international relief and development activities.

DOING BUSINESS WITH USAID

To implement its worldwide relief and development activities, USAID utilizes various acquisition and assistance instruments, including contracts, grants, cooperative agreements, and purchase orders. USAID negotiates and initiates these instruments to obtain the commodities and technical assistance the Agency requires to achieve its objectives. Organizations seeking to do business with USAID will find useful information at the following Web sites:

The "VolAg Report" is the culmination of one year's effort by the Office of Private Voluntary Cooperation-American Schools and Hospitals Abroad (PVC-ASHA) staff to collect, validate, and disseminate a clear, factual report about the PVO community which helps inform Agency staff about the nature and financial stability of PVOs. We hope you find it a useful reference.

FAX: (860) 947-3350
EMAIL: questions@aidtoartisans.org
WEB: www.aidtoartisans.org

Provides practical, market-oriented support to artisans worldwide. ATA works in partnership to strengthen artisans' business skills, helping them create sustainable livelihoods through the sale of their crafts and, thereby, preserving their rich traditions and cultures. For 30 years,

ATA has been active in 110 countries, building sustainable artisan enterprises through its empowering programs in business- and production-skills training, design and product development, and marketing. ATA seeks, first, to attract a broader interest in crafts as a driver of economic growth and, second, to establish a larger share of local, regional, and global markets for artisan goods.

AIRLINE AMBASSADORS INTERNATIONAL, INC. AAI

Mrs. Nancy Rivard, President
418 California Avenue
P.O. Box 459
Moss Beach, CA 94038
TEL: (650) 728-7844
FAX: (650) 728-7855
EMAIL: airlineamb@aol.com
WEB: www.airlineamb.org

Leverages resources from the airline industry through a network of managers, pilots, transport personnel, and flight attendants. AAI is a 6,000-member organization originally established by professionals in the airline industry. The organization's membership has now expanded to include professionals from other industries, such as medicine, education, shipping, construction and engineering, and the U.S. military. AAI partners include fixed-base operators, local nongovernmental organizations, international governments, the United Nations, and U.S. agencies. AAI specializes in disaster relief, health (including HIV/AIDS prevention), education, child welfare, poverty and hunger, and community development. AAI has permanent missions in 24 countries, some in zones of armed conflict.

ALBANIAN ALPS INSTITUTE

AAI

Dr. Steve Cook, President

1620 Northwest 23rd Street
Corvallis, OR 97330
TEL: (541) 753-3066
EMAIL: info@albanianalps.org
WEB: www.albanianalps.org

Supports educational opportunities for 1,000 students in the Shkrel School District of northern Albania. AAI funds English-language teachers, art teachers, and field trips and provides school supplies, laboratory equipment, and lines of credit for school directors at a book and school supply store. The organization has established lending libraries in 11 schools where none existed and continues to add books—2,500 to date. AAI also focuses on upgrading the district's schools, which typically do not have electricity or running water. In 2006, the organization is installing electricity and a toilet for 90 students in Vrithe and repairing toilets in Boga. For the 2006-07 school year, AAI is giving $500 annual scholarships to 10 high school students. There is no high school in the district, so the scholarships will assist with room, board, clothes, and school supplies, allowing them to attend high school in another district.

Assists refugees, the economically challenged, and the underserved to become self-sufficient, productive members of their communities. AAA works to promote human rights protection, humanitarian assistance access, health services, and environmental conservation. AAA's Uganda field offices provide humanitarian assistance to communities affected by years of fighting between government and rebel military groups. Children are often the victims of abduction and forced service in rebel military groups. AAA provides play therapy for these children as a way of helping them deal with the traumatic experiences they have endured. Other programs include HIV/AIDS prevention, adult literacy, and programs designed to develop sustainable local economic activity.

Provides humanitarian, economic, and educational aid to impoverished people in Honduras using the "teach a person to fish" model. Since AFH is an all-volunteer organization, it expends no funds on overhead for staff or offices: all contributions go directly for the purpose of assisting poverty-stricken families. The organization's initial goal was to provide educational scholarships and other assistance as well as provide seed money to start small businesses, including ventures to create and sell art. That initial mission has expanded to providing donated computers, clothing, and household goods and helping families build and own their own homes. AFH also provides assistance to Peace Corps projects in Honduras. AFH is a nonprofit humanitarian organization headquartered in Arlington, Virginia.

Serves as a catalyst for social and economic development in regions plagued by terrorism and conflict. AAI created and coordinates the USAID-funded Development for Peace in Sulu (DPIS) project in the Muslim Mindanao region of the Philippines to build sustainable peace in one of the most impoverished and conflict-ridden areas of Southeast Asia. This project has become a model for working with local leaders in Muslim communities that are plagued by severe poverty, conflict, and the threat of terrorist activities. Components of the DPIS program include renovating classrooms and providing textbooks, integrating education and livelihood, and providing medical supplies. The program also provides a Community Service College Scholarship program and an Adopt-a-Classroom program, which gives U.S. students an opportunity to build friendships with Asian Muslim children.

Connects resources from the business world, service clubs, hospital groups, corporations, foundations, churches, and individuals with people in need throughout the world. AI's two primary areas of focus are children's relief projects and medical projects in emerging countries. AI builds the capacity of hospitals in developing countries so they can serve the people in their area more effectively. AI also provides medical equipment and training for physicians and nurses, which significantly increases the amount and quality of care that a hospital is able to give. In addition, AI works to build the capacity of local governments, community members, and nongovernmental organizations to meet the primary and developmental needs of orphaned and vulnerable children in their communities.

Teaches the world's poorest people to grow vegetables during the dry season. A person who can obtain 10 gallons of water a day for a kitchen garden can grow enough vegetables for a small family using drip irrigation—even when there is no rain. CLWF works in partnership with more than 2,000 organizations in more than 150 countries to demonstrate "Bucket Kit" drip irrigation. To reduce costs, the organization provides bulk drip-irrigation materials in container lots, so kits can be assembled in user countries. Larger systems are used in schools, hospitals, and orphanages and on small farms.

Improves child nutrition and health in Leogane, Haiti. Malnutrition causes 60 percent of child deaths in Haiti and permanently impairs 42 percent of surviving children. CNP has been active in all areas of child health since 2001. CNP's community-based nutrition program is based on the Positive Deviance/Hearth model. Trained community monitors teach caregivers to use available resources to rehabilitate their malnourished children. Caregivers bring their malnourished children to the homes of volunteer mothers for 2 weeks to learn from the monitors and practice improved meal preparation, feeding, and health care behaviors. CNP staff members follow the progress of children who participate in the program for 6 months, and 80 percent of these children are rehabilitated. CNP works with Hôpital Sainte Croix in Leogane to provide care for severely malnourished children and to support immunization and vitamin supplementation services.

Enables the poor to free themselves from poverty. Founded in 1985, Enterprise Development International is a Christian organization that supplies technical assistance, training, and funding to indigenous partner agencies. These agencies provide training and small-business loans to qualifying nationals for microenterprise start-up and expansion. Loan capital is repaid and then reloaned within the community, creating opportunities for others to establish or grow small businesses. With this assistance, destitute people are empowered to overcome poverty, hunger, inadequate housing, lack of education, and ill health. Enterprise Development's programs have served more than 800,000 people in more than 40 countries, including the United States.

Provides the transforming gift of mobility by dispensing basic, well-designed wheelchairs to physically disabled poor people in developing countries. In the developing world, a simple wheelchair is beyond the means of more than 100 million disabled adults and children. Many of these people must crawl or be carried to get about. FWM has delivered more than 160,000 wheelchairs to people in 55 countries. In 2005, the average cost to deliver one of FWM's wheelchairs was $44.40, an extraordinarily modest investment for something that provides mobility, restores dignity, and gives an individual a chance for a better life.

Conducts both manual and mechanical demining and has more than 7,000 deminers and 130 mechanical clearance devices at work. HALO USA is the world's oldest and largest humanitarian mine-clearance organization. HALO USA has a strong ethos of local capacity development and on average employs only one international staff member for every 150 national staff members. The organization is constantly seeking new ways to develop faster and safer ways to clear landmines and has been successful at adapting proven technology for mine clearance. HALO USA works in Abkhazia, Afghanistan, Angola, Cambodia, Mozambique, Nagorno-Karabakh, Sri Lanka, and Sudan. In 2004, HALO USA started a Weapons and Ammunition

Disposal Program to support the disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration process in Afghanistan and Angola.

Reduces water-related illness and death in developing countries by building self-sustaining projects that make safe drinking water accessible to the poor and empowers local churches to bring physical, social, and spiritual healing to their communities. The communities targeted by HWI are often overlooked for aid because they have municipal water systems in place. Unfortunately, many of these systems deliver contaminated water, and commercially bottled water is a luxury the poor can't afford. Attributes of HWI's water programs include the following: (1) projects are financially self-sustaining through water sales; (2) the water is tested monthly to guarantee purity; (3) bottle rinsing equipment ensures that clean water doesn't go into dirty containers; (4) accountability systems allow donors to monitor the ongoing performance of their projects; and (5) revenues help fund additional community service projects.

Creates partnerships to conduct health development projects in the United States and around the world. HH's domestic projects focus on well-being and healthy lifestyle habits, particularly among children and youth. The organization's international projects generally fall into three program areas: blindness prevention, maternal and child health, and international physician exchange. International projects are conducted in Albania, Cameroon, China, Mongolia, and Pakistan, among other countries. Member volunteers and the organization's professional staff offer their skills and expertise by conducting in-country training programs to advance health services, organizational capacity, and ethical foundations. HH works with local governmental institutions and nongovernmental organizations to develop its capacity to meet the health needs of the communities it serves.

Provides wheelchairs and other mobility aids to the disabled poor in developing countries. Hope Haven's innovative, volunteer-intensive, cost-effective program collects discarded wheelchairs and refurbishes and delivers them to poor people in 98 countries. Supplying wheelchairs is a critical first step to empowering some of the world's most dependent citizens, as mobility provides access to education, job training, and employment. Hope Haven manufactures new pediatric wheelchairs for children with severely disabling conditions, since the supply of children's wheelchairs doesn't meet the overwhelming need. The organization also spearheads a global network of individuals, relief agencies, and government leaders committed to the needs of the estimated 20 to 100 million disabled people worldwide.

Improves the lives of the rural poor in developing nations through agricultural and economic development. IDE's guiding principle is that the rural poor are natural entrepreneurs who, if given the opportunity, will invest their limited resources to ensure their families' food supply and generate income. IDE empowers rural farmers to pull themselves out of poverty by making available quality inputs, training, affordable technologies, capital, and access to markets. Simple, low-cost water technologies increase income generation by allowing farmers to cultivate high-value, labor-intensive crops. These technologies have enabled families to become more efficient agricultural producers, generally doubling their net annual income in the first year. IDE's efforts have helped some 17 million people escape poverty.

Trains grassroots leaders through intercommunal field internships to empower base-line stakeholders from every sector in democratically operating local youth and women empowerment corps. Interns, who are usually leaders from marginally resistant conflict groups, are given social entry as aid workers and educators with nongovernmental organizations and schools. Many of them are poor and become role models to show sustainable self-help poverty reduction; they mentor using traditional religious texts, transforming hate to tolerance. IFP builds a culture of human rights, democracy, tolerance, and peace in the conflict-prone streets of Africa, the Americas, Asia, Europe, and the Middle East.

MMC has built a virtual information bridge, called the MMC Global Telemedicine and Teaching Network™ (GTTN), between U.S. mentoring hospitals and underserved participating hospitals. Medical specialists from U.S. mentoring hospitals take part in interactive video conference sessions to consult on patient diagnoses, discuss new techniques and treatments, and answer questions. The GTTN is also used for educating physicians, nurses, and administrators about new medicines and protocols and for relaying cutting-edge medical knowledge. Programs are tailored to the specific needs of each participating hospital or country.

Uses the game of basketball to bridge social divides and develop leaders in conflict and post-conflict regions. PFP was founded on the premise that "children who play together can learn to live together." PFP operates programs in the Middle East, South Africa, Cyprus, and Northern Ireland that bring children together from different backgrounds to form positive relationships, develop leadership skills, and improve their futures. A key component to PFP's effectiveness is that the programs target children from 10 to 14 years of age. These children are old enough to pick up the basics of the sport, but young enough where many prejudices have not yet been cemented. Through the power of sport, education, and the strategic integration of public diplomacy, PFP is altering the pattern of preconceived prejudice and equipping children with the skills and education to address the serious social and health issues they face.

Harnesses the vitality of the private sector to address the health problems of low-income and vulnerable populations in more than 60 developing countries. With programs that focus on malaria, HIV/AIDS, reproductive health, and child survival, PSI promotes products, services, and healthy behaviors that enable low-income and vulnerable people to lead healthier lives. Products and services are sold at subsidized prices rather than given away in order to motivate commercial sector involvement. A nonprofit organization based in Washington, D.C., PSI estimates that its 2005 activities averted 200,000 HIV infections, 21 million cases of malaria, 11 million episodes of diarrhea, and 6.5 million unintended pregnancies.

Strengthens the capacity of organizations and governments to meet local needs. A global, networked organization, PACT's work is rooted in the belief that communities must be the driving force in ending poverty and injustice. To achieve this, PACT works in partnership with a wide variety of actors to enhance their capacity to be effective advocates and service providers, to connect to information and resources, to become accountable to stakeholders, and to link to the larger global community. Activities focus on six areas: governance and anticorruption, HIV/AIDS, livelihoods, peace building, natural resource management, and empowerment of vulnerable groups. PACT also manages large subgrant programs for donors that reflect shared values and a commitment to active stakeholder involvement. PACT receives support from bilateral and multilateral organizations, foundations, and corporations, and from its short-term consulting services.

Provides young people living in conflict zones in the Middle East and elsewhere with the training and life experiences needed to emerge as leaders of the next generation. SOP equips young leaders with critical skills required for diplomacy and peacemaking, and creates hope and possibility amid an atmosphere of fear and despair. Youth with demonstrated leadership potential are invited to SOP's international mediation camp in Maine. After camp, follow-up programming is provided until age 24. Follow-up includes outreach to families, schools, and communities; leadership training; and dialogue programs with the opposing side. Year-long support is provided from the Center for Coexistence in Jerusalem and other locations in Afghanistan, the Balkans, India, and Pakistan. SOP runs programs for adult educators who escort the youth to camp each summer.

Saves the lives of the poor in Haiti, the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere. In 2006, Sové Lavi (Saving Lives) continued to operate a full-time medical clinic, treating upwards of 600 patients each month. The organization also initiated a potable water project, which will provide easy-to-use, inexpensive water filtration systems for 30,000 people in the Artibonite Valley. Sové Lavi also is sponsoring a Haitian teenager with neurofibromatosis. Future plans call for the repair and drilling of water wells so that all Artibonite Valley residents will have easy access to clean water. In addition, the organization is exploring the start-up of a social enterprise that will provide much needed jobs in the area. All Sové Lavi projects require the participation of community leaders so that the work is self-sustaining and instills pride, provides jobs, and develops local leaders.

Addresses the growing concern for the protection of tropical forests. TFF was formed in 1990 as a result of a Smithsonian Institution workshop that brought together leaders of industry, science, and conservation. TFF promotes sustainable tropical forest management by gathering and disseminating information about the benefits of proper management. TFF identified a unique opportunity to engage the tropical timber industry in on-the-ground instruction 10 years ago and continues teaching and demonstrating sustainable forestry principles through the application of Reduced Impact Logging (RIL) practices. TFF's RIL programs are regional, located in all of the major tropical timber-producing areas of the world: the Amazon, both in Brazil and Guyana; Indonesia and the Asian Pacific; and more recently, the Congo Basin.

Broadcasts high-quality health-related and religious radio programs to Russia, China, and the Pacific Rim. The World Christian Broadcasting Corporation is a non-denominational, international broadcast organization that has been transmitting shortwave-band programming for more than 22 years. The organization bought 71 acres of land at Anchor Point, Alaska, in December 1979. This location was selected because of its proximity to large numbers of "unevangelized" people, especially in the People's Republic of China and Russia. On July 23, 1983, the organization's radio station, KNLS, began broadcasting 20 hours daily in Russian, Mandarin Chinese, and English. Programming is broadcast from two transmitters, with approximately 20 minutes of each broadcast hour carrying religious messages and 40 minutes providing informative reports on science, health, technology, nutrition, and business, as well as human-interest stories and music.

Contributes to sustainable development worldwide by strengthening industrial and urban environment, health, and safety policies and practices. WEC receives funding, expertise, and materials from governments, national and international agencies, industries, foundations, and private citizens. Through two complementary programs, the International Environment Forum and Capacity Building, WEC offers opportunities for the exchange of technical expertise and information to benefit both private and public sectors. A third program, the WEC Gold Medal for International Corporate Achievement in Sustainable Development, recognizes corporate leadership above and beyond regulatory requirements or common practices.

Provides educational and economic development opportunities and basic health care to the people of Yei and Morobo Counties in Southern Sudan. There is no better investment in the future of a country than in the education of its people. Many children have been scattered in the conflict-affected areas of Southern Sudan. Furthermore, the few schools that remain in operation lack funding and resources. YEDA's first priority is to provide basic education to these displaced children. Additionally, YEDA is committed to building a strong infrastructure and to helping the people of Southern Sudan become economically self-reliant. Through development, the children of Southern Sudan will have more access to education and a secure future.

Fights hunger by providing emergency assistance and by linking relief and development in five areas of expertise: nutrition; food security; health, including mental health and health care practices; water sanitation; and advocacy on hunger related issues. ACF intervenes either during a crisis through emergency programs or after a crisis through rehabilitation programs. Together with its four sister organizations, ACF is part of the ACF International network, which operates in some 40 countries worldwide. ACF International adheres to a charter of principles on which its humanitarian work is founded: independence, neutrality, nondiscrimination, free and direct access to affected populations, professionalism, and transparency.

Fights poverty worldwide. Formed in 1972, ActionAid is an international development agency that last year helped more than 13 million of the world's poorest people in more than 40 countries. ActionAid is owned by national affiliates working with partners in Africa, Asia, the Americas, and Europe. In December 2003, the organization established a secretariat in Johannesburg, South Africa. ActionAid works with local partners, helping poor women and men gain their rights to food, education, human security, just and democratic governance, and health care. The organization's 350,000 supporters share its commitment, providing 70 percent of its income ($216 million in 2005). ActionAid's partners range from small community groups to international networks, and its national and international campaigns highlight issues that affect poor people, influencing the way that governments and international institutions work.

EMAIL: projects@caiuk.org
WEB: www.childadvocacyinternational.co.uk

Works to ensure that every vulnerable baby, child, and mother has access to compassionate and effective health care in countries where there is extreme poverty, armed conflict, or natural disaster. CAI works with local health providers to develop sustainable systems of health care by improving training in emergency care; developing appropriate care for babies, children, and mothers; and advocating and promoting their best interests. Such services are essential to the development of effective health care systems that are accessible to the majority of the population in many poor countries. CAI campaigns for family rights (as outlined in international law and convention) in disadvantaged countries and in areas of armed conflict, with the specific intention of promoting the well-being and protection of children.

Alleviates poverty by supporting relief, rehabilitation, and development initiatives. DAI, an international Christian organization, prefers to work with local partners instead of operationally. In relief work, DAI responds to manmade and natural disasters by providing food, water, clothing, medical help, and temporary shelter. Rehabilitation programs are designed to help displaced people resettle and focus on trauma counseling. In development, the focus is on building the self-reliance of the poor. The sectors for DAI's development work include food security, education, water and sanitation, health and HIV/AIDS, housing, and employment and income. Women and children are given special attention, as they are often more vulnerable to poverty.

EVERY HOME FOR CHRIST LIMITED

EHC

Mr. Eric Roy Leach, Executive Director

P.O. Box 168, Penhurst

WEB: www.everyhome.org.au

Provides relief and development support to people in need. EHC is an evangelical organization that spreads the Gospel of Jesus Christ through the distribution of literature. All of the organization's programs, both humanitarian and literature distribution, are open to all people, without regard to religion, race, caste, gender, or color. EHC's Overseas Aid Program provides assistance and training to people in developing countries, equipping them with the skills necessary for sustainable development. EHC currently carries out humanitarian community development programs in Bangladesh, India, Malawi, and Togo that empower impoverished people to lift themselves out of the cycle of poverty and ill health. These programs include primary education, vocational training for women, medical assistance and, in Malawi, agricultural training and inputs to increase food security.

FONDATION HIRONDELLE MEDIA FOR PEACE AND HUMAN DIGNITY

Mr. Peter Aeberhard, Director

Avenue du Temple 19c
1012 Lausanne
SWITZERLAND
TEL: (41-21) 654 20 20
FAX: (41-21) 654 20 21
EMAIL: info@hirondelle.org
WEB: www.hirondelle.org

Contributes to peace building by professionally reporting news that is useful and factual to populations that are victims of violence or natural disaster and are otherwise cut off from independent media reports. Media for Peace and Human Dignity believes that independently reported impartial information can help cultivate the conditions necessary for conflict-ravaged countries to return to peace and democracy. The organization grew out of a 1994 initiative by a group of Swiss journalists who launched Radio Agatashya in the aftermath of the Rwandan genocide. Media for Peace and Human Dignity has operated similar radio projects, in collaboration with the United Nations and on its own, in the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, East Timor, Kosovo, Liberia, Sudan, and Tanzania.

Responds to a crying but barely addressed need for quality post-primary education for refugees, returnees, and internally displaced persons globally. RET was founded by Mrs. Sadako Ogata, former U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, under the belief that every adolescent has the right to a quality education. RET is committed to facilitating and promoting international cooperation in post-primary education for displaced youth; advancing human dignity, achievement, and self-reliance; and serving as a resource and advocate for innovative approaches in post-primary education for refugee youth. RET is also committed to ensuring that displaced youth, including girls and those with special needs, have equal access to education. RET is driven to expand educational opportunities and the understanding of conflict prevention, reconciliation, and social harmonization and integration in an effort to encourage reconstruction and repatriation.

Helps societies torn apart by armed conflict to overcome hostilities and to build lasting peace. INTERPEACE promotes consultation, research, and analysis with all sectors of society, including international assistance agencies and donors. INTERPEACE uses participatory research to enable everyone concerned to identify common challenges to peace and reach consensus on solutions and priorities. The alliance works in partnership with the United Nations and draws its strength from a close network of country teams, partners, and friends with shared values and a commitment to building lasting peace. Building on more than a decade of field experience, INTERPEACE has learned that peace is sustainable only if it is forged by all parties involved in the conflict, with local actors playing the main role, and if it is based on understanding, trust, and a common vision for the future.

Contributes to the global elimination of tuberculosis (TB) through the development and enhancement of TB-control activities. KNCV was established in 1903 as a national organization to fight TB in the Netherlands. Since the 1980s, KNCV has offered technical assistance to programs in Africa, Asia, Central Europe, Eastern Europe, and Latin America. KNCV promotes the Directly Observed Treatments (DOTS) short-course strategy, developed by its medical advisor, the late Dr. Karel Styblo. The World Health Organization has adopted DOTS as the international standard for TB control. KNCV, in collaboration with several partners, supports development and implementation of HIV-TB and MDR-TB activities, as well as local capacity building in all management aspects of TB programs.

Reaches out to more than 16,000 children per month by providing nutrition, education, and job skills to abandoned children, street children, the AIDS orphaned, and those who are destitute. ChildsLife also provides support and feeding programs for HIV-positive mothers and works with local governments to assist them in the caring for their at-risk populations. ChildsLife believes that the most effective way to help a child is to provide those things, however small, that have a direct impact upon his or her life. Headquartered in the Netherlands, ChildsLife works throughout the world, with its largest programs in Africa and Eastern Europe. ChildsLife's tailored approach to program design ensures that the organization's activities are based upon the direct needs of the children and their communities.

Stimulates long-lasting positive change in low- and moderate-income communities around the world, helping them to improve their social, economic, and environmental conditions. Using a participatory, demand-driven approach, CHF International has worked in 115 countries since 1952, providing innovative development assistance that promotes local economic development and fosters grassroots community participation. Using businesslike approaches and democratic principles, CHF helps bolster the capacity of microenterprises, governments, cooperatives, and nongovernmental organizations to tackle social, environmental, and infrastructural issues on their own, while strengthening community participation and cohesion. CHF applies these principles effectively in many contexts, such as post-conflict emergency recovery and reconstruction, natural disaster response, mitigation of the HIV/AIDS pandemic, and focused assistance for low-income artisans.

ENTERPRISEWORKS/VITA EWW

Mr. Donald Feil, CEO and President

Combats poverty by helping small producers and other entrepreneurs build sustainable businesses that create jobs and increase productivity, market opportunities, and incomes. For more than 40 years, EWW has achieved its goals by expanding access to appropriate technologies, technical assistance, knowledge, and finance. EWW's programs use a business-like approach to enterprise creation and development based on the value chain, which encompasses the steps of production, processing, and marketing that add value to products. By helping small producers obtain the level of expert advice, value-adding technology, and credit access enjoyed by their larger competitors, EWW programs level the playing field and enable microentrepreneurs to develop their own competitive business advantage.

NATIONAL COOPERATIVE BUSINESS ASSOCIATION

NCBA

Mr. Paul Hazen, President and CEO
