FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

FORMER IRS EMPLOYEE SENTENCED FOR STEALING TAXPAYER'S MONEY ORDER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. – Todd P. Graves, United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri, announced that a former employee of the Internal Revenue Service was sentenced in federal court today for stealing a money order that had been sent to the IRS for payment of taxes.

James G. Ingram, 39, of Kansas City, Mo., was sentenced by U.S. Magistrate Judge Robert E. Larsen this morning to one year of probation, including two months of home detention.

On Jan. 7, 2003, Ingram pleaded guilty to a federal information charging him with the theft of public money.

By pleading guilty, Graves said, Ingram admitted that he stole a $950 Traveler's Express money order that had been sent to the IRS by a taxpayer for payment of taxes. The theft occurred between June 8 and June 14, 2001, while Ingram was working as a file clerk in the Extraction Unit, Receipt and Control Branch, at the Kansas City, Mo., Service Center of the Internal Revenue Service. In that unit, Graves explained, mail is opened and checks and money orders are separated from the income tax returns. Ingram took the taxpayer's money order, Graves said, and filled in his own name in the blank payee line, then endorsed the back of the money order and cashed it, taking the proceeds for his own use.

Graves added that, after being advised by the IRS that his payment wasn't received, the taxpayer obtained a copy of the money order. The taxpayer sent a letter to Ingram, confronting him with the theft and demanding reimbursement. At that time, Graves said, the taxpayer wasn't aware that Ingram was an IRS employee.

Ingram sent a check to the taxpayer reimbursing him for the stolen $950 money order. The taxpayer then advised the IRS that the money order had been stolen by Ingram, Graves said, and the IRS determined that Ingram was an employee at the Kansas City Service Center.

The case was prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorney Frances Reddis. The case was investigated by the Office of Inspector General for Tax Administration, Department of the Treasury.
