Case No. 1:96CV01285 (RCL)
(Judge Lamberth)

INTERIOR DEFENDANTS' CONSOLIDATED
(1) MOTION FOR EXPEDITED CONSIDERATION;
(2) MOTION TO COMPEL PLAINTIFF EARL OLD PERSON
TO COMPLY WITH THE COURT'S DECEMBER 23, 2002
PRODUCTION ORDER AND TO APPEAR AND TESTIFY AT DEPOSITION; AND (3) MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT

The Secretary of the Interior and the Assistant Secretary - Indian Affairs ("Interior Defendants" or "Interior"), pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. ("Rules") 37(a) and (d), hereby move that this Court enter an order requiring Plaintiff Earl Old Person to comply with the production order entered by this Court on December 23, 2002, and to appear for his deposition. Interior Defendants have been forced to file this motion because Plaintiffs have moved the Court for an order (discussed at pp. 3-4, infra) relieving them of any obligation to make Earl Old Person appear for deposition, based upon their unsupported assertions that Mr. Old Person will not cooperate with discovery.

Because of the urgency of obtaining such discovery from Mr. Old Person, Interior respectfully asks that the Court consider such motion on an expedited basis. The following is Interior's Memorandum of Points and Authorities in support.

Conference With Opposing Counsel

Counsel for Interior Defendants contacted one of Plaintiffs' counsel, Mark Brown, on January 16, 2003 to see if they would consent to the relief sought by this motion, but Plaintiffs' counsel refused.

Background

This motion involves two aspects of discovery directed at Plaintiff Earl Old Person – a duly noticed deposition (see Exhibit 1 hereto) which was scheduled for January 9, 2003, and the Court-ordered production (see Exhibit 2 hereto) of documents due by January 8, 2003.

Deposition Noticed for January 9, 2003. On December 11, 2002, Interior served the First Amended Notice of Deposition - Earl Old Person, which set Mr. Old Person's deposition for January 9, 2003. A copy is attached as Exhibit 1. Mr. Old Person failed to appear. Instead, one day before the scheduled date for the deposition, Plaintiffs filed a motion for a protective order, described below.

Court-Ordered Document Production (Due January 8, 2003). On June 5, 2002, Interior Defendants served their Request for the Production of Documents, Dated June 5, 2002, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 3. Plaintiffs failed to comply, and instead, on July 5, 2002, Plaintiffs filed a motion seeking a protective order staying Interior's discovery. On July 16, 2002, Interior Defendants filed a motion to compel production of the requested documents. The motions were duly briefed. On December 23, 2002, this Court entered an Order (Exhibit 2 hereto) denying Plaintiffs' motion for a protective order and granting Interior Defendants' motion to compel. The Order (at 1-2) stated as follows with regard to those motions:

ORDERED that plaintiffs' motion for protective order [1373] be DENIED. It is further

ORDERED that defendants' motion to compel discovery [1386] be GRANTED. Accordingly, it is further ORDERED that within ten (10) days from the date of this Order, plaintiffs shall comply with Interior Defendants' Request for Production of Documents, dated June 5, 2002, by producing to Interior Defendants the documents requested therein.

The due date (calculated under Rule 6(a)) for Plaintiffs to produce the documents was January 8, 2003.

Mr. Old Person's Failure to Produce Documents or Appear for Deposition. Mr. Old Person neither produced documents nor appeared for his deposition. Rather, on January 8, 2003 – the date on which the Court's order required Mr. Old Person to produce the documents, and one day before the scheduled deposition – Plaintiffs and their attorneys filed two papers containing four motions.¹ Plaintiffs' first filing (docket number 1718) (collectively, "Plaintiffs' Motion to Remove Earl Old Person") included (1) a motion (by Plaintiffs other than Mr. Old Person) to remove Mr. Old Person as a named Plaintiff; and (2) a motion by Plaintiffs' attorneys to withdraw as his counsel. Plaintiffs' second filing (docket number 1719) (collectively, "Plaintiffs' Motion for Protective Order")² included (1) a motion to stay the Court's Order of December 23, 2002 as it regards Mr. Old Person's production of documents; and (2) a motion for a protective order to prevent the deposition of Mr. Old Person. Contemporaneously herewith, Interior has filed oppositions to each of the above filings. Interior's Opposition to the Plaintiffs' Motion to Remove Earl Old Person explains why the Court should deny that motion, or at least not rule on it until discovery of Mr. Old Person is completed. Interior's Opposition to the Plaintiffs' Motion for Protective Order demonstrates that no protective order is justified (see below).

¹ Plaintiffs other than Mr. Old Person served responsive documents or written objections on January 8, 2003.

² The full title of Plaintiffs' second filing (docket number 1719) is "Plaintiffs' Consolidated Motions to Modify or In the Alternative Stay the Production Order of December 23, 2002 As It Pertains Solely to Named Plaintiff, Earl Old Person, Motion for Protective Order to Prevent the Deposition of Mr. Old Person and Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Support Thereof."

Argument

I. No Basis Exists to Excuse Mr. Old Person From His Discovery Obligations

Plaintiffs' Motion for Protective Order seeks to delay or avoid Mr. Old Person's obligation to comply with the Court's document production order of December 23, 2002, and his obligation to appear for a deposition. Plaintiffs argue that Mr. Old Person did not produce documents because Plaintiffs' counsel has not been able to "contact" him, and that, if the Motion to Remove Earl Old Person is granted, discovery allegedly would not be necessary. See Plaintiffs' Motion for Protective Order at 2.

Interior's Opposition to the Motion for Protective Order ("Opp. to Mo. for Prot. Order") demonstrates that Plaintiffs' Motion for Protective Order is insufficient to justify deferring or quashing discovery of Mr. Old Person. The arguments in our Opposition will not be repeated in detail here, but only summarized. First, Plaintiffs failed to meet their heavy burden of showing "good cause" (see Rule 26(c)) for a protective order. See Opp. to Mo. for Prot. Order at 3-4. The insufficiency of Plaintiffs' showing is heightened by the law in this circuit which imposes special duties on a class representative to comply with discovery. As the D.C. Circuit has stated, the "[f]ailure of a representative plaintiff [in a class action] to respond to discovery or to keep class counsel informed of his whereabouts is a serious matter which ought to be discouraged by appropriate sanctions." Dellums v. Powell, 566 F.2d 231, 236 (D.C. Cir. 1977). Mr. Old Person's non-compliance with discovery and alleged non-contact with class counsel violates his duty. Plaintiffs offer no good excuse for this.

Second, the highly unusual circumstances surrounding Mr. Old Person's sudden refusal to comply with discovery or even allegedly to have contact with class counsel raise serious, urgent questions regarding whether Mr. Old Person's non-participation is because of purely personal reasons or because of the way in which the case is being handled or is proceeding, and whether he has knowledge of, for example, antagonistic interests among class members or class representatives.³ See Opp. to Mo. for Prot. Order at 6; see also Interior's Opposition to the Plaintiffs' Motion to Remove Earl Old Person at 8-9. If such antagonistic interests exist, the class representatives may no longer meet the "adequate representation" requirement of Rule 23(a)(4), and modification of the class (e.g., formation of subclasses) might be appropriate. Discovery into such class-related issues is always appropriate, and, even though the class already has been certified, the Court remains obliged to ensure that the class requirements of Rule 23 remain satisfied. See Opp. to Mo. for Prot. Order at 6; see also Interior's Opposition to the Plaintiffs' Motion to Remove Earl Old Person at 5-6. Thus, the failure of Mr. Old Person to comply with discovery obligations does not justify deferring or removing his discovery obligations, but, rather, makes discovery of his knowledge all the more urgent and necessary.

³ For example, Mr. Old Person suddenly ceased his participation in the case just when the parties filed their January 6, 2003 plans for "fixing the system" and for an historical accounting, and just when Mr. Old Person was to be questioned in deposition. The coincidence of these events – together with prior media reports of Mr. Old Person's disagreement with lead named Plaintiff Elouise Cobell – raise serious questions about whether Mr. Old Person is aware of, for example, disagreements within the class as to the manner in which the class representatives are approaching this case. See Opp. to Mo. for Prot. Order at 2 & 6 n.4; see also Interior's Opposition to Plaintiffs' Motion to Remove Earl Old Person at 7-8.

Finally, even if Mr. Old Person were removed as a class representative, discovery of his knowledge still would be appropriate under appropriate D.C. Circuit precedent. See Opp. to Mo. for Prot. Order at 7 et seq.

Interior Defendants should be permitted to depose Mr. Old Person about the circumstances described above and, because he remains a named Plaintiff with substantive knowledge about the merits of the case, he is properly subject to being deposed about those matters too.⁴

II. The Court Should Enter Appropriate Orders to Ensure That Mr. Old Person Promptly Produces the Required Documents and Appears for His Deposition

Rule 37(b)(2) provides that if a party "fails to obey an order to provide or permit discovery" the Court may "make such orders in regard to the failure as are just."⁵ Mr. Old Person failed to obey the Court's December 23, 2002 Order which required that he "comply with Interior Defendants' Request for Production of Documents, dated June 5, 2002, by producing to Interior Defendants the documents requested therein." (Order at 1-2). Thus, Interior Defendants are entitled to relief under Rule 37(b). Interior asks that the Court enter an order specifically

⁴ Because the requested discovery from Mr. Old Person might not be obtained and reviewed in sufficient time to include it in any pertinent motions for summary judgment that Interior files by the January 31, 2003 due date (for summary judgment motions pertaining to the Phase 1.5 trial), Interior might find it necessary to supplement applicable summary judgment motions based upon information learned from discovery of Mr. Old Person.

⁵ Although Rule 37(b)(2) goes on to list a number of sanctions that might be included within an order, these are not the exclusive remedies, for the rule states that orders for such sanctions are "among other[]" orders that the Court may enter. At this time, Interior does not seek sanctions, but simply asks the Court to enter orders that will be sufficient to cause Mr. Old Person to comply with his discovery obligations, under the potential penalty of contempt for any further non-compliance.

directing Mr. Old Person to produce the documents requested by a date certain.

Similarly, Rule 37(d) provides that if a party "fails . . . to appear" for a deposition "after being served with a proper notice," "the court . . . may make such orders in regard to the failure as are just" which includes but are not limited to orders for certain of the sanctions listed in Rule 37(b)(2). As shown in Exhibit 1 hereto, on December 11, 2002, Interior Defendants served proper notice of the deposition of Mr. Old Person, setting it for January 9, 2003. Mr. Old Person failed to appear. Although his counsel filed the Motion for Protective Order, that motion has no merit. See Interior's Opp. to Mo. for Prot. Order. Therefore, the Court should enter an order requiring Mr. Old Person to appear for his deposition on a date to be selected by Interior Defendants.

In order to ensure that Mr. Old Person understands that he has no choice but to comply, the Court's Order should warn him that failure to comply may result in punishment for contempt of court. In order to ensure that Mr. Old Person receives due notice, Interior asks that the Court direct Plaintiffs' counsel to serve a copy of the Order upon Mr. Old Person promptly, and to file a certification that they have done so.

III. This Motion Should Be Considered on an Expedited Basis

The facts known by Earl Old Person may be significant not only to issues going to the merits of the case (e.g., that might be used by Interior Defendants in preparation for the Phase 1.5 trial which is only months away, or in summary judgment proceedings related to Phase 1.5), but also going to fundamental class-related issues discussed above. Any information that he has on such matters may have an important impact on upcoming proceedings. For example, if he discloses significant antagonistic interests among the class members and the class representatives, that may call for an immediate creation of a subclass or other appropriate relief. Any delay in such relief may prejudice such other class members by depriving them of a voice in this case. Thus, delay also would work against the interests of justice. Therefore, Interior requests that the Court consider this matter on an expedited basis.

Conclusion

For the reasons stated above, Interior Defendants respectfully request that the Court enter the proposed orders submitted herewith, requiring Plaintiff Earl Old Person to produce the required documents by a date certain, and to appear and testify at his deposition, under the possible penalty of contempt of court for non-compliance. A proposed order is submitted herewith.
