To Whom It May Concern:

It is truly pathetic to see signs along the Housatonic River warning that the fish should not be eaten due to pollution. What is really awful (and very common) is to see whole families who do not speak English enjoying an afternoon fishing in this river and consuming the fish because they can't read the signs.

This is a concern of mine because I have worked for the WIC program In Massachusetts for the past 13 years as a nutritionist. We work on educating families about keeping their families safe and healthy. I know many lower-income people supplement their diets with the fish they catch.

We need to make healthy people a priority and clean up this river.

Sincerely,
Susan Antil LDN, CLC
WIC nutritionist
