EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Environmental Protection Agency's mission is to protect public health and improve the environment by ensuring compliance with environmental requirements, preventing pollution and promoting environmental stewardship. This report is the latest in a series of State of Federal Facilities reports issued by the Federal Facilities Enforcement Office in EPA's Office of Enforcement and Compliance Assurance.

This State of Federal Facilities report contains information from 2005 to 2007 on federal government agencies regarding compliance with federal environmental laws, cleanup enforcement, administrative enforcement, inspections and compliance assistance. Environmental compliance information from 1993 to 2007 is presented so trends can be observed, but this report does not attempt to analyze the underlying causes of noncompliance. Progress of EPA's federal facilities enforcement and compliance programs from 2005 to 2007 is also presented. Prior State of Federal Facilities reports are available on EPA's website.

Compliance Trends - In general, long-term compliance trends stayed relatively constant through 2007.<sup>1</sup> While the number of major federal facilities without any significant noncompliance (the non-SNC rate) decreased in 2006, these rates either leveled off or improved in 2007. And compared to the non-SNC rates for non-federal facilities (such as private companies or municipal facilities), federal facilities in 2007 were either relatively the same or slightly better.

<sup>1</sup> All years in this report unless noted otherwise refer to the Federal fiscal year which runs from October 1st through September 30th of the following year. FY 2005 was Oct. 1, 2004 through Sept. 30, 2005; FY 2006 was Oct. 1, 2005 through Sept. 30, 2006; and FY 2007 was Oct. 1, 2006 through Sept. 30, 2007.

Inspections - In 2005 and 2006 the number of EPA inspections of federal facilities decreased from prior years. State inspections declined by 20% between 2005 and 2006. Much of this decline was due to fewer RCRA inspections by state environmental agencies. After adjusting for changes to methodology in 2007, inspection totals stayed relatively similar, with a slight increase over the 2006 totals.

Enforcement Actions - EPA enforcement actions against federal facilities increased in 2007 to an overall total of 43 cases. These cases resulted in over 1.1 million pounds of pollution reduced, treated or properly managed. Federal facilities paid over $500,000 in penalties for violation of environmental laws. The majority of EPA enforcement actions were RCRA actions (both hazardous waste related and underground storage tanks) and involved violations at civilian federal agencies (agencies other than the Departments of Defense or Energy).

Cleanups - Superfund enforcement at federal facilities was estimated to address over 850 million cubic yards of contaminated soils and water in 2006 and nearly 350 million cubic yards in 2007.

Assistance - In 2005 - 2007 EPA expanded its assistance to other federal agencies, primarily through expansion of FedCenter, the internet-based compliance assistance and environmental stewardship center just for federal agencies (www.fedcenter.gov). FedCenter helped federal agencies meet important statutory and Administration mandates. It created a process for federal facilities to electronically report the compliance status of all their underground storage tanks and to report their progress in implementing environmental management systems.

ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT OF FEDERAL GOVERNMENT OPERATIONS

Federal agencies can have a large impact on our nation's environment. According to the latest information from the Federal Real Property Council, the U.S. government owns more than 42 million acres of land.<sup>2</sup> These lands include forests, parks, historic sites, grazing lands and military lands.

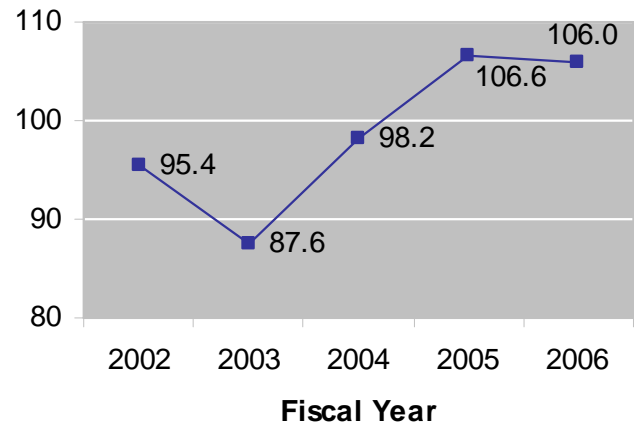

The Federal Government's departments, agencies and bureaus own or operate approximately 922,209,000 buildings and structures covering 3.35 billion square feet.<sup>3</sup> These buildings include offices, housing, manufacturing and production buildings, maintenance and service facilities, hospitals, research facilities, schools, prisons, and storage buildings. These operations generate pollution, create wastes and impact our environment. The Federal Government is a large consumer of natural resources and power. Government agencies spend over $10 billion per year on energy.<sup>4</sup>

Federal agencies, like other regulated parties, are required to comply with federal environmental laws, as well as those of states, local governments and tribes. Federal agencies must also comply with environmental requirements set out in Presidential Executive Orders. EPA regularly tracks approximately 7,000 federal facilities that are subject to one or more federal environmental laws.<sup>5</sup>

EPA's Toxics Release Inventory (TRI) program collects information from industrial sources in the United States on the disposal or other releases and other waste management practices for over 650 chemicals. These sources include federal facilities that comply with TRI requirements under a Presidential Executive Order. For calendar year 2006 (the latest year available), federal facilities reported the following:

- 306 federal facilities reported nearly 106 million pounds of total on- and off-site disposal or other releases. This is a decrease of approximately 600,000 lbs (0.6%) from 2005, but still the second highest total between 2002 and 2006.

Seventy-two percent (76.3 million lbs) of the total releases for 2005 are attributable to the

This type of coal has higher amounts of barium compounds (which are reportable chemicals) in it and more ash was disposed of off-site. ## COMPLIANCE WITH ENVIRONMENTAL LAWS

Measuring Compliance

EPA and state regulators monitor activities at federal facilities to determine whether they are in compliance with environmental laws. Compliance monitoring enables regulators to measure and track compliance over time, identify potential problem areas and identify where compliance assistance is needed. EPA and states obtain information regarding environmental compliance primarily in two ways: (1) conducting on-site inspections and assessments, and (2) reviewing information in reports submitted by regulated facilities (self-reporting).

Noncompliance can be measured in a number of ways, including the percentage of facilities cited for (1) any violations, regardless of their severity; (2) significant noncompliance (SNC); and (3) repeat violations, among others. Beginning in 1993, EPA began to measure compliance at federal facilities by:

- SNC events (such as releasing pollutants well above a specified limit) at any time during the relevant time period at;
- “Major” federal facilities (e.g., facilities that because of their size or operations have the potential to have a significant impact on the environment) and which were
  - Inspected by EPA or a state, or
  - Submitted compliance reports to EPA or a state.

Figure two identifies the compliance indicators this report uses to measure federal facility compliance. These indicators denote the percent of facilities that were not in SNC at any time during the relevant year. For ease of reading, the term “non-SNC rate” is used in this report to describe such facilities.

SNC: Each environmental program has a specific definition for what constitutes a SNC. EPA’s CAA program uses High Priority Violator (HPV), rather than SNC, to denote significant violations. Links to further information on EPA SNC policies are also contained in Appendix II.

The non-SNC rates in this report represent the conditions found at inspected facilities or at facilities that submitted compliance reports to EPA and states. These non-SNC rates may not be reflective of the overall compliance rates for all federal facilities. In fact, non-SNC rates may both over-represent and under-represent the level of compliance in the overall universe.

- First, EPA and states target inspections toward facilities suspected of having compliance problems; few inspections are done randomly. To the extent that non-SNC rates are based on inspections at facilities thought to have compliance problems (and most are), they may not reflect compliance at all federal facilities. Thus, non-SNC rates probably over-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.
- Second, non-SNC rates only reflect the percentage of facilities without any “significant” violations; these rates do not include other types of lesser violations. A facility may have numerous violations but if none are classified as “significant” the facility will still meet the definition of “non-SNC”. Thus, non-SNC rates probably under-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.

Statute	Compliance Indicator
Clean Air Act (CAA)	Percent of major Federal sources not cited for high priority violations (HPV). The compliance indicator for CAA is measured only at major facilities primarily because of data quality issues. States are not required to provide data on minor facilities to their respective national data systems, and many do not. Thus, compliance data for minor CAA facilities is incomplete.
Clean Water Act (CWA)	Percent of NPDES major Federal facilities not in significant noncompliance (non-SNC). The CWA NPDES program requires facilities to submit Discharge Monitoring Reports (DMRs) periodically to states and EPA. DMRs contain information on the facility's water discharges over the prior period. The non-SNC rates in this report are derived in part from the data in DMRs as well as information obtained from inspections. This indicator reflects violations of both reporting requirements (such as failure to submit a DMR or submitting an incomplete DMR) as well as violations of effluent limits by regulated facilities.
	Percent of NPDES major Federal facilities not in significant noncompliance (non-SNC) for effluent violations. These effluent SNCs are a subset of all CWA SNCs (see indicator immediately above). To better track violations of effluent limits, EPA began calculating a compliance indicator in 2005 just for CWA effluent violations deemed to be SNCs. Similar to the CAA, the compliance indicator for CWA is measured only at major facilities primarily because of data quality issues. States are not required to provide data on minor facilities to their respective national data systems, and many do not. Thus, compliance data for minor CWA facilities is incomplete.
Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA)	Percent of inspected federal treatment, storage or disposal facilities (TSDFs), Federal Large Quantity Generators (LQGs), and Federal Small Quantity Generators (SQGs) not in significant noncompliance (non-SNC). In the case of RCRA, non-SNC rates are based primarily on inspection data. However, only a portion of RCRA facilities are inspected in any given year. This is especially true for transporters, small quantity generators (SQGs), and large quantity generators (LQGs). A significant percentage of SQGs have never been inspected. In contrast, most Federal TSDFs are inspected at least once a year.
Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA)	Percent of active federal public water systems not in significant noncompliance (non-SNC). The non-SNC rate includes the number of active federal public water systems that are non-SNC over the number of active federal public water systems.
Toxics Substances Control Act (TSCA), Federal Insecticide Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) and Emergency Planning Community Right to Know Act (EPCRA)	Compliance statistics for TSCA, FIFRA, and EPCRA are no longer included in this report for two reasons: (1) other data quality issues, and (2) the number of inspected facilities are too small to yield meaningful results.

Even with these limitations, these non-SNC rates - which are based on information obtained by on-site EPA and state inspections and from reports done by the regulated facilities themselves - are useful in gauging the compliance status of larger facilities with the most important environmental requirements.

Larger facilities are, in general, inspected more regularly than smaller facilities.

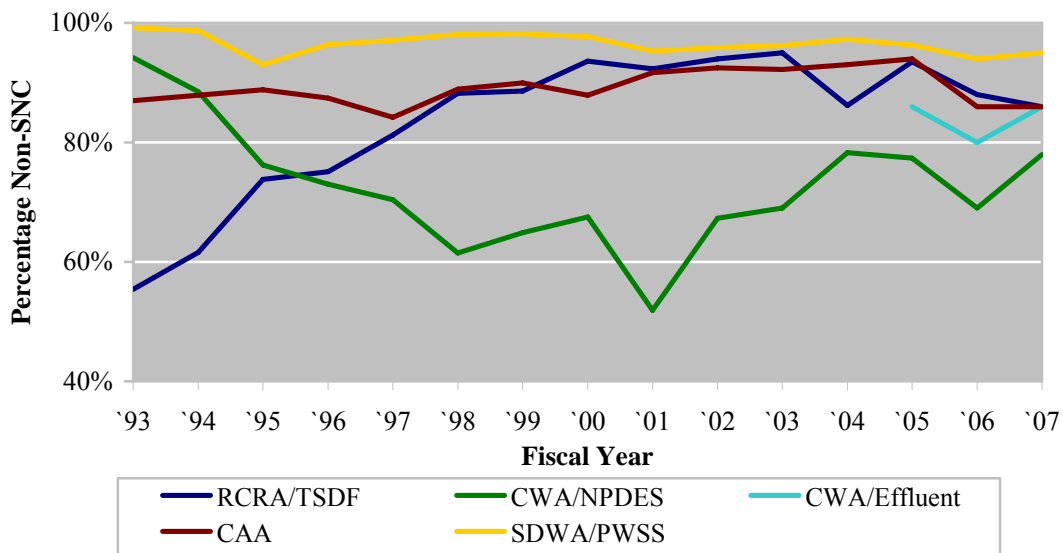

A higher non-SNC rate is better. FFEO's non-SNC rate is calculated as the number of facilities not in SNC divided by the number of federally reportable or inspected facilities times 100.

Readers may wish to use a number that reflects facilities that are in SNC. To do so, simply take the converse of the non-SNC rates. For example, if the non-SNC rate is 87 percent, the percent of facilities with SNCs is 13 percent (100% - 87% = 13%).

Non-SNC rates should also be viewed in context of both (1) the universe of facilities regulated under each regulatory program and (2) the number of inspections conducted by EPA and states. For example, if the universe of facilities is large but inspections are few, the non-SNC rate may not fully represent the general level of compliance by federal facilities.

Figure 3: Percent of Inspected or Self-Reporting Federal Facilities per Fiscal Year that are ‘Non-SNC’ (or non-HPV for CAA) by Program (Higher Percentages Are Better)

Comparison to Non-Federal Non-SNC Rates

With the exception of RCRA, the federal facility non-SNC rates for CWA/NPDES, CAA, and SDWA/PWSS are all approximately equal to or slightly better than the non-federal facility Non-SNC rates for 2007.

- SDWA: The 95% (3,614/3,816) non-SNC rate for SDWA/PWSS is the highest and is approximately three percentage points higher than the non-federal facility Non-SNC rate (91.2%) in 2007.
- CAA: The 86% (142/165) non-HPV rate for CAA Majors is slightly better than the non-federal rate of 85% (7,373/8,629).

- CWA: The 78% (83/106) non-SNC rate for CWA is equal to the non-federal facility rate of 78% (4,994/6,403).
- RCRA: Only the Non-SNC rate of 87% (141/162) for RCRA Subtitle C under TSDFs is slightly lower than the non-federal facility rate of 90% (1,169/1,298) in 2007.

	Non-SNC Rate (%)	Non-SNC Rate (NO.)
Federal	95%	3,614/3,816
Non-Federal	91%	138,721/152,143

Variation of Non-SNC Rates among Federal Agencies

Because facilities operated by the Department of Defense (DoD) and the Department of Energy (DOE) make up a significant portion of the universe of major federal facilities, EPA compiles non-SNC rates for them individually. Agencies other than DoD and DOE are categorized as civilian federal agencies (or CFAs).

In some cases, the numerator and denominator are relatively small; meaning a small change in the number of facilities in SNC between years can have a big impact on the percent rate.

DoD's CWA, CAA, and RCRA

Major/TSDf non-SNC/non-HPV rates all dipped slightly between 2005 to 2006 but increased in 2007. Within DoD, the Air Force consistently has the highest non-SNC/non-HPV percentage rate between the different military branches.

The non-SNC/non-HPV rate for DOE and the CFAs fluctuated both up and down between years. Two of DOE's non-SNC rates for 2007 were lower than 2006, and all three were lower than its 2005 rate. For CFAs, only the non-SNC rate under CWA Majors was higher in 2007 than previous years. Otherwise, non-HPV/non-SNC rates under CAA Majors and RCRA TSDFs decreased in 2006 followed by a further decrease in 2007.

As noted previously, these non-SNC/non-HPV rates are not statistically representative of all federal facilities due to how facilities are selected for inspections. Because the criteria used by EPA and the states to select facilities did not change dramatically from year to year, cross-year comparisons can provide useful information on compliance trends at the inspected facilities. However, some of the fluctuation within the percentage rate between fiscal years may be attributed to the relatively low number of facilities being tracked.

DoD calculates its compliance with NPDES requirements differently than EPA. DoD includes both major and minor facilities, while EPA uses only major facilities. DoD's latest available report concludes that 95% of its facilities were in compliance under CWA requirements in the first-half of calendar year 2007.<sup>7</sup>

EPA's Strategic Approach to Compliance Problems

EPA strategically focuses on specific areas in which compliance problems exist and in which EPA programs can make improvements. EPA's national enforcement and compliance strategic plans, including EPA's federal facilities plans, can be viewed at the Office of Enforcement and Compliance Assurance National Program Manager Guidance.

In recent years, EPA's federal facilities enforcement and compliance program has focused on:

Wastewater Compliance: Because indicators showed that federal facilities had more significant violations under the Clean Water Act than other major environmental statutes, in 2004 EPA began to focus on improving federal agency compliance with effluent water requirements. EPA worked with other federal agencies, such as the Department of Defense, to find the underlying causes of common violations, connected federal facilities to experts at improving operations at wastewater plants and developed and distributed compliance guides to federal facilities. In 2007, the Department of Defense established a new "zero significant violations" policy for all military installations and required installations with significant compliance problems to implement detailed plans to return to compliance.

Underground Storage Tanks (USTs) Compliance: In 2005 Congress passed the Energy Policy Act of 2005 amending the underground storage tank program of RCRA. The Action waived the sovereign immunity federal agencies may have had for UST compliance requirements. It required all federal agencies to report the compliance status of their USTs by August 2006. It required that regulators—states or EPA—inspect by August 2007 all USTs which had not been inspected since 1998. Thereafter, all USTs are to be inspected every three years. Through the collective efforts of many agencies, FedCenter developed a UST data reporting tool to make it easier for federal agencies to electronically report their UST compliance status. EPA is working with state partners to develop inspection programs as required by the Act, and EPA is providing both live and web-based training on UST compliance requirements to federal facility staff.

Federal Laboratories: Federal agencies operate many different kinds of laboratories—research and developments labs, clinical (such as medical and dental) labs, forensic labs, testing labs, biology and chemistry labs, necropsy labs and quality assurance labs for chemical or other manufacturing plants. All labs have to meet certain environmental requirements. Past EPA inspections of federal labs have shown instances of:

- Pouring used chemicals into sinks and drains connected to public sewer systems,
- Improper identification, storage, handling, and disposal of chemicals and wastes,
- Improper operation of on-site power generators and boilers in ways that violate air pollution requirements,
- Inadequate spill prevention and emergency response plans, and
- Inadequate wastewater treatment processes.

Stormwater Management: For several years EPA’s overall enforcement and compliance program has focused on several “wet weather” issues, including compliance with stormwater management regulations. EPA’s federal facilities program is also focused on stormwater issues at federal agencies. Much of the building construction and land development at federal facilities is undertaken by contractors in the construction industry which was found to have common compliance problems. Also, because of the closure and realignment of military bases under the 2005 Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission (BRAC), there is likely to be significant construction activities at many military bases.

EPA is developing programs to address these specific environmental problems. As mentioned above, FedCenter developed a reporting tool to help federal agencies meet the reporting mandate of the Energy Policy Act of 2005. EPA offices are collaborating to develop live training for federal facility staff on UST compliance requirements and the legal requirements and pollution reduction opportunities for laboratories. As training and education materials are developed, they will be posted on FedCenter and EPA’s own web site. EPA has been and will continue to inspect federal laboratories and other federal facilities to monitor compliance with UST and stormwater requirements.

Future Strategy Areas: In FY 2009, EPA will investigate other possible areas with the goal of identifying one or two new integrated strategy areas for FY 2010. Based on past experience, EPA is exploring the following areas:

- Compliance with RCRA requirements other than TSD requirements and UST (which is already the focus of an existing Integrated Strategy),
- Compliance at federal prisons, and
- Compliance at campgrounds on federal lands.

Other national priority areas include the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) schools.

Online Compliance Information

Compliance information is available online to the general public through EPA’s Environmental Compliance History Online \(ECHO\) (<http://www.epa-echo.gov/echo>) which contains five years of compliance and enforcement information on approximately 800,000 regulated facilities, including Federal facilities.

It is incumbent on federal facilities to know the compliance status of its facilities, especially since the general public – such as nearby residents, local elected officials and their employees can get this information.

To help Federal agency staff manage their operations that impact the environment, in 2003 EPA made additional compliance and enforcement information on nearly 7,000 Federal facilities available online to Federal employees. This information is found in EPA's Online Tracking Information System \(OTIS\) (<http://www.epa-otis.gov/otis>).

OTIS users can:

- View compliance and enforcement action information on all regulated facilities operated by any particular federal department, agency or bureau and within specified geographic areas.
- Identify which facilities have been inspected by EPA or states and the results of those inspections.
- Send an electronic message to EPA and state regulators if any information is thought to be erroneous.

ENFORCING ENVIRONMENTAL LAWS

EPA enforcement actions against federal facilities are typically administrative actions. In prosecuting and settling enforcement actions, EPA seeks to have the alleged violator pay a monetary fine for the violation and to deter the violator from future violations; implement repairs or upgrade pollution control technologies, correct compliance problems or clean up waste; and/or take action to reduce pollution or prevent problems from reoccurring. EPA or states can use either informal or formal enforcement actions to bring a facility back to compliance.

Most administrative enforcement actions are resolved by settlements agreed to by both parties. When EPA or states order a facility to take certain actions to return to compliance, it is called an “administrative compliance order.” EPA and states can also seek/require penalties from a defendant/respondent. These “administrative penalty orders” may also include requirements for the defendant/respondent to perform or refrain from certain actions.

Variation in enforcement action results from year to year are to be expected and dependent upon the kinds of violations discovered and whether EPA was able to reach settlements with the violators. Even so, EPA’s federal facilities enforcement program showed advances between 2005 and 2007. EPA took 59% more cases in 2007 than in 2005 (43 settlements vs. 27 settlements) resulting in federal facilities spending over $260 million to return to compliance and other environmentally beneficial projects. EPA enforcement actions resulted in over 1.1 million pounds of pollutants reduced, treated or properly managed at federal facilities.

Detailed information on EPA enforcement actions, including the names of the federal facilities as well as private parties operating at federal facilities subject to these actions and the environmental statutes involved is in Appendix IV.

Measuring Progress in Enforcing Environmental Laws

In prosecuting and settling enforcement actions against federal facilities, EPA emphasizes results which improve public health and the environment. For the first time, EPA is publishing in this report the environmental benefits which result from enforcement actions between 2005 and 2007. These benefits include preventing releases of pollutants into the environment and improved management (which, in turn, should prevent future violations and prevent future environmental harm). The details of the benefits from EPA’s 2005 - 2007 enforcement actions are detailed in Appendix IV.

Compliance Action Costs

As a result of EPA enforcement actions, federal facilities agree to take actions to return to compliance. They agreed to spend $6.8 million in 2005 and $1 million in 2006 to remedy violations. Again, these costs can vary greatly from year to year depending on the kinds of actions needed to return a facility to compliance. The five year range was between $1,045,518 (2006) to $259,770,569 (2007), with an average of $75,000,778. The 2007 total was largely due to three cases, which together accounted for 94% of the overall total.

Supplemental Environmental Projects (SEPs)

EPA also encourages violators to agree to undertake Supplemental Environmental Projects (SEPs) to settle enforcement actions. SEPs are environmentally beneficial projects that a violator volunteers to perform as part of a settlement in addition to actions required to correct the violations. SEPs are beneficial to human health or the environment as well as to the communities where the harm occurred. A violator's commitment to perform a SEP may result in mitigation of the penalties assessed by EPA in return for environmental improvements going directly to the community. Like penalties, SEPs can vary greatly from year to year.

EPA and federal facilities did not agree to any SEPs in 2005, but did agree to perform SEPs valued at $145,767 in 2006. A total of three SEPs were finalized in 2007 with an overall value of $441,164. One of the SEPs is from the Navy for improving its Underground Storage Tank leak detection at a facility. The other two SEPs are from the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) and each of the two is targeted towards enhancing the VA's hazardous material and waste management programs.

CLEANING UP CONTAMINATION

EPA is responsible under law and Presidential Executive Order for overseeing cleanup of contamination at federal facilities NPL sites. EPA's goal is to ensure the cleanups are implemented properly and protective of human health and the environment. Generally, these cleanups are governed by the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA). EPA must oversee a federal cleanup program which can cost as much as $10 billion a year at federal energy and military facilities alone.

In 2006, federal facilities committed to cleanup more than 850 million cubic yards of contaminated water and over 2.6 million cubic yards of contaminated soil. In 2007, they committed to cleanup 292 million cubic yards of water and 66 million cubic yards of soil. These totals account for 65% of the total volumes of soil and water to be cleaned up due to EPA's overall CERCLA enforcement program in 2006 and approximately 25% in 2007. In 2006, the value of this cleanup work was estimated to be over $125 million and $281 million in 2007.<sup>8,9</sup>

There are over 150 "final" federal facility sites on the CERCLA National Priority List (NPL).<sup>10</sup> CERCLA requires EPA and the federal agency that owns or operates sites on this list to enter into enforceable agreements governing the cleanup and laying out each party's responsibilities, and most federal facility

<http://www.epa.gov/swerffir/ff/nplbracsites.htm>

NPL sites have such agreements in place. In 2005 thru 2007, EPA signed agreements covering nine of these sites.

However, as of July 2008, 13 additional sites (including a private site with a federal component) require such agreements to be in place. Getting agreements in place for cleanups at these remaining sites are a high priority for EPA.

Issuing Imminent and Substantial Endangerment Unilateral Orders

EPA issued unilateral administrative orders under RCRA and SDWA at three of these sites to address circumstances which may present an imminent and substantial endangerment to the public and compel their timely and safe cleanup. Orders were issued in 2007 to the Air Force at McGuire Air Force Base (NJ) and Air Force Plant #44 (AZ). A similar order was issued to the Army at Fort Meade (MD).

In addition to negotiating new agreements, EPA oversees cleanups being conducted under agreements signed in prior years. EPA aims to ensure that these cleanups are done timely and in ways that are protective of the environment and of public health.

COMPLIANCE MONITORING

Most environmental programs rely on some form of inspection as the principal tool for determining compliance. The level of effort associated with these inspections varies depending on the specific requirements addressed, the size and complexity of the facility's operations and the type and amount of data required to assess compliance. EPA's regional offices and their state counterparts consult with each other to efficiently plan and carry out inspections and monitoring programs. Inspections are commonly targeted toward facilities suspected of violating environmental laws and regulations.

EPA And State Inspections

Some environmental programs, such as the NPDES program, require facilities to submit reports to EPA and states on their operations and compliance status. These reports are an important tool EPA and states use to monitor environmental compliance. There are civil and criminal penalties for not filing these reports. The numbers of EPA and state inspections from 1993 to 2007 are shown below.

Note that this information represents the number of inspections, not the number of inspected federal facilities. A facility may be inspected multiple times, or not at all, during a year.

EPA uses the Integrated Compliance Information System (ICIS), as well as other databases, to track the number of inspections, but these databases may not contain all inspections completed by EPA and state agencies. Details on these systems are in the Appendix III.

Beginning with the 2007 numbers, the federal facilities office made several important changes in how it counts inspections, and used another way to identify inspected federal facilities. Overall, this resulted in a large “artificial” increase in the number of EPA and state inspections at federal facilities between 2007 and prior years. This is why the 2007 inspection numbers are presented in Figure 8 showing both the “unadjusted” (inspection totals using new methodology) and the “adjusted” (inspection totals consistent with methodology from prior years).

After isolating for changes in methodology and adjusting the 2007 numbers to match prior year methodology, the number of inspections for states would have risen slightly while EPA inspections would have decreased slightly.

Multimedia Inspections

Most inspections by EPA and states focus on compliance with one environmental law or regulatory program. However, some inspections cover a number of environmental programs.

EPA believes that multimedia inspections conducted by teams of expert inspectors can have a significant positive impact. The inspectors can focus on compliance at the whole facility, and the facility gets a better picture of this overall compliance posture than it would get from a single media inspection. EPA’s regional offices coordinate these inspections with state environmental agencies which may join EPA in conducting the inspections

EPA’s Compliance Incentives Policy

EPA provides several major incentives for regulated entities to voluntarily come into compliance with federal environmental laws and regulations. Regulated entities that voluntarily discover, promptly disclose to EPA, expeditiously correct, and prevent recurrence of future environmental violations can take advantage of these incentives which can include a significant penalty reduction.

EPA has outlined the necessary conditions for these incentives in the policy document “Incentives for Self-Policing: Discovery, Disclosure, Correction and Prevention of Violations,”

IMPROVING ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY WITHIN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

Increasingly, regulated facilities, both public and private, are focusing not just on operating in compliance with regulations, but operating in ways that are environmentally sustainable. This requires looking at activities that may not be regulated by law but which impact the environment. For example, buildings can be built and renovated in environmentally sensitive ways, such as with materials produced from renewable sources and using native plants for landscaping to reduce the need for irrigation, pesticides and herbicides. Environmental staff and managers in federal agencies across the country are working on making their facilities and operations sustainable over the long-term.

Environmental Management Systems and Sustainability

An Environmental Management System (EMS) is a tool for helping organizations reduce their environmental impacts while increasing operating efficiency through systematic management of their environmental matters. It involves a continuous cycle of planning, implementing, reviewing and improving processes and actions that an organization undertakes to meet its business and environmental goals. Presidential Executive Order 13148 (April 21, 2000), *Greening the Government through Leadership in Environmental Management*, required that EMSs be implemented at all appropriate federal facilities by the end of 2005.

By the close of 2007, 1,743 facilities from 18 federal departments/independent agencies had either implemented or initiated implementation of an EMS. More than half of these facilities had in place all procedures necessary to fully implement their EMS, well over one-third had declared successful conformance to the EMS goals established by a Presidential Executive Order, and 52 facilities had successfully achieved registration under the ISO 14001 EMS standard.

The deployment of EMSs across the federal community also has resulted in common metrics for measuring the progress and impact of EMS implementation. Beginning in 2006, all of the more than 1700 federal facilities that have implemented an EMS reported both their progress towards recognized milestones in EMS development, implementation, and maintenance and the impact that EMS implementation has had on a variety of indicators designed to determine EMS effectiveness and performance. Of the 17 Departments/Agencies completing the 2007 reporting cycle, five (NASA, Treasury, DOE, EPA, and Tennessee Valley Authority) achieved the highest or “green” standard.

Collection and review of this information will not only provide an indication of how well EMS implementation is progressing in the federal government, but will also result in information on where implementing facilities have focused their environmental improvement efforts within day-to-day operations. The metrics will remain the same through 2008 and will allow facilities and agencies to benchmark both internally over time and externally across the entire federal community.

ASSISTING FEDERAL FACILITIES TO OPERATE IN COMPLIANCE

In order to improve compliance with environmental laws and regulations, EPA gives various kinds of technical assistance to federal facilities to help them better understand and comply with the environmental laws and regulations that apply to them. Over the last several years, the federal facility sector has been a primary beneficiary of EPA assistance work.

This outreach comes in many forms. Most common are:

- Live workshops and training classes,
- Responding to inquiries from federal facility staff and managers via hotlines, telephone or email,
- Onsite assistance by EPA experts,
- Developing and publishing compliance guides, especially ones to help federal facilities improve their environmental management systems and tying their EMSs to compliance requirements, and
- Providing online assistance on regulatory and Executive Order requirements. This is increasingly done via FedCenter, the environmental stewardship and compliance assistance center just for federal facilities.

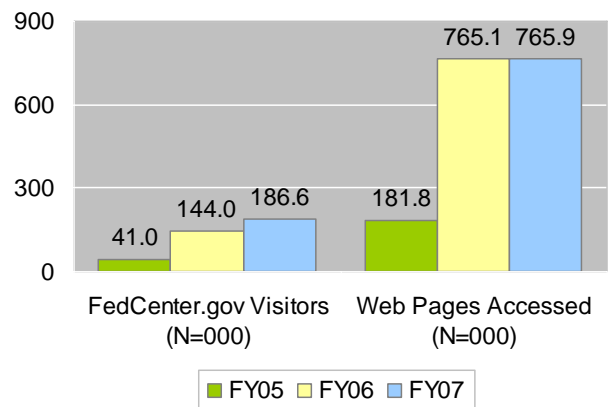

In 2005, 2006 and 2007, EPA expanded its assistance to other federal agencies, primarily through expansion of FedCenter.gov, the internet-based compliance assistance and environmental stewardship center just for federal agencies (www.fedcenter.gov). FedCenter's goal is to serve the varied needs of all federal agencies-and not just with compliance assistance, but with information on becoming better environmental stewards and going "beyond compliance." FedCenter collects the best technical materials available throughout the federal government for all users to access.

FedCenter helped federal agencies meet important statutory and Administration mandates through streamlining reporting requirements. It created a process for federal facilities to report the compliance status of all their underground storage tanks (required by the Energy Policy Act of 2005) and to report progress in implementing environmental management systems (required under Executive Order 131458). FedCenter saw its support expand through 2007 with the Departments of Energy, Veterans Affairs, Health and Human Services and Homeland Security providing financial support and substantive content to the center. This collective approach involving various federal agencies helps FedCenter serve the needs of many agencies which have widely different missions and responsibilities.

APPENDIX III - SOURCES AND SUITABILITY OF ENVIRONMENTAL INFORMATION

The information contained in this report is drawn from several different sources including EPA's national databases and manually reported data submitted each year from the Regions to EPA Headquarters. Each year EPA's Office of Enforcement and Compliance Assurance (OECA) provides an enforcement and compliance reporting plan memorandum to EPA Headquarters and Regional personnel that establishes the process and deadlines for reporting, reviewing and certifying information for enforcement, compliance activities and results for each fiscal year.

In addition, the Assistant Administrator for OECA also issues the National Program Managers (NPM) Guidance which outlines OECA's core program activities and their associated commitments as well as specific guidance on data quality and reporting.<sup>11</sup> Both the reporting plan memorandum and the NPM Guidance instruct and direct EPA personnel to report required information into EPA-designated databases-of-record or into designated workbooks to ensure enforcement and compliance monitoring data are completely and accurately reported. The data presented in this document are obtained from the databases-of-record and workbooks as designated by the NPM Guidance and the reporting plan memorandum. The data-source is cited for each table and exhibit displayed in this report.

Between FY2005-FY2007, permit information, inspections and SNC records were entered into different databases of records according to program. These databases include:

- RCRAInfo: Allows cradle-to-grave waste tracking specific to the regulated universe of RCRA hazardous waste handlers.
- PCS: The Permit Compliance System tracks EPA regional and state compliance and enforcement data for the NPDES program under the CWA.
- AIRS/AFS: The Aerometric Information Retrieval System/AIRS Facility Subsystem manages aerometric compliance data on point sources tracked by EPA, state, and local governments in accordance with the CAA.
- SDWIS: The Safe Drinking Water Information System is a national database that tracks public water supply system compliance and enforcement data collected by EPA, Regions, and States under the PWSS program of the SDWA.

The Integrated Data for Enforcement Analysis (IDEA) system provides access to thousands of data records from information systems managed by EPA program offices. IDEA contains a comprehensive historical profile of inspections, enforcement actions, penalties assessed, toxic chemicals released, and emergency hazardous spills for more than one million EPA-regulated facilities. This single point of access provides information from the Agency's Air, Water, Hazardous Waste, and Toxic Chemical Release Inventory. The IDEA system is operated by OECA and integrates facility data from the program specific databases listed above.

<http://www.epa.gov/ocfo/npmguidance/index.htm>

EPA's Online Tracking Information System (OTIS) is a set of web tools developed by OECA for use by federal, state, tribal and local government agencies. OTIS allows access to a wide range of IDEA data that sends queries to the IDEA system. OECA has established a publicly available version of OTIS (Environmental Compliance History On-line or ECHO).

EPA's Integrated Compliance Information System (ICIS) is an internet application designed to facilitate the integration of enforcement and compliance programs across EPA's media programs. ICIS is the database-of-record for federal enforcement actions and provided the enforcement action information used in this report. ICIS is not available to the public and does not include state enforcement actions.

Notes:

1. Includes federally reportable active federal facilities with a qualifying inspection in FY07 that were in SNC. CAA facilities included are: majors, synthetic minors, and federally-reportable minors.

-Qualifying CAA inspections: EPA conducted FCE/On-Site (FE), EPA conducted FCE/Off-Site (FZ), State conducted FCE/On-Site (FS), State conducted FCE/Off-Site (FF).

-Violation codes that trigger CAA HPV status are: Unaddressed, Shared Lead (EPA and state) (B), Addressed, Shared Lead (EPA and state) (C), Unaddressed, EPA Lead (E), Addressed, EPA Lead (F), Unaddressed, State Lead (S), Addressed, State Lead (T), Unaddressed, Lead Undetermined (X).

2. For FY07, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This differs from FY06, where a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems alone.

3. Includes SNCs triggered by EPA and state inspections.

"4. The non-SNC rates in this report represent the conditions found at inspected facilities or at facilities that submitted compliance reports to EPA and states. These non-SNC rates may not be reflective of the overall compliance rates for all federal facilities. In fact, non-SNC rates may both over-represent and under-represent the level of compliance in the overall universe.

-First, EPA and states target inspections toward facilities suspected of having compliance problems; few inspections are done randomly. To the extent that non-SNC rates are based on inspections at facilities thought to have compliance problems (and most are), they may not reflect compliance at all federal facilities. Thus, non-SNC rates probably over-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.

-Second, non-SNC rates only reflect the percentage of facilities that do not have "significant" violations; they do not reflect all violations. A facility may have numerous violations but none of them are classified as significant. Thus, non-SNC rates probably under-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe."

Notes:

1. Includes active federal facilities with a NPDES major permit that were in SNC.

Violation codes that trigger CWA SNC status are: DMR Non-receipt (D), Effluent Monthly (E), Compliance Schedule Violations (S), Compliance Schedule Non-receipt (T), Effluent Non-monthly (X)

2. For FY07, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This differs from FY06, where a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems alone. It should be noted that some records within these tables may not actually comport to “Federal Facilities”. They represent facilities flagged as federal by EPA Regions. Due to practical considerations FFEO’s quality review did not extend itself to certifying individual records as representing “Federal Facilities”.

3. Includes SNCs triggered by EPA and state inspections.

4. The non-SNC rates in this report represent the conditions found at inspected facilities or at facilities that submitted compliance reports to EPA and states. These non-SNC rates may not be reflective of the overall compliance rates for all federal facilities. In fact, non-SNC rates may both over-represent and under-represent the level of compliance in the overall universe.

-First, EPA and states target inspections toward facilities suspected of having compliance problems; few inspections are done randomly. To the extent that non-SNC rates are based on inspections at facilities thought to have compliance problems (and most are), they may not reflect compliance at all federal facilities. Thus, non-SNC rates probably over-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.

-Second, non-SNC rates only reflect the percentage of facilities that do not have “significant” violations; they do not reflect all violations. A facility may have numerous violations but none of them are classified as significant. Thus, non-SNC rates probably under-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.

Notes:

1. Includes federally reportable active federal facilities with a qualifying inspection in FY07 that were in SNC. RCRA handlers included are: TSDFs, LQGs, SQGs, CESQGs, and active other.

"Qualifying RCRA inspections:

- corrective action compliance evaluation,
- case development inspection,
- compliance evaluation inspection,
- compliance schedule evaluation,
- focused compliance,
- financial record review,
- groundwater monitoring evaluation,

- non-financial record review, and
- operation and maintenance inspection.

This differs from FY06, which considered the following inspections in addition to those italicized above:

- corrective action oversight,
- compliance (GW) monitoring evaluation,
- CME without substantial sampling,
- RCRA CEI performed w/screening checklist,
- comprehensive & coordinated inspt W/CEI,
- detailed multimedia inspection W/CEI,
- other evaluation,
- sampling inspection."

Violation codes that trigger RCRA SNC status are:

Facility is a Land Disposal facility (LDF) with an unresolved groundwater, financial responsibility, or closure/post closure violation determined between 10/01/86 and 9/30/88 (1A),

Facility is a LDF or Treatment/Storage facility (TSF) with an unresolved compliance schedule violation determined between 10/01/86 and 9/30/88 (1B),

Facility is a LDF or TSF with an unresolved significant violation determined between 10/01/88 and 9/30/90 (2),

Facility has an unresolved significant violation determined between 10/01/90 and 9/30/96 (3),

Facility has at least one unresolved violation determined between 10/01/96 and 3/31/97, and was not in compliance with its compliance schedule at the end of the second quarter FY '97 (4A),

Facility has an unresolved significant violation determined between 10/01/96 and 3/31/97 (4B),

Facility has a significant violation determined after 4/01/97, OR the facility has at least one unresolved violation and is not in compliance with its compliance schedule at the end of the second quarter FY '97 (5).

2. For FY07, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This differs from FY06, where a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems alone. It should be noted that some records within these tables may not actually comport to "Federal Facilities". They represent facilities flagged as federal by EPA Regions. Due to practical considerations FFEO's quality review did not extend itself to certifying individual records as representing "Federal Facilities".

3. Includes SNCs triggered by EPA and state inspections.

4. The non-SNC rates in this report represent the conditions found at inspected facilities or at facilities that submitted compliance reports to EPA and states. These non-SNC rates may not be reflective of the overall compliance rates for all federal facilities. In fact, non-SNC rates may both over-represent and under-represent the level of compliance in the overall universe.

-First, EPA and states target inspections toward facilities suspected of having compliance problems; few inspections are done randomly. To the extent that non-SNC rates are based on inspections at facilities thought to have compliance problems (and most are), they may not reflect compliance at all federal facilities. Thus, non-SNC rates probably over-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.

-Second, non-SNC rates only reflect the percentage of facilities that do not have “significant” violations; they do not reflect all violations. A facility may have numerous violations but none of them are classified as significant. Thus, non-SNC rates probably under-represent the frequency of violations in the general universe.

RCRA Inspections

RCRA Other are those facilities not defined as TSDFs, LQGs, SQGs, or CESQGs. This includes "Transporters" and facilities without a designation.

Source: EPA's Integrated Database for Enforcement Analysis (IDEA), March 2008 refresh.

Notes:

1. All facilities are included when there was an inspection. This includes Transporters and facilities without a handler designation, as well as inactive (e.g., closed) facilities. It should be noted that information on non-federally reportable permit activity could be limited as states are not required to report such information to EPA. This method differs from FY06, which considered inspection activity only at active TSDFs, LQGs, SQGs, and CESQGs.

2. For FY07, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This differs from FY06, where a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems alone. It should be noted that some records within these tables may not actually comport to “Federal Facilities”. They represent facilities flagged as federal by EPA Regions. Due to practical considerations FFEO’s quality review did not extend itself to certifying individual records as representing “Federal Facilities”.

3. Included EPA and state inspections under RCRA are as follows: corrective action compliance evaluation, case development inspection, compliance evaluation inspection, compliance schedule evaluation, focused compliance, financial record review, groundwater monitoring evaluation, non-financial record review, and operation and maintenance inspection. This differs from FY06, which considered the following inspections in addition to those italicized above: corrective action oversight, compliance (GW) monitoring evaluation, CME without substantial sampling, RCRA CEI performed w/screening checklist, comprehensive & coordinated inspection W/CEI, detailed multimedia inspection W/CEI, other evaluation, sampling inspection.

CWA Inspections

Source: EPA's Integrated Database for Enforcement Analysis (IDEA), March 2008 refresh.

Notes:

1. All facilities are included when there was an inspection. This includes facilities with a minor NPDES permit. It should be noted that information on minor permit activity could be limited as states are not required to report such information to EPA. This method differs from FY06, which considered inspection activity only at active facilities with a major NPDES.

2. For FY07, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This differs from FY06, where a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems alone. It should be noted that some records within these tables may not actually comport to “Federal Facilities”. They represent facilities flagged as federal by EPA Regions. Due to practical considerations FFEO’s quality review did not extend itself to certifying individual records as representing “Federal Facilities”.

3. Included EPA and state inspections under CWA are as follows: audit, biomonitoring, diagnostic, evaluation, follow-up, oversight, reconnaissance with sampling, reconnaissance without sampling, sampling, and toxics. This differs from FY06, which included all inspections.

CFA = Civilian Federal Agencies

DOD = Department of Defense

CAA Inspections

For FY07, the number of CAA inspections reflects the number of full compliance evaluations. This differs from FY06, which counted the number of CAA inspections by program type at a facility (e.g., MACT, Title V, SIP) within each full compliance evaluation.

Source: EPA's Integrated Database for Enforcement Analysis (IDEA), March 2008 refresh.

Notes:

1. All facilities are included when there was an inspection. This includes non-federally reportable facilities. It should be noted that information on non-federally reportable facilities could be limited as states are not required to report such information to EPA. This method differs from FY06, which considered inspection activity only at active federally reportable facilities.

2. For FY07, a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems (e.g., AFS, RCRA) and FRS. This differs from FY06, where a federal facility was included based on flags contained within the legacy systems alone. Due to practical considerations FFEO's quality review did not extend itself to certifying individual records as representing "Federal Facilities".

3. Included EPA and state inspections under CAA are as follows: EPA conducted FCE/On-Site (FE), EPA conducted FCE/Off-Site (FZ), State conducted FCE/On-Site (FS), State conducted FCE/Off-Site (FF).

Source: EPA's Integrated Database for Enforcement Analysis (IDEA), November refresh 2006.

RCRA Notes:

1. Includes active facilities with a TSDF, LQG, SQG, or CESQG permit.
2. Includes qualifying EPA- and State-lead inspections conducted in FY2006.

CWA Notes:

1. Includes active major NPDES permits.
2. Includes qualifying EPA- and State-lead inspections conducted in FY2006.
- "3. The number of CWA inspections conducted at federal facilities in FY06 could be under-reported, as several states no longer submit these data to PCS.

Due to EPA's system modernization efforts, PCS is being gradually phased out and replaced by a modernized system, ICIS-NPDES. Thus far, 26 states/territories/tribes have begun using ICIS-NPDES, and are no longer entering data into PCS. The data for these states has been ""frozen"" in IDEA and has not been updated since June/August of 2006. Currently, IDEA is being re-designed to incorporate ICIS-NPDES data. It is anticipated that this re-design will be complete by March and the CWA data will become available through IDEA by the March/April refresh.

No new CWA inspection data as of 06/06/2006 for the following: Alaska, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Idaho, Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Puerto Rico, Rhode Island, Utah, and Virgin Islands.

No new CWA inspection data as of 08/09/2006 for the following: American Samoa, Connecticut, Georgia, Guam, Montana, Navajo Nation, Nebraska, New York, Nevada, Northern Mariana Islands/Mariana Islands, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and Trust Territory. "

CAA Notes:

1. Includes federally reportable air IDs (i.e., major, synthetic minor, and federally reportable minor).
2. Includes qualifying EPA- and State-lead inspections conducted in FY2006.
