In your joint letter of June 15, 1993, you asked us to provide you by June 25, 1993, with certain information on the top 500 grazing permits, as measured by the allowable level of livestock grazing, for both the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and the Department of Agriculture's Forest Service. As requested, this letter and its three enclosures provide the names, addresses, phone numbers, and states of the permit holders as well as the number of animal units associated with each permit.

Because of the time constraint, we limited our efforts to gathering readily available information. Therefore, the information provided in the enclosures is not complete. For example, we could not identify the addresses and phone numbers of about 50 holders of the top 500 permits addressed in our June 1992 report on Rangeland Management: Profile of the Bureau of Land Management's Grazing Allotments and Permits (GAO/RCED-92-213FS). Similarly, we could not identify the addresses of a few of the holders of the top 500 permits addressed in our April 1993 report on Rangeland Management: Profile of the Forest Service's Grazing Allotments and Permittees (GAO/RCED-93-141FS). The Forest Service's data do not include the permit holders' phone numbers. As agreed with your offices, we will contact the requisite Forest Service and BLM field offices and provide you with complete information on the 1,000 permits in the near future.

Enclosure 1 provides the available information for the top 500 permits at BLM. Enclosure 2 provides the available

GAO/RCED-93-190R Large Grazing Permits

information for the top 500 permits at the Forest Service by state, as identified by the permit holders' mailing addresses. Enclosure 3 provides the same information by Forest Service Regional Office, which is how the Forest Service organizes its data, since some forests are located in more than one state.

The information provided must be qualified in two important ways. First, the names, addresses, and phone numbers are those identified on the permits and, according to the agencies, may not necessarily correspond to those of the actual livestock operators. Second, some permittees hold more than one BLM and/or Forest Service permit and therefore appear in the enclosures more than once. Conversely, a permit held by a grazing association may give many operators the authority to graze livestock on federal lands. Therefore, the number of operators associated with the top 500 permits in each agency may be smaller or larger than 500. In addition, a livestock operator who does not hold one of the top 500 permits may hold several smaller grazing permits that, in aggregate, allow for a level of grazing greater than that of some of the livestock operators included among the holders of the 500 permits.

The level of grazing allowed under each permit is measured in animal unit months (AUM) at BLM and in animal months (AM) at the Forest Service. An AUM is defined as the amount of forage required to sustain one mature cow or equivalent, such as a horse or five sheep for 1 month. An AM is defined as 1 month's use and occupancy of the range by one weaned or adult cow with or without calf; by a bull, steer, heifer, horse, burro or mule; or by five sheep or goats. AUMs and AMs are similar measurements of livestock grazing levels.

If you have any questions about this information, please contact me at (202) 512-7756, Mr. Charles Cotton at (202) 512-5281, or Ms. Patricia Gleason at (202) 634-7356.
