

Help Wanted

As you've seen, BLM has huge areas of land to protect and many resources on that land to care for. Experts in many different resources work for BLM. There are experts in minerals, animals, plants, recreation, and many other fields. By working together, BLM employees can do what's best to protect public lands now and in the future.

With so much land to manage, it's a big job. And BLM doesn't just need experts to do it. All sorts of people can help. As you've seen, people create some of the problems that exist on BLM lands, and people can also help solve them. In other words, BLM needs YOU! After all, as you've learned, public lands belong to all Americans, and that means everyone can help care for them.

