Shuster Tours MobilVox Facility in Indiana

Washington, DC– On Wednesday Congressman Bill Shuster visited MobilVox’s Indiana, PA office and received a briefing on the firm’s capabilities and saw a demonstration of their text analytics, knowledge management applications and enterprise search solutions.

The Congressman was impressed by the level of technology developed in Indiana, PA and the ability to keep high-tech jobs in the area. MobilVox is a dynamic and innovative software engineering firm with great expertise in mining unstructured data such as text, voice and video.

MobilVox President and CEO, Enrique Lenz, stated, “It’s always an honor to have someone of Congressman Shuster’s stature pay a visit to our regional office and see some of the important technologies and products developed by our outstanding software engineers. Since our Indiana office opened several years ago our firm has engineered a series of advanced algorithms to process knowledge, extract entities and detect trends. Our work with the Department of Defense has enabled U.S. military explosive, ordnance and disposal personnel to more efficiently, effectively and safely perform dangerous battlefield missions and protect our nation’s seaports, harbors, and sea-lanes. I’m very proud to showcase the important security work our staff has done, and will be doing in the future, for our nation.”
