As part of a series of orientations to libraries and information centers, FLICC is offering an opportunity for federal librarians to become acquainted with the programs and services of the Brookings Institution Library.

Resembling both a small academic library and a larger special library, the Brookings Institution Library provides information and knowledge resources designed to meet the unique needs of the Brookings community. Resource subject areas include foreign policy, economics, governance, and metropolitan policy. This program will feature a discussion of the Library's research services, electronic and print collections and processes, as well as a tour of the facilities.
