2008-D034		Revision to DFARS definition of "UCA" to include change orders	Expands the definition of the term "contract action." Presently, DFARS 217.7401 states that "contract action" is "an action which results in a contract" and "does not include change orders, administrative changes, funding modifications, or other contract modification that are within the scope and under the terms of the contract, e.g. engineering change proposals, value engineering change proposals, and over and above work requests as described in Subpart 217.77." It is recognized that a significant amount of the undefinitized contract actions issued throughout the Department are issued as change orders or other unpriced modifications to existing contracts. In order to provide full accountability and management oversight of this contracting approach, the definition of UCA will be broadened. In March of 1987, the DAR Council issued a report for DAR case 86-160. That case created the definition of "contract action" that stands today in DFARS 217. The committee report from March 23, 1987 says, "It is noted that the definition of a UCA differs from the statutory provision in that the wording 'new procurement' has been deleted. The Committee believes that while the strict requirements of the law do not apply to UCAs for other than new procurement, there are in fact UCAs which are other than new procurement and which require special attention to which the policy should apply."	10/10/2008, DARC opened case, proposed DFARS rule. 2008-D020		Contractor Use of DLA as a Source of Supply (Part 251)	Under the guidelines set forth in Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) 51.1, Contractor Use of Government Supply Sources, contracting officers do not have the flexibility to authorize contractors to use Government supply sources in the performance of other than cost-reimbursement Government contracts, unless a substantial dollar portion of the contractor's contracts are of a Government cost-reimbursement nature. This restriction limits the ability of the Military Services to effectively use DLA as a source of supply for spare parts and may result in the Services paying higher prices for many of the spare parts required for their missions.	08/12/2008, DARC opened case, proposed DFARS rule.
