HD receiver FAQs

Q: Why must I now lease an HD receiver from Cox NVA rather than purchase my own?

A: Cox NVA responded to customer feedback, which indicated that HD subscribers prefer the convenience of leasing an HD receiver monthly to purchasing one at a substantial expense. Since new Cox HD customers must now lease their HD receiver as of September 22, 2003 third party retailers such as Best Buy have chosen to no longer sell the boxes. If you already own an HD receiver, you may continue to use it.

Q: Can I install my HD receiver myself?

A: Yes, self-installation instructions are included in the HDTV Kit that is provided with the HD receiver.

Q: What if my HD receiver stops working?

A: Please contact our customer care department at 703.378.8422 for assistance.

Q: Am I required to subscribe to other Cox services in order to receive HD programming?

A: High-Definition Service from Cox requires a $9.99/mo Digital HD receiver. Cox also offers a combination HD/DVR Digital receiver for $9.99/mo, with a monthly DVR service fee of $9.99 required (total of $19.98/mo) A minimum subscription of Cox Basic Service and a Cox Digital HD receiver is required to receive Cox Broadcast HD channels (NBC HD, FOX HD, ABC HD, PBS HD, CBS HD and WDCW HD). Cox Expanded Service, Cox Digital Gateway and a Cox Digital HD receiver are required to receive iNHD1, iNHD2, ESPN HD, Discovery HD Theatre, TNT HD, MHD and Universal HD channels. If you currently subscribe to Cox Digital HBO, Showtime, or Starz you will receive HBO HD, Showtime HD, or Starz HD at not extra charge! Cox Digital HD receiver is required.

Cox Basic service required for local HD channels. Cox Digital Cable and Expanded required for expanded HD channels. Digital Cable and paid subscription to Digital HBO, Starz or Showtime required for HBO HD, Starz HD, or Showtime HD. An HDTV receiver or CableCard and an HDTV set required.

What is High-Definition Television (HDTV)?

High-definition television (HDTV) is a high resolution, digital wide-screen TV format, featuring twice the color resolution and a picture that's six times sharper than a traditional analog TV set. HD also delivers enhanced audio. Note: Although HDTV comes in wide-screen format, not all wide-screen broadcast is high definition. For instance, although many DVDs will play in a wide-screen format, they're not necessarily high definition. Also, not all High-Definition televisions are wide-screen.

Top

What is the difference between DTV, HDTV, and SDTV?

DTV is a general reference to Digital Television and can be either HDTV (High Definition) or SDTV (Standard Definition). HDTV can broadcast at resolutions typically as high as 1920 by 1080 pixels, whereas the resolution of SDTV/EDTV broadcasts (also known as Enhanced Definition) are typically only as high as 640 by 480. Note: standard analog TVs are unable to receive DTV signals (neither HD or Standard).

Top

Do I need another (separate) receiver to get HD?

You will need a Cox High-Definition receiver, a Cox HD-DVR receiver, or a television which is CableCARD™\*\* ready.

Top

What do I need to receive Cox High-Definition service?

1. A compatible HDTV set and a Cox High-Definition receiver or
2. A compatible HDTV set and a Cox DVR/HD receiver or
3. A CableCARD™ ready television and a Cox CableCARD

Please Note:

- HDTV models that are not compatible on our

- HDTV models that are not compatible on our system are:
  - Hitachi Model 61HDX98V0J02984 (61" HDTV)
  - Mitsubishi TV with RGB inputs (this HDTV requires an adapter that is available through Mitsubishi directly).
- Your HDTV must support 720p/1080i resolution (this information can be found in your HDTV manual)
- Your HDTV must have YpbPR inputs and you will need the wires for those inputs. We offer an HD Installation Kit that can be purchased online for $29.95 which includes all that you need to hook up your HDTV. You can also purchase the required cables and adapters at a retail outlet.

Top

What are HBO and Showtime HD?

These are separate channel offerings providing programming in HD format. For more information about HD programming visit www.hbo.com or <http://www.sho.com>.

Top

Can I view tapes/DVDs with a VCR or DVD player on my HDTV?

Most HDTV sets allow for VCR & DVD connections. Content quality will be limited by the capabilities of your VCR/DVD. Please consult your VCR/DVD owner's manual for any limitations.

Top

Why should I subscribe to Cox High-Definition Service vs. satellite HDTV?

- Currently Cox offers two local programming High-Definition channels (CBS & PBS) and will offer more in the future. Satellite is unable to offer local broadcast content in HD format.
- With satellite, in addition to the HD programming subscription, you may be required to buy an HD receiver, possibly even a new dish. With High Definition Service by Cox, all you need is your HD programming subscription and rental of the HD receiver box. No need to purchase expensive technology that may soon be evolving.

Top

What equipment will I need to view HD programming?

An HDTV set and a special Cox Digital HDTV receiver are required. To work with our initial High-Definition offering, your HDTV set must have a YpbPr (red, green, blue) component input and must support 700p/1080i HD signals. Most new HDTV sets support the 720p/1080i format. Please refer to your owner's manual or the manufacturer's web site to determine if your HDTV supports 720p/1080i.

Top

What level of service do I need to receive local high-definition channels?

High-Definition Service from Cox requires a $9.95/mo. High-Definition receiver or a $9.95/mo. HD-DVR receiver and $4.95 monthly HD-DVR service fee.

- CBS HDTV* and PBS HD* require a minimum of Cox Limited Service and Cox Digital Gateway.
- A minimum of Cox Standard Cable and Cox Digital Gateway are required to receive iNDEMAND 1 (General Entertainment HD Network), iNDEMAND 2 (General Entertainment HD Network) and the Expanded HD Tier which includes ESPN HD, MHD, Discovery HD Theatre, TNT HD, and Universal HD channels.
- If you currently subscribe to HBO, Cinemax, or Showtime and Digital Gateway you will receive HBO HDTV, Cinemax HD, or Showtime HDTV for FREE.

Top

Is digital cable the same thing as HDTV? (High Definition Television)

Cox High-Definition Cable refers to a type of digital cable that is at a higher-resolution than Cox Digital Cable. In order to receive Cox High-Definition Cable, an "HDTV-capable" television set and a Cox Digital High-Definition receiver will be required.

Top

I keep hearing about 720p and 1080i signal formats. What is Cox going to support?
Cox High-Definition Cable will only work with high definition televisions capable of receiving the 720p/1080i format.

Top

How will high-definition programming look on my regular analog television?
Regular analog TV sets are not capable of displaying high definition programming.

Top

*CBS HD and PBS HD are not available in the areas of West Point, New Kent County, and King & Queen County.

**Must have a television which is CableCARD ready.

FAQ

Q: What is HDTV?

A: High-definition television is the newest technology advancement, bringing viewers superior picture and audio quality. Viewers will enjoy sharper pictures, crystal clear surround sound, vibrant colors, wider screen and five times the detail of standard television. With HDTV you'll create the ultimate home theater experience!

Q: How is HDTV different than digital?

A: Although Cable One Digital provides excellent pictures and sound, HDTV customers will notice an even sharper picture and improved sound. A television image is comprised of pixels or small adjacent dots on the screen. The smaller the pixel, the sharper the picture resolution. High-definition television can broadcast at resolutions as high as 2 million pixels, while the resolutions of digital broadcasts are in the 210,000 pixel range. The result is that you receive a picture that is at least 5 times sharper than standard TV broadcasts.

Q: What equipment do I need to receive HDTV?

A: You will need a high-definition television set, available from retailers, and an HDTV digital receiver that will be available through Cable One. The high-definition television set needs to accept a 1080i signal via Y, Pb and Pr connections.

Q: How much will HDTV cost?

A: In order to receive HDTV, you will need to be a Cable One Digital TV customer. New Digital customers who want HDTV will pay $19.95 per month to rent the digital receiver with the HDTV tuner.

Q: Will my old TV be obsolete?

A: No. However, it's not possible to see the upgraded HDTV picture or hear the enhanced sound quality on a non-HDTV television set. You'll only want to upgrade to HDTV if you have an HDTV set. In any event, your current cable programming choices will not be affected in any way.

Q: Does all TV programming come in HDTV?

A: HDTV is still a fairly new technology. Many programmers have not provided their signals in a HDTV format. Only programs filmed in HDTV or converted to HDTV will have the improved picture and sound quality.

Q: When will you add more programming?

A: We are constantly in contact with local broadcasters as well as cable programmers in order to provide you with the most HDTV programming available. As networks are added, we'll make announcements letting you know the networks that have been added to your HDTV lineup.

Q: How do I hook up my HDTV Receiver?

A: Connecting the HDTV Receiver is easy. Just refer to the instructions in this setup guide which explains how to connect the receiver to your TV and details the various outputs on the receiver.

Music

Q: Can I get more HDTV programming from a satellite?

A: Cable One plans to offer the HDTV signal of local broadcasters. Satellite providers can't do that because of technical restrictions. So you will have access to much more varied HDTV programming on Cable ONE Digital.

** While TWC has tried to select programming services for inclusion in the Family Choice tier that will be appropriate for general family audiences, individual views about such matters will vary. Also, TWC does not have direct control over the content of the programming services it carries. In addition, federal law requires that cable operators provide the Basic tier of service, which includes broadcast stations, public and leased access channels and other programming, to all customers. Because of these factors, TWC cannot guarantee that subscribers to the Family Choice tier will find all the programming they receive appropriate for their families at all times. In order to give parents additional control over the programming viewed in their homes, TWC also provides Family Choice customers set-top boxes that include TWC's Parental Controls feature. Basic Cable service and lease of a Digital set-top box required and are an additional charge. Standard Cable Service, Premium channels, On Demand services and some interactive services are not available with Family Choice. Other restrictions apply.
