I have some pictures of my parents and grandparents that I would love to have copied to include in a scrapbook for my mom's birthday. However, we don't know the name of the photographers who took them, so we can't copy them. These pictures were taken before I was born (42 years ago). It's impossible to track them down. They are probably not alive anymore! Please do something!!! It seems like 5 years would be a more realistic copyright time - or maybe we could just pay an extra fee to the photographer to retain the rights to make copies.
