

Sneden-Li sa-20050228100002

To: Julie L. Sigall
Associate Register for Policy & International Affairs

Date: 02/28/2005

From: Lisa Sneden

Comment:

My family dog I had had for over 10 years passed away. I was devastated. I purchased a beautiful frame to put her picture in I had done professionally at one of those charity animal photo days for charity. I went to Wal-mart and attempted to try my luck to blow up the picture. Busted! I got into contact with the person who originally had taken the photos. It had been exactly 10 years since the photo was taken. However even after that amount of time and the fact the dog was dead and after I explained why I wanted the phot I was not granted permission to reproduce the picture of my poor dead dog. He offered me the chance to buy a copy off of him but the price he wanted was OUTRAGOUS!! He knew my situation and took advantage of it for his personal gain because he knew my hands were tied. I walked away without purchasing his stupid overpriced reproduction and to this day (3 years later) that frame remains without a picture.