

Hello, I am writing in regards to the DVD DeCSS issue. The MPAA is defining the people who use the DeCSS program. This is absurd! The maker of the program himself made the program so he would be able to watch DVD movies on his computer, because he did not have Windows to watch it in. Is this fair? Must we all buy Windows if we want to watch DVD movies on our computers. It so insulting the way you automatically identify anyone who has used or downloaded the DeCSS program. It is scapegoating. May I remind you of a device called the VCR? Why isn't the video industry being crushed by people pirating VHS tapes? Please think things over before jumping to conclusions and pointing fingers.

Mr. Phractal
Blizzard Of Oz
mr_phractal@hotmail.com
1 908 789 4559