PREFACE

Presidential Vetoes, 1989–2000 is the supplement to *Presidential Vetoes, 1789–1988*¹ and provides histories for those Presidential vetoes occurring during the One Hundred First Congress through the One Hundred Sixth Congress, (January 3, 1989–January 20, 2000). The purpose of the two publications is to provide a comprehensive listing of the Presidential vetoes of legislation enacted by the Congress from the First Congress through the One Hundred Sixth Congress. They are also intended as an aid in the study of the relationship between the executive and legislative branches of the United States Government and of its system of checks and balances.

The veto power is established by the Constitution of the United States of America:

Every Bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it become a Law, be presented to the President of the United States; If he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his Objections to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the Objections at large on their Journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such Reconsideration two thirds of that House shall agree to pass the Bill, it shall be sent, together with the Objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two thirds of that House, it shall become a Law. But in all such Cases the Votes of both Houses shall be determined by Yeas and Nays, and the Names of the Persons voting for and against the Bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any Bill shall not be returned by the President within ten Days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a Law, in like Manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their Adjournment prevent its Return, in which Case it shall not be a Law. Every Order, Resolution, or Vote to which the Concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of Adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the Same shall take Effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the Rules and Limitations prescribed in the Case of a Bill. (Article I, Section 7, clauses 2 and 3)

For the purposes of this publication, the term “regular veto” is used to indicate the action of the President when he disapproves a bill or joint resolution and returns it with his objections to the chamber in which it originated. A “pocket veto” is the designation applied to a bill or joint resolution that failed to become law at the expiration of ten days because the President withheld his signature and the Congress had adjourned during that period in a manner to prevent its return.

The exercise of the President’s pocket veto authority during intra-session adjournments and recess periods has long been a controversial issue between the legislative and executive branches of government. In the Pocket Veto Case, 279 U.S. 655 (1929) (Item No. 1058), the Supreme Court held that the President might utilize the pocket veto power during either intra-session adjournments of the House and Senate during the same Congress or adjournments between sessions. However, in Wright v. U.S., 302 U.S. 583 (1938) (Item No. 1275), the Court modified this ruling in deciding that a recess within the same Congress by one House, with the other House remaining in session, would not “prevent” the President from returning a vetoed bill if prior arrangements for the receipt of the measure had been made with the House that went out of session. In Kennedy v. Sampson, 364 F.Supp. 1075 (D.D.C. 1973) (Item No. 2262), the U.S. District Court interpreted the pocket veto clause of the Constitution as having two purposes: to provide the President with adequate time to review a bill presented to him and, second, to give Congress sufficient opportunity to review the Chief Executive’s objections and to override them if so desired. The court further held that intra-session adjournments within the same Congress do not prevent the return of a disapproved bill to Congress, providing, as in the Wright decision, that appropriate provision has been made for receipt of the vetoed legislation. The Court of Appeals in 1974 unanimously affirmed that decision (511 F.2d 430 (1974)). In 1987, the case of Burke v. Barnes, 479 U.S. 361 (1987) (Item No. 2414), the Supreme Court declared the issue moot because the legislation in question had no effect after September 30, 1984. A 1981 pocket veto (Item No. 2394) is still pending before United States District Court for the Southern district of New York. The court actions involving the interpretation of pocket veto power are item numbers 1058, 1275, 2262, 2293, 2307, 2394 and 2414.²

The primary sources for this compilation were the Journal of the Senate and the Journal of the House of Representatives, the Congressional Record, Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents, and LIS, the Senate legislative information system. Comprehensive studies of the presidential veto power, including its historical background, are contained in Charles

Spitzer's The Presidential Veto: Touchstone of the American Presidency.⁶ Academic and legal journals include contributions by Carl McGowan,⁷ John Houston Pope,⁸ Albert C. Ringelstein,⁹ and Richard A. Watson.¹⁰

Every veto was thoroughly researched to assure accuracy; they are arranged by Congress with Senate legislation preceding House of Representatives legislation. Each veto has been assigned an item number to facilitate locating any desired veto. References in the index are to these item numbers. The references to the Congressional Record are made to page numbers of the permanent edition. In those cases where the permanent edition had not yet been printed, page numbers are to the daily editions; the page numbers of the Senate proceedings are preceded by the letter "S" and those of the House proceedings are preceded by the letter "H." Finally, a numerical summary of the bills vetoed by each President is presented in Table 1 on page viii. This tabulation includes the number of regular vetoes and pocket vetoes of all measures sent to the President for signature during each administration; it also presents the number of vetoes overridden.

This supplement was prepared by members of the United States Senate Library under the direction of Gregory C. Harness, Senate Librarian.

¹The vetoes enumerated in this table cover the period of time from the First Congress through the One Hundred Sixth Congress. Facts and citations pertaining to vetoes made during the first 100 Congresses can be found in Presidential Vetoes, 1789–1988.

²Item No. 2414 is counted as a pocket veto; see Presidential Vetoes, 1789–1988, p. 496.

³President George H. W. Bush attempted to pocket veto two bills during intra-session recess periods. Congress considered the two bills enacted into law because of the President's failure to return the legislation. The bills are not counted in this table, but their unique histories are noted on pages 6 and 12, infra.

⁴The total number of vetoes tabulated is 2,550. This figure does not correspond to the total number of vetoes in the text (which is 2,551), because a pocket veto of President Grant is uncounted in this table on the grounds that the bill was not placed before him for signature. (See Item 182, Presidential Vetoes, 1789–1988, p. 56.)

GEORGE H. W. BUSH

President George H. W. Bush vetoed forty-four bills, of which twenty-nine were regular vetoes and fifteen were pocket vetoes. One was overridden (Item No. 2496).¹

One Hundred First Congress, First Session
REGULAR VETOES*2471 S.J. Res. 113.

To prohibit the export of technology, defense articles, and defense services to codevelop or coproduce the FS-X aircraft with Japan.

Vetoed on July 31, 1989. The veto message was laid before the Senate and printed as S. Doc. 101-15. (135 Cong. Rec. 16914).

The Senate sustained the veto on September 13, 1989 by a vote of 66 yeas to 34 nays. (135 Cong. Rec. 20284).

Veto sustained.

2472 H.R. 2.

To amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to restore the minimum wage to a fair and equitable rate.

Vetoed on June 13, 1989. The veto message was laid before the House and printed as H. Doc. 101-71. (135 Cong. Rec. 11578-9).

The House sustained the veto on June 14, 1989 by a vote of 247 yeas to 178 nays. (135 Cong. Rec. 11776-7).

Veto sustained.

(Similar provisions enacted in 101 Stat. 1755, Public Law 104-188).

¹Two bills became law because of the President's failure to return the legislation during recess periods. These bills are not counted in the total of Table 1 on page ix, supra, but their unique histories are noted on pages 6 and 13, infra.

2473 H.R. 1231.

To establish a commission to investigate and report respecting the dispute between Eastern Airlines and its collective bargaining units.

Vetoed on November 21, 1989. The veto message was laid before the House and printed as H. Doc. 101-116. (135 Cong. Rec. 31129).

The House sustained the veto on March 7, 1990 by a vote of 261 yeas to 160 nays. (136 Cong. Rec. 3632-3).

Veto sustained.

2474 H.R. 1487.

To authorize appropriations for fiscal years 1990 and 1991 for the Department of State.

Vetoed on November 21, 1989. The veto message was laid before the House and printed as H. Doc. 101-115. (135 Cong. Rec. 31128).

Veto unchallenged.

2475 H.R. 2712.

To facilitate the adjustment or change of status of Chinese nationals in the United States by waiving 2-year foreign residence requirement for "J" non-immigrants.

Vetoed on November 30, 1989. The veto message was laid before the House and printed as H. Doc. 101-132. (136 Cong. Rec. 4).

The House overrode the veto on January 24, 1990 by a vote of 390 yeas to 25 nays. (136 Cong. Rec. 444-5).

The Senate sustained the veto on January 25, 1990 by a vote of 62 yeas to 37 nays. (136 Cong. Rec. 563).

Veto sustained.

Note—The President stated that the adjournment of the 1st session of the 101st Congress on November 22, 1989 prevented the return of H.R. 2712 and therefore the bill should be considered pocket vetoed. The message received by the Clerk of the House with the returned bill was a Memorandum of Disapproval which the Congress considered to be the veto message. The veto of H.R. 2712 is counted here as a regular veto. (H. Doc. 101-132, p. 2; see also Congressional Quarterly Weekly Report, December 2, 1989, p. 3285).

Note H.J. Res. 390, 101st Congress, 1st Session, is considered to have become law because of President Bush's failure to return the legislation to Congress during a recess period. The bill is the subject of a pocket veto claim, but is not counted in the total of Table 1 on page ix, supra.

H.J. Res. 390.

101st Congress, 1st Session.

Waiving certain enrollment requirements with respect to the bill H.R. 1278.

President Bush issued a Memorandum of Disapproval on August 16, 1989 asserting that the House recess from August 4, 1989 to September 6, 1989 prevented the return of H.J. Res. 390 and therefore that he had pocket-vetoed the legislation. Congress, however, has considered the legislation enacted into law because of the President's failure to return the legislation. Note S. 1176, 102d Congress, 1st Session, is considered to have become law because of President Bush's failure to return the legislation to Congress during a recess period. The bill is the subject of a pocket veto claim, but is not counted in the total of Table 1 on page ix, supra.

S. 1176.

102d Congress, 1st Session.

Morris K. Udall Scholarship and Excellence in National Environmental Policy Act.

President Bush issued a Memorandum of Disapproval on December 20, 1991 asserting that the Senate recess from November 27, 1991 to January 3, 1992 prevented the return of S. 1176 and therefore that he had pocket vetoed the legislation. Congress, however, has considered the legislation enacted into law because of the President's failure to return the legislation. On February 4, 1992, the Senate passed similar legislation, S. 2184, which repealed S. 1176; the House passed S. 2184 on March 3, 1992, and President Bush signed S. 2184 on March 19, 1992 (106 Stat. 78, P.L. 102-259).

Upon signature, however, the President stated that S. 1176 never became law and therefore the repeal provisions of S. 2184 had no effect. The differences between the Congress and the President on this matter and on the larger question of pocket vetoes await future resolution. (27 Weekly Comp. of Pres. Doc. 1877, December 23, 1991; see also 28 Weekly Comp. of Pres. Doc. 507, March 23, 1992; 138 Cong. Rec. 1389-93; 138 Cong.
