

Historic Trail Map of the Denver 1° x 2° Quadrangle, Central Colorado

By Glenn R. Scott
1999

RAILROADS

The first railroad in central Colorado crossed the divide from a mining town to the central plain. The Denver Pacific Railroad, which was chartered in 1861, was the first to cross the divide. The Denver Pacific Railroad was chartered in 1861, and its route was the first to cross the divide. The Denver Pacific Railroad was chartered in 1861, and its route was the first to cross the divide. The Denver Pacific Railroad was chartered in 1861, and its route was the first to cross the divide.

Present in cooperation with
The Denver Public Library
Historic Library and
Cataloging Department

Present in cooperation with
The Denver Public Library
Historic Library and
Cataloging Department

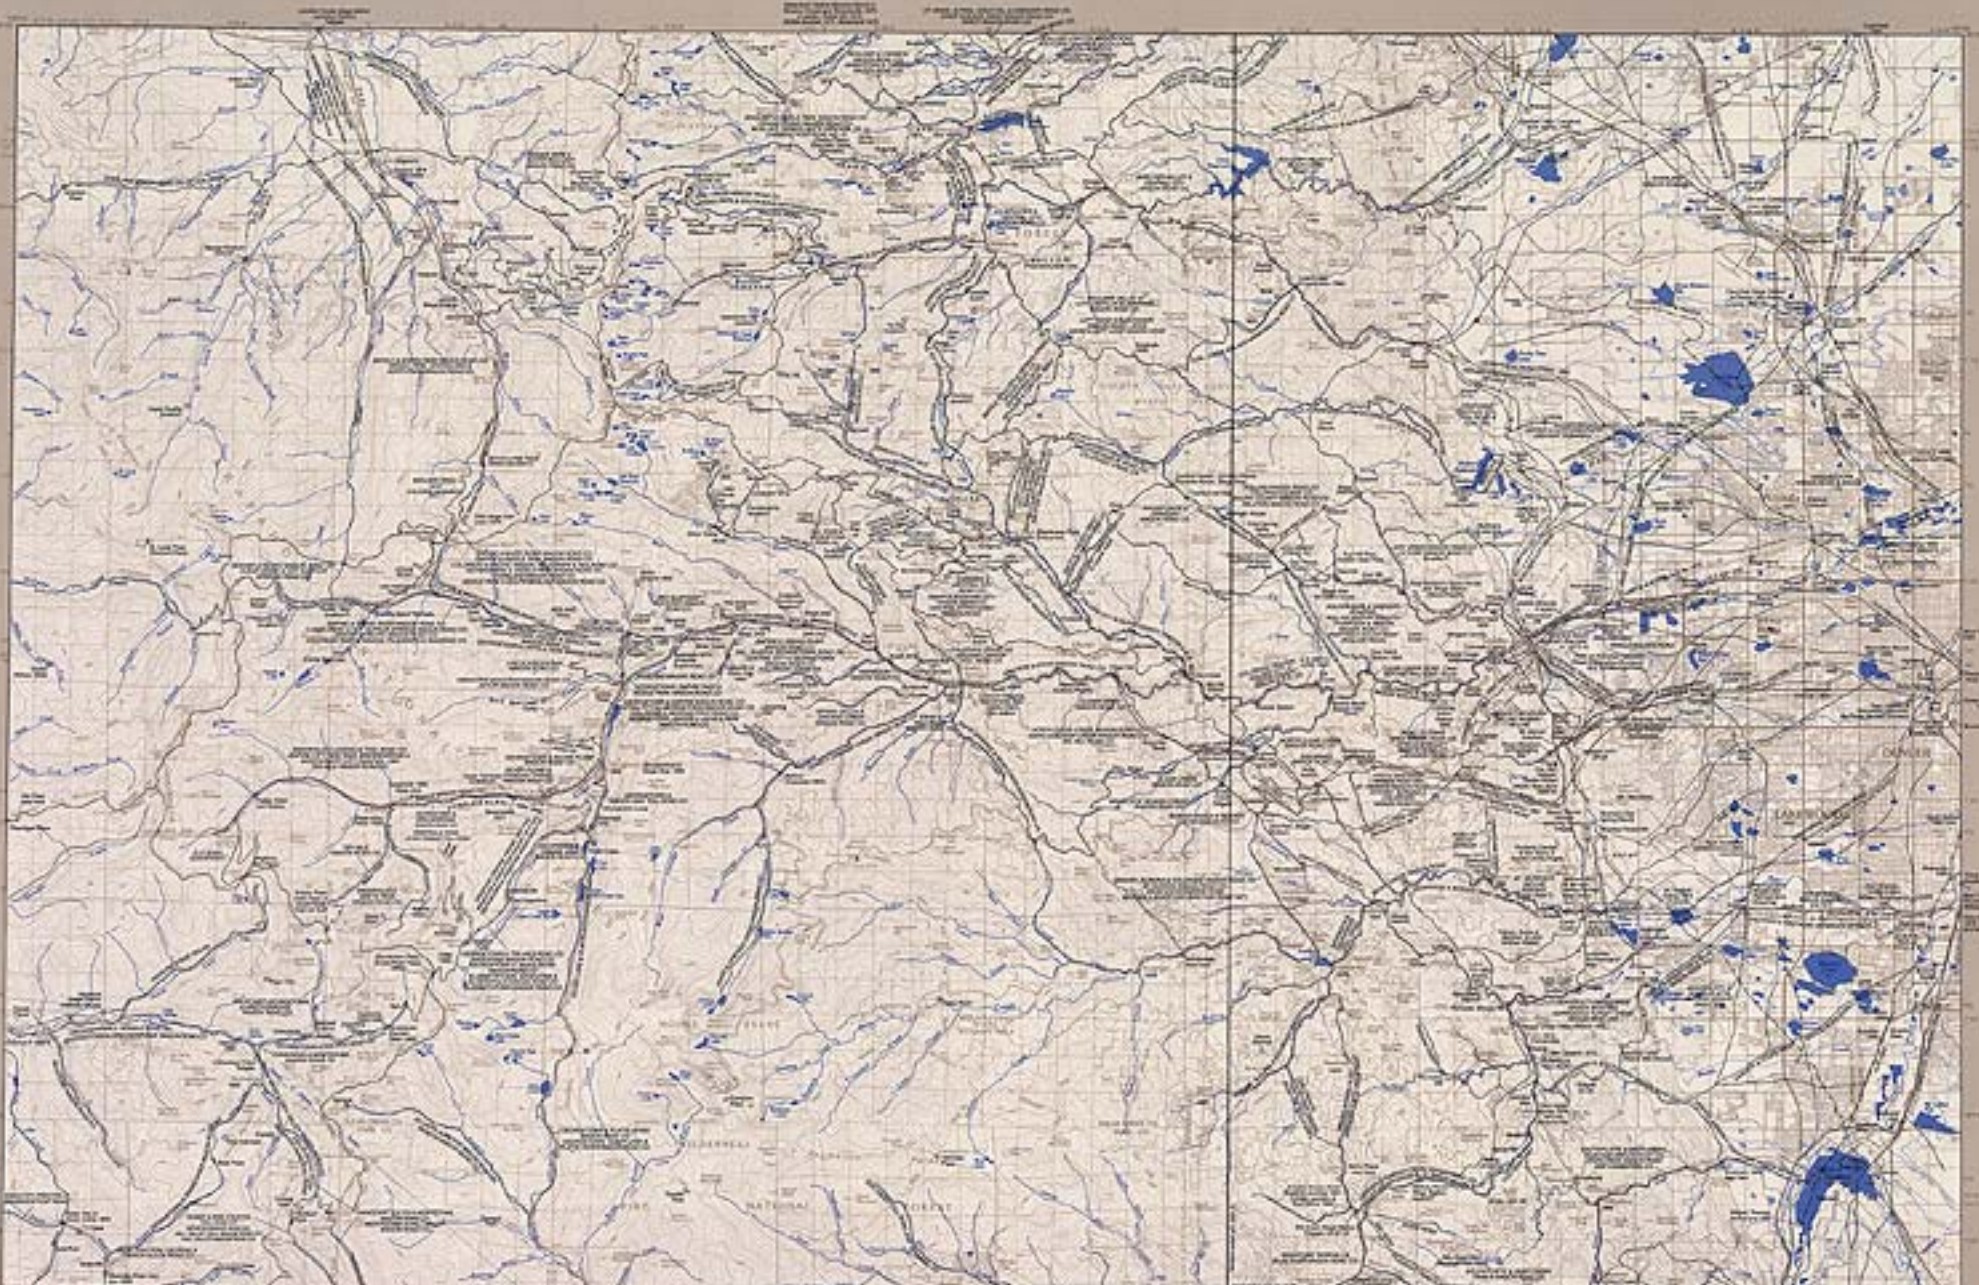

Quartzite, which is the Colorado equivalent of granite, is a hard rock that is used for building. It is found in the mountains of Colorado and is used for building. It is found in the mountains of Colorado and is used for building. It is found in the mountains of Colorado and is used for building.

The quartzite is the same as granite, but it is harder. It is found in the mountains of Colorado and is used for building. It is found in the mountains of Colorado and is used for building. It is found in the mountains of Colorado and is used for building.

Remnants of the Colorado Central Railroad and part of the railway used to transport coal from the mines to the city of Denver. The railway was built in 1876 and was used to transport coal from the mines to the city of Denver. The railway was built in 1876 and was used to transport coal from the mines to the city of Denver.

Enlarged Map of the Northwest Quarter of the Denver 1° x 2° Quadrangle

Scale of the Enlarged Map
1:50,000
1 inch = 1 mile
1 centimeter = 100 meters

Man working the gold vein of Silver. He is using a pickaxe and shovel to dig for gold. The photograph was taken in 1876 and shows the man working in the field. The photograph was taken in 1876 and shows the man working in the field.

THE GOLD RUSH
The gold rush in Colorado began in 1859 when James W. Wicks discovered gold in the area of Leadville. The gold rush in Colorado began in 1859 when James W. Wicks discovered gold in the area of Leadville. The gold rush in Colorado began in 1859 when James W. Wicks discovered gold in the area of Leadville. The gold rush in Colorado began in 1859 when James W. Wicks discovered gold in the area of Leadville.

Industrial building at the site of the Colorado Central Railroad. The building was built in 1876 and was used for processing coal. The building was built in 1876 and was used for processing coal.

A horse-drawn wagon used for transporting goods. The wagon was used for transporting goods and was built in 1876. The wagon was used for transporting goods and was built in 1876.

A clipping from the 'Weekly Colorado Witness' newspaper, published in Georgetown, Colorado. The clipping was published in 1876 and contains news from the area. The clipping was published in 1876 and contains news from the area.

Georgetown, Colorado, in 1876. The photograph shows the town of Georgetown, Colorado, in 1876. The photograph shows the town of Georgetown, Colorado, in 1876.

A prospector sitting on a rock, holding a pickaxe and a shovel. The illustration shows a prospector sitting on a rock, holding a pickaxe and a shovel. The illustration shows a prospector sitting on a rock, holding a pickaxe and a shovel.

A specimen of a mineral, possibly a type of quartzite. The specimen is a dark, irregular rock. The specimen is a dark, irregular rock.

This is a specimen of a mineral, possibly a type of quartzite. It is found in the mountains of Colorado and is used for building. It is found in the mountains of Colorado and is used for building. It is found in the mountains of Colorado and is used for building.

Inset map showing the location of the Denver 1° x 2° Quadrangle within the state of Colorado. The inset map shows the location of the Denver 1° x 2° Quadrangle within the state of Colorado.

EXPLANATION
This map shows the location of the Denver 1° x 2° Quadrangle within the state of Colorado. It includes a scale and a legend. It includes a scale and a legend. It includes a scale and a legend.

A large building, possibly a hotel or government building, in the town of Georgetown. The building was built in 1876 and was used for housing. The building was built in 1876 and was used for housing.

This is a photograph of a large building, possibly a hotel or government building. It is located in the town of Georgetown, Colorado. It is located in the town of Georgetown, Colorado. It is located in the town of Georgetown, Colorado.

U.S. Geological Survey
1225 North Meade Avenue
Denver, Colorado 80202
Phone: (303) 231-4370
Fax: (303) 231-4399
WWW.USGS.GOV