Biographical Note

Norman Luboff (1917-1987) was one of the most well-respected, multi-faceted, and popular musicians of mid to late 20th century America. His career in choral music as composer, arranger, conductor, singer, recording artist, teacher, publisher, and promoter was significant in promoting interest in choral music among the public as well as both professional and amateur musicians.

Born in Chicago on May 14, 1917, Luboff studied piano and voice as a child. After attending both the University of Chicago and Central College, he pursued graduate studies under the direction of composer Leo Sowerby. While teaching music theory at Central, he began singing and arranging music for popular Chicago radio shows. After a stint with the Signal Corps during World War II and some radio work in New York, Luboff settled in Hollywood where he became choral director for "The Railroad Hour," a weekly radio program starring Gordon McRae and featuring music from opera, operetta and musical comedy.

In Hollywood, Luboff composed and arranged music for television including the Bell Telephone Hour, Dinah Shore Show, Ford Star Jubilee, the Jerry Lewis Show and for more than 80 motion pictures such as "Country Girl," "Giant," and "Island in the Sun." Among the many popular performers with whom he worked were Harry Belafonte, Rosemary Clooney, Bing Crosby, Vic Damone, Doris Day, Percy Faith, Katharine Hepburn, Frankie Laine, Ezio Pinza, Frank Sinatra, Jo Stafford, and Paul Weston. Among the song lyricists with whom he worked the names of Alan Bergman and Marilyn Keith are particularly noted.

The Norman Luboff Choir, organized during the 1950s, exposed millions of listeners to a wide gamut of music ranging from Renaissance polyphony to the characteristic Luboff arrangements of folk and popular songs. Among its more than 75 LPs, one in particular "Song of the Cowboys" won the 1960 Grammy award.

Luboff founded the Walton Music Corporation in the late 1950s in order to facilitate dissemination of his many compositions and arrangements and to introduce new compositions and arrangements by young and unknown composers. Later the company would take a significant role in promoting the music of Scandinavian composers, a project in which Luboff had a particular interest. In the 1960s and 1970s, he had made a considerable number of guest appearances as conductor and clinician with both amateur and professional choral organizations, most notably the Radio Choir of Denmark and the Swedish Radio Choir.

Luboff's interest in collecting the music of world cultures, especially that of the Scandinavian countries, resulted in a 1965 Prentice-Hall Inc. collection of more than 100 folk songs assembled by Luboff with the assistance of guitarist-musicologist Winfred Starcke and illustrator, Paul Freeman.

In 1985, Norman Luboff moved to Bynum, North Carolina where he died in 1987. He was one of the most influential men in the American mid-20th century contemporary choral music scene.

Scope and Content Note

The Norman Luboff Collection contains 139 boxes of both music and non-music materials. Luboff's working music library of choral works and songs, most of which are composed and/or arranged by him, comprise more than 130 of the boxes. These scores include printed music as well as autograph scores by Luboff and others, and arrangements, often accompanied instrumental parts and performed by the Norman Luboff Chorale in concert and on recording. Most of these materials date from the mid-1950s to the late 1970s.

The organization of the music retains Luboff's original organizational scheme. Each title is assigned a number and the works are arranged in numerical order regardless of format or genre. These materials are located in boxes 1 through 116 with oversize materials comprising boxes 98 through 116. The indication "also see box [#]" after the title of items listed in boxes 1 through 97 indicates the presence of oversize materials for that item. Oversized materials are found in boxes 101, 108 through 121, and 128 and 129. Box 117 contains music composed and/or arranged by Luboff but not assigned a filing number by him. These materials are arranged in alphabetical order by title.

There sequential gaps in the numbering of titles indicates that a missing numbered item was not a part of the gift and that it, perhaps, may have never existed or may have been destroyed by Luboff himself.

A collection of more than 480 folk song books collected and assembled by Luboff throughout his career was also given to the Library. These books have not been retained with the collection but have been cataloged and dispersed throughout the holdings of the Music Division. Each book is identified as being the gift of Gunilla Marcus-Luboff. Photocopies of the title pages of each of these volumes are retained in the files of the Music Division.

In addition to three folders of unidentified sketches, presumably composed by Luboff, box 99 contains four folders of music not composed by Luboff. These materials are arranged in alphabetical order by composer.

Box 100 contains "onion skin" of parts for Luboff compositions and arrangements for "Freedom Country," "Ice Capades," "Chevrolet Show" in addition to Pillsbury and Marlboro television commercial jingles. Box 101 contains materials relative to "Highland fling," a musical based on the life of Robert Burns. Luboff's compositions for Aesop's fables and More Aesop's fables, with lyrics by Marilyn Keith and Alan Bergman and produced by Golden Records, is found in boxes 39, 40, 41, 99, 100, 102 and 125.

Lead sheets and various production materials for "Songs of Man," Luboff's compilation of folks songs are located in boxes 138 and 139.

Particularly interesting among the non-music items is a fascinating series of programs, itineraries and other documents related to Norman Luboff Choir tours spanning the period 1963 to 1988.
