NO. 4.

"Let the poor be not forgotten, and let those who have prospered remember those who have not, for the sincerest expression of gratitude is not in fulsome words of the mouth, but deeds of charity and kindness to those who need help." -- From GOV. J. C. W. BECK-HAM'S Thanksgiving Day Proclamation.

To-day is the day of all days when all good citizens are called upon to take a retrospective view of the year which has gone by, and to give thanks to Almighty God for whatever of good has come into their lives. To-day is the day when most, if not all of us sit down to our tables, which are loaded with the products of the farm and the field, prepared only the good wives and mothers of Kentucky can prepare them, and surrounded by our loved ones, enjoy to the utmost such feasts as would delight the Gods. All this is as it should be, and we rejoice in the general prosperity which God has seen fit to bestow upon our beloved country. But, while we have received, some of us more and some of us less of this prosperity, and have been blessed with good health, and death has not invaded the sanctuary of our homes, and the family circle is yet complete, let us not forget that there are others in our little community, yea, even among our immediate neighbors, who have been less fortunate. While we are enjoying our feasts of good things, there are those who have little or nothing to eat. While we have good health, there are others who have been laid on beds of sickness. While the Death Angel has passed us and ours by, there are others who have been called to mourn the loss of their loved ones. While our crops and stock have prospered, there are others who have lost their little all. While we are enjoying all the good things that has come to us during the year, and are rejoicing because of the blessings which have fallen to our lots, let us see to it that others, who are in need, or who are suffering from disease or mourning the death of some member of the family circle, are made happier because of some act of ours—that the hungry are fed, the naked are clothed and the sick are ministered to. "If ye have done it to the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me," are the words of the Savior of mankind. We are thankful to God for what he has done for us, but has he any reason to be thankful to us for what we have done for him?

TAKES A KENTUCKY BRIDE.

The Rev. W. T. Amis, who is so well and favorably known by our people as a former pastor of the Baptist church in this city, but who is now serving as pastor of the First Baptist church of Hot Springs, Ark., and Miss Maud Petty, the handsome and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Petty, were married yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents on North Main street, by Eld. H. N. Reubelt, pastor of the Christian church, the ceremony taking place at 2:30 o'clock. The happy young people, this morning, took the train for Louisville, and from there will go direct to their new home in Hot Springs.

Mr. Amis is one of the ablest and most eloquent ministers of the gospel who ever served a church in this city, and, during his short ministry here, there were more additions to the church than had taken place within the preceding five years, and, as a pastor, he was equally successful, having endeared himself to his congregation as none of his predecessors had done. His former parishioners gladly congratulate him on the success he is achieving in his new field of labors, and especially do they join in congratulations because of his success in this new venture, and their best wishes follow him and his bride to their new home in the far West.

The bride is a member of the Christian church of this city, and is a graduate of our High School. For several years she has been closely identified with the work of the church and Sunday-school, and her pastor and teachers nothing but praise and consistent Christian life. She is deservedly popular in church and society circles, and the people of this community warmly commend her to the people among whom she will reside in the future.
