Hi [REDACTED],

As we discussed last week, I've done some research to identify precedent cases and found DoD Uniformed Services and the USCG exceptions in accepting delays in and suspension of A-76 studies. I've included a couple web inks, pdf files with additional background information that might be helpful, and we can discuss further on Monday. I was not able to locate a specific document backing up the USCG, however we are currently helping the USCG with the one we understand is the only study currently being conducted.

* Kelly Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas - At Kelley AFB all A-76 studies were suspended while discussions on Base Re-Alignment and Closure (BRAC) Act were decided. This suspension of A-76 studies saved the USAF budget significant funds as Kelly eventually went on to be closed under the Congress BRAC Act. This occurred around 1997.

* The Defense Logistics Agency (DLA), at Fort Belvoir, VA - The DLA suspended all A-76 studies on Depot Operations from 1989 to 1996 (approximately). This happened when DLA initiated a consolidation of their Five Depot Area Commands into three Distribution Regions. A-76 studies were further delayed as the Three Distribution Regions were restructured into a centralized Defense Distribution Center (DDC) now Headquartered in PA.

* The USCG has delayed seven of their eight announced A-76 studies pending their realignment under the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and the outcome of the Iraqi War. One of these studies involved 600 positions performing Financial Services.
