The prospective exclusive license may be granted unless, within 60 days from the date of this published Notice, NIH receives written evidence and argument that establishes that the grant of the license would not be consistent with the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 209 and 37 CFR 404.7.

The technology described and claimed in the subject invention relates to methods to enhance and prolong the body's immune response as well as to promote targeted tissue damage, such as for tumor destruction, by inhibiting signaling through the adenosine receptor. The inventors have shown that adenosine A2a and A3a receptors play a critical and non-redundant role in down-regulation of inflammation in vivo by acting as the physiological termination mechanism that can limit the immune response. The methods described involve administering either an adenosine-degrading drug or an adenosine receptor antagonist to exert a more effective and durable immune response and inflammation, and more specifically to the subject exclusive license application, to reduce the size of tumors. Furthermore, using the claimed method in combination with conventional anti tumor agent can be an effective treatment against cancer.

The invention has potential applications in the many markets in which therapeutic and preventive uses of manipulating the adenosine pathway are involved, including the regulation of hypoxia, tissue damage, tumor destruction, inflammation, increasing the efficacy of vaccines, and other immune responses.

This invention is further described in Ohta A et al., "Role of G-protein-coupled adenosine receptors in down-regulation of inflammation and protection from tissue damage," Nature 2001 Dec 20-27; 414(6866):916-20.

The field of use may be limited to "Prevention and treatment of human cancer and tumors by inhibitors of any or all of the adenosine receptor subtypes covered by the Licensed Patent Rights".

Properly filed competing applications for a license filed in response to this notice will be treated as objections to the contemplated license. Comments and objections submitted in response to this notice will not be made available for public inspection, and, to the extent permitted by law, will not be released under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552.

This announcement is a supplement to the one published in the Federal Register on April 11, 2005 (70 FR 18419).

Additional information can be found on the Web site or by contacting the Privacy Office.

1. System: DisasterHelp.gov.

Component: Science and Technology.
Date of approval: December 19, 2006.

The DisasterHelp.Gov (DHelp) Web site or Web portal is operated by the Science and Technology Directorate of the Department of Homeland Security. It is intended to assist political and civil service leadership, emergency managers, homeland security advisors, and first responders in the execution of their disaster management responsibilities. The information on this Web site will be used to enhance disaster management on an interagency and intergovernmental basis by helping users find information and services. The types of personally identifiable information used will include contact information for these individuals. The collection of this personally identifiable information is the reason for this privacy impact assessment.

2. System: Alien Flight Student Program (Amended).

Component: Transportation Security Administration.

Date of approval: December 22, 2006.

The Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will collect personal information about flight-training candidates to conduct the security threat assessments on alien flight students required by the Aviation and Transportation Security Act and section 612 of Vision 100—Century of Aviation Reauthorization Act. For pilots seeking recurrent training, the Alien Flight Student Program will verify eligibility for such training. TSA is amending the PIA originally published in June 2004 to reflect certain updates after periodic review, including its use of commercial data for identity verification purposes, and the promulgation of an applicable record retention schedule.

3. System: Threat Assessment for Airport Badge and Credential Holders.

Component: Transportation Security Administration.

Date of approval: December 20, 2006.

TSA is amending the PIA for the Security Threat Assessment for Airport Badge and Credential Holders to reflect an expansion of the covered population. Recently amended airport security directives now require that each individual to whom an airport issues an identification badge or credentials undergo a security threat assessment regardless of the level of unescorted access permitted the individual. Name-based security threat assessments will be performed on all individuals seeking or holding airport identification badges or credentials. Fingerprint-based criminal history checks, in addition to the name-based security threat assessments, will continue to be required for those individuals seeking access to the Security Identification Area or Sterile Area. TSA is amending this PIA to reflect the amended requirements.

4. System: Transportation Worker Identification Credential Program Final Rule.

Component: Transportation Security Administration.

Date of approval: December 29, 2006.

TSA is publishing a joint Final Rule with the United States Coast Guard to implement the Transportation Worker Identification Credential (TWIC) program to provide a biometric credential that can be used to confirm the identity of workers in the national transportation system. For each person subject to the program, TSA will conduct a security threat assessment before issuing the credential. TSA will collect identifying information, supporting documentation, a digital photograph, and fingerprints, as more fully set forth in section 1.1 of the PIA. The PIA reflects the TWIC Program as set out in the Final Rule and follows on the PIA for the TWIC Prototype, which was published at <http://www.dhs.gov> on November 5, 2004, and the PIA for the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM), which was published at <http://www.dhs.gov> on May 9, 2006. The updated PIA reflects changes made to the TWIC program in response to public comment on the NPRM and lessons learned from the TWIC Prototype.
