There is a growing awareness of the rights of Native American communities to regain control of their cultural heritage, and of the role that the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act plays in that process. The National NAGPRA program works with lineal descendants, Indian tribes, Native Hawaiian organizations, museums, and Federal agencies to support NAGPRA implementation nation-wide.

Resources for Federal Agencies

NAGPRA requires Federal agencies to complete inventories and summaries of Native American cultural items in their collections, publish notices in the Federal Register, and repatriate Native American human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony to lineal descendants and culturally affiliated Indian tribes and Native Hawaiian organizations. Under NAGPRA, Federal agencies are required to consult government-to-government with Indian tribes in carrying out NAGPRA, and Federal agencies also have special NAGPRA responsibilities when Native American human remains and items are discovered on Federal and tribal lands.

Working with Tribes and Native Hawaiian Organizations

Federal agencies are required to consult government-to-government with Indian tribes when carrying out NAGPRA, and identifying appropriate tribal consultants is an important step in the NAGPRA process. In addition to collections related activities, Federal agencies also have special responsibilities under NAGPRA when Native American human remains and objects are discovered on Federal and tribal lands.

  collections inventory and identification process, and to assist with repatriation costs.
   Federal agencies may not apply for NAGPRA grants.
- Notices of Inventory Completion are published by Federal agencies and document their determinations regarding the cultural affiliation of Native American human remains and associated funerary objects.
- Notices of Intent to Repatriate are published by Federal agencies, and document their determinations regarding the cultural affiliation and identification of unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony.
- Notices of Intended Disposition are published by Federal agencies prior the disposition of Native American human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, or objects of cultural patrimony discovered on Federal or tribal lands after November 16, 1990.

Working with Museums and Repositories

Many collections that originate from Federal lands are cared for by nonfederal repositories.

Generally, Federal agencies retain control of collections from their lands, even if the collections are cared for in a nonfederal repository. The Federal agency also has NAGPRA responsibility for such collections. In cases where collections from Federal lands are cared for by a repository, the repository is said to have "physical custody" of the collection, while the Federal agency has "control."

- 36 CFR 79 "Curation of Federally-Owned and Administered Archeological Collections" specifies the requirements for caring for Federal collections, and includes requirements for providing Indian tribes with access to federally-owned archeological collections.
- Notices of Inventory Completion are published by Federal agencies and document their determinations regarding the cultural affiliation of Native American human remains and associated funerary objects. Museums and agencies often publish joint notices for museum collections that are federally controlled.
- Notices of Intent to Repatriate are published by Federal agencies, and document their determinations regarding the cultural affiliation and identification of unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony. Museums and agencies often publish joint notices for museum collections that are federally controlled.
- Contaminated Collections. Federal agencies and museums are required to notify the recipients of repatriations of any presently known treatments used on cultural items.

Working with the National NAGPRA Program

Federal Register notices on behalf of museums and agencies, administers the NAGPRA grants program, maintains the Native American Consultation Database, and provides staff support to the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Review Committee.

cultural items that may be culturally affiliated with us. Does NAGPRA apply to institutions outside the United States?

What is NAGPRA?

The Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act is a Federal law passed in 1990. NAGPRA provides a process for museums and Federal agencies to return certain Native American cultural items -- human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, or objects of cultural patrimony -- to lineal descendants, and culturally affiliated Indian tribes and Native Hawaiian organizations. NAGPRA includes provisions for unclaimed and culturally unidentifiable Native American cultural items, intentional and inadvertent discovery of Native American cultural items on Federal and tribal lands, and penalties for noncompliance and illegal trafficking. In addition, NAGPRA authorizes Federal grants to Indian tribes, Native Hawaiian organizations, and museums to assist with the documentation and repatriation of Native American cultural items, and establishes the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Review Committee to monitor the NAGPRA process and facilitate the resolution of disputes that may arise concerning repatriation under NAGPRA.

Who is responsible for complying with NAGPRA?

All Federal agencies are subject to NAGPRA. All public and private museums that have received Federal funds, other than the Smithsonian Institution, are subject to NAGPRA. (Repatriation by the Smithsonian Institution is governed by the National Museum of the American Indian Act of 1989, 20 U.S.C. 80q.)

What is the repatriation process under NAGPRA?

The principle steps of the NAGPRA repatriation process include --

- Federal agencies and museums must identify cultural items in their collections that are subject to NAGPRA, and prepare inventories and summaries of the items.
- Federal agencies and museums must consult with lineal descendants, Indian tribes, and Native Hawaiian organizations regarding the identification and cultural affiliation of the cultural items listed in their NAGPRA inventories and summaries.
- Federal agencies and museums must send notices to lineal descendants, Indian tribes, and Native Hawaiian organizations describing cultural items and lineal descendancy or cultural affiliation, and stating that the cultural items may be repatriated. The law requires the Secretary of the Interior to publish these notices in the Federal Register.

For more information, go to Law and Regulations.

Who may claim Native American cultural items under NAGPRA?

NAGPRA recognizes claims by lineal descendants, Indian tribes, Native Alaskan villages and corporations, and Native Hawaiian organizations.

An Indian tribe is any tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community of Indians that is recognized as eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States to Indians because of their status as Indians. In NAGPRA, the term "Indian tribe" includes Native Alaskan villages and corporations. Alaska Native villages and corporations include those groups or communities defined in, or established pursuant to, the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. The Department of the Interior has interpreted the definition of "Indian tribe" as applying to approximately 770 Indian tribes and Alaska Native villages that are recognized by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

A Native Hawaiian organization includes any organization that: (a) serves and represents the interests of Native Hawaiians, (b) has as a primary and stated purpose the provision of services to Native Hawaiians, and (c) has expertise in Native Hawaiian Affairs, and includes the Office of Hawaiian Affairs and Hui Malama I Na Kupuna `O Hawai`i Nei. The Department of the Interior has interpreted this definition to also include the Hawaiian island burial councils and various 'Ohanas (extended families).

We are a nonfederally recognized tribe. May we still participate in the NAGPRA process?

Under NAGPRA, only Federally recognized Native American tribes, Native Alaskan villages and corporations, and Native Hawaiian organizations may claim cultural items. NAGPRA does not require museums and Federal agencies to consult with nonfederally recognized Committee has recognized that there are some cases in which nonfederally recognized tribes may be appropriate claimants for cultural items. Museums, if they wish, may consult with nonfederally recognized tribes. (Because NAGPRA requires Federal agencies to consult government-to-government with Federally recognized tribes, it may be difficult for Federal agencies to include non-recognized tribes in NAGPRA consultations.) Museums and Federal agencies that wish to return Native American human remains and cultural items to nonfederally recognized tribes must make a request for review of a proposed disposition to the Review Committee.

Our museum has never submitted a NAGPRA inventory or summary, and we are concerned that we may be out of compliance. What should we do?

The National NAGPRA program recognizes that making collections information accessible to lineal descendants, Indian tribes, and Native Hawaiian organizations is an important goal of NAGPRA. The National NAGPRA program provides technical assistance to museums and Federal agencies that need to prepare NAGPRA summaries and inventories for the first time. You may contact National NAGPRA staff by telephone or e-mail, and a staff member will be assigned to work with you. National NAGPRA staff members do not initiate civil penalties investigations.

What do "control" and "possession" mean?

NAGPRA says that museums and Federal agencies must prepare inventories and summaries of cultural items in their control or possession. "Control" means having a sufficient legal interest in human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, or objects of cultural patrimony to lawfully permit the museum or Federal agency to treat the objects as part of its collection for purposes of NAGPRA, whether or not the museum or Federal agency has physical custody of the human remains or objects.

In other words, control is having a legal interest with or without physical custody, while possession is having physical custody. For example, if a museum has physical custody of Native American human remains or cultural items, but lacks legal interest (for example, when a museum is holding a collection on loan from another institution or a private collector), then the museum does not have control of these remains or items for NAGPRA purposes. For more information, see the NAGPRA Glossary and Law and Regulations.

What's the difference between "associated" and "unassociated" funerary objects in NAGPRA?

Both associated and unassociated funerary objects are cultural items that are reasonably believed to have been placed with individual human remains either at the time of death, or later as part of the death rite or ceremony of a culture. Under NAGPRA, funerary objects are considered to be "unassociated" if the human remains with which the objects were placed are not in the possession or control of a museum or Federal agency. Funerary objects are considered to be "associated" if the human remains with which the objects were placed are in the possession or control of a museum or Federal agency.

Note that a funerary object is an associated funerary object if the human remains are in the possession or control of any museum or Federal agency, not necessarily the same museum or agency that has possession or control of the funerary object. Also note that "associated funerary objects" includes those items that were made exclusively for burial purposes or to contain human remains.

For more information, see the NAGPRA Glossary and Law and Regulations.

What's the difference between "repatriation" and "disposition" as used in NAGPRA?

The term repatriation means the transfer of legal interest in and physical custody of Native American cultural items to lineal descendants, culturally affiliated Indian tribes, and Native Hawaiian organizations.

In NAGPRA, the term disposition refers to the return of cultural items excavated or inadvertently discovered on Federal or tribal lands after November 16, 1990, to lineal descendants, Indian Tribes, and Native Hawaiian organizations. The term disposition is also used with respect to the Review Committee's charge to recommend specific actions for developing a process for the disposition of culturally unidentifiable human remains.

For more information, see the NAGPRA Glossary and Law and Regulations.

If Native American remains are discovered during a construction project, does NAGPRA apply?

The excavation and inadvertent discovery provisions of NAGPRA apply only to Federal and tribal lands. Under NAGPRA, tribal lands are lands (including private lands) within the exterior boundaries of an Indian reservation. If the burial ground is not on Federal or tribal land, then the excavation and inadvertent discovery provisions of NAGPRA do not apply. However, other State and Federal cultural preservation laws may apply, and State or local cemetery laws may also apply. For information on other State and Federal cultural preservation laws, contact your State Historic Preservation Office. For details on the excavation and inadvertent discovery provisions of NAGPRA, go to Law and Regulations.

We recently completed a repatriation. Can we apply for a NAGPRA repatriation grant to reimburse our costs?

No. Applications for NAGPRA repatriation grants must be submitted well in advance of repatriation activities. National NAGPRA recommends that repatriation grants be submitted at least 6 weeks in advance of the repatriation. For more information, go to Grants.

Our tribe is being overwhelmed by consultation requests related to Federal undertakings and inadvertent discoveries. Are there grant funds available to help?

NAGPRA authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to make grants to Indian tribes and Native Hawaiian organization for the purpose of assisting such tribes and organizations in the repatriation of Native American cultural items. These grants are limited to activities related to the documentation and repatriation of collections from museums, and may not be used to fund consultation and other activities related to undertakings, inadvertent discoveries, and excavations. However, funds may be available through the National Park Service Tribal Preservation program. The Tribal Preservation program administers Historic Preservation Fund Grants to Indian Tribes, Alaskan Natives, and Native Hawaiian Organizations, which may be used for cultural preservation projects.

How many Native American human remains and cultural items have been repatriated since the passage of NAGPRA?

There is no single source for this information. While museums and Federal agencies are required to keep their own record of repatriations, NAGPRA does not require museums and Federal agencies to report repatriations to the Secretary of the Interior or to the National Park Service. Museums and Federal agencies are required, however, to publish notices in the Federal Register when they have determined that Native American human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, and/or objects of cultural patrimony are culturally affiliated and are eligible for repatriation. The National NAGPRA program compiles statistics twice yearly on the total number of Native American human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural for which Federal Register notices have been published. The current statistics (updated on November 30, 2006) are as follows --

Human remains: 31,995 individuals

Associated funerary objects: 669,554 (includes many small items, such as beads)

Unassociated funerary objects: 118,227 (includes many small items, such as beads)

Sacred objects: 3,584

Objects of cultural patrimony: 281

Objects that are both sacred and patrimonial: 764

Our tribe's contact information in the Native American Consultation Database is incorrect. How can we update the information?

The contact information provided in the Native American Consultation Database (NACD) is based on the list of federally recognized Indian tribes maintained by the Bureau of Indian Affairs. To change your contact information as it appears in NACD, send a letter with the new contact information to National NAGPRA. The letter must be an original (no photocopies, please) on tribal letterhead, signed by an authorized tribal official.

Our museum has cultural items that were originally collected from Federal land. Does our museum have NAGPRA responsibility for these cultural items?

Native American human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony that were originally from Federal lands are usually under the control of the Federal agency that managed or manages the land from which the human remains or other cultural items were removed. In such cases, it is the Federal agency, and not the museum, that has the responsibility for carrying out the NAGPRA process. The museum may wish to contact the appropriate Federal agency to discuss how the NAGPRA process will be completed.

Museums should also be aware that Federal archeological collections in nonfederal repositories are also subject to Federal regulation 36 CFR 79, "Curation of Federally-Owned and Administered Archeological Collections." For more information, see Museums and the NAGPRA Glossary.

Does NAGPRA apply to cultural items that originate outside of the United States?

No. The NAGPRA regulations "apply to human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, or objects of cultural patrimony which are indigenous to Alaska, Hawaii, and the continental United States, but not to territories of the United States" [43 CFR 10.1(b)(2)]. For more information, go to International Repatriation.

Our tribe has learned that a museum located in another country has control of cultural items that may be culturally affiliated with us. Does NAGPRA apply to institutions outside the United States?

No. NAGPRA is United States law, and applies to United States museums and Federal agencies. However, the United States does have agreements with many foreign nations regarding the movement of cultural property across borders. For more information, go to International Repatriation.

National NAGPRA Online Databases

National NAGPRA maintains several online databases designed to provide access to information on a variety of NAGPRA-related topics. All of the databases have search capabilities that allow the user to locate specific information. The databases are updated regularly by National NAGPRA staff.

- Native American Consultation Database (NACD) is an easy way to identify a current official contact for Indian tribes, Alaska Native villages and corporations, and Native Hawaiian organizations. Names and addresses of tribal leaders are entered from the current Bureau of Indian Affairs Tribal Leaders Directory. Use the state tables compiled from Indian Land Cessions 1784-1894 as additional consultation resources. Changes in contact information or corrections to the data should be sent to the NACD Administrator.
- Notices of Inventory Completion Database is a searchable library of published Federal Register notices pertaining to Native American human remains and associated funerary objects. A map has been added to the site to show the distribution of human remains that have been described in published notices of inventory completion.
- Notices of Intent to Repatriate Database is a searchable library of published Federal Register notices pertaining to Native American unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony.
- Culturally Unidentifiable Native American Inventories Database. This database provides information about Native American human remains that have been determined to be culturally unidentifiable and has been compiled on behalf of the Review Committee pursuant to 43 CFR 10.10 (g). The database summarizes the inventory information submitted by museums and Federal agencies and is not meant to be an exact copy of their inventory data. Though an effort has been made to verify the accuracy of the data presented in this database, slight discrepancies between these and the actual museum and agency inventories may remain.

The database was updated December 31, 2006. It now includes 15,901 records describing 118,400 Native American human remains and 828,641 associated funerary objects inventoried by 627 museums and Federal agencies. Among the human remains included here are 5,238 that have been affiliated or transferred since they were first inventoried as culturally unidentifiable. Corrections, updates, and additions to this database will be made as museums and agencies continue to verify the data that have been entered, or submit revised inventories. A map has been added to show the provenience of the human remains in the database.

NAGPRA Grants

NAGPRA Grants are awarded to Indian tribes, Alaska Native villages and corporations,

Native Hawaiian organizations, and museums for financial assistance in carrying out projects associated with NAGPRA compliance.

A new online NAGPRA Grants to Tribes and Museums (PDF) brochure highlights examples of successful

NAGPRA grants projects and provides information on other sources of cultural resources funding.

The National NAGPRA program administers two types of awards, each with a different application process. Use the same proposal form for either type of grant.

Consultation/Documentation grants are awarded competitively once per fiscal year.

Collaborative documentation and consultation proposals are especially encouraged.

Repatriation grants are awarded on a continuing basis throughout each fiscal year.

Proposals are accepted October 1 through June 30. Repatriation grant proposals require documentation of transfer of control. See template.

About NAGPRA Notices

As part of the NAGPRA compliance process, the National NAGPRA program assists museums and Federal agencies in publishing Notices of Inventory Completion and Notices of Intent to Repatriate in the Federal Register.

A Notice of Inventory Completion is published when a museum or Federal agency has made a determination of cultural affiliation for Native American human remains and associated funerary objects in its possession or control. By law these were due November 1995.

A Notice of Intent to Repatriate is published when a museum or Federal agency, in consultation with tribes, receives, reviews, and accepts a claim by a tribe for sacred objects, unassociated funerary objects, or objects of cultural patrimony.

A Notice of Intended Disposition is published in newspapers by the Federal agency official responsible for cultural items excavated or removed from Federal lands. The responsible Federal agency official must send copies of published Notices of Intended Disposition to National NAGPRA.

Maps showing the location of Indian reservations, Indian land claims, and military bases are available to provide information that can be used during consultation. The National NAGPRA program does not have printed versions of these maps available for distribution. However, PDF versions can be downloaded and taken to your local printing or copy center.

- Indian Reservations shows the location of Federal Indian Reservations in the continental United States, and is based on information compiled by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.
- Judicially Established Indian Lands is based on information provided by the Indian Claims Commission. The Indian Claim's Commission was established by Congress in 1946 to settle land claim disputes between Indians and the U.S. Government.
- Military Bases in the Contiguous United States is a low-resolution map showing locations of Department of Defense (DOD) installations. The map is intended to serve as a consultation resource for helping to identify collections from DOD lands.

National NAGPRA Reports

are the official reports of National NAGPRA program activities. The reports summarize a variety of information, including the program expenditures, notice publication statistics, grant information, status of draft regulations, and status of disputes. Additional reports are posted as they become available.

Repatriation Review Committee

About the Review Committee

The Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Review Committee was established under NAGPRA "to monitor and review the implementation of the inventory and identification process and repatriation activities." They have requested that information on compliance with the law be maintained and they make annual reports to Congress. They also hear disputes on factual matters to resolve repatriation issues between Indian tribes, Alaska Native villages and corporations, and Native Hawaiian organizations. The Review Committee is an advisory body under the Federal Advisory Committee Act (FACA). Questions regarding Federal agency procedural practice are addressed by the Administrative Procedures Act, 5 U. S.C. Section 501 et seq. Review Committee members are appointed by the Secretary of the Interior from nominations by Indian tribes, Native Hawaiian organizations, traditional Native American religious leaders, national museum organizations, and scientific organizations.

Review Committee information includes:

- Secretarial Appointees
- Announcements (including upcoming meetings)
- Charter PDF or Text
- Procedures
- Meeting Minutes
- Findings and Recommendations
- Reports to the Congress

Here is how we handle information about your visit to our website.

What We Collect and Store Automatically

If you do nothing during your visit but browse through the website, read pages, or download information, we will gather and store certain information about your visit automatically. This information does not identify you personally. We automatically collect and store only the following information about your visit:

- The Internet domain (for example, "xcompany.com" if you use a private Internet access account, or "yourschool.edu" if you connect from a university's domain) and IP address (an IP address is a number that is automatically assigned to your computer whenever you are surfing the Web) from which you access our website;
- The type of browser and operating system used to access our site;
- The date and time you access our site;
- The pages you visit; and
- If you linked to our website from another website, the address of that website. We use the information we collect to count the number and type of visitors to the different pages on our site, and to help us make our site more useful to visitors like you.

If You Send Us E-mail

You may choose to provide us with personal information, as in e-mail with a comment or question. We use the information to improve our service to you or to respond to your request.

Sometimes we forward your e-mail to other government employees or authorized concessioners who may be better able to help you. Except for authorized law enforcement investigations, we do not share our e-mail with any other outside organizations.

Links to Other Sites

Our website has many links to our partners, especially other federal agencies. In a few cases we link to private organizations. When you link to another site, you are no longer on our site and are subject to the privacy policy of the new site.

History is everywhere

In nearly 400 national parks and every hometown. It covers everything from the remnants of ancient civilizations to the boyhood homes of U.S. Presidents to the stirring sagas of hard-fought wars to the reverberations of one woman refusing to give up her seat on a bus. History is a part of who we were, who we are, and who we will be.

As you explore these pages, we hope you find what you are looking for – but even more importantly, we hope you discover something that surprises you. We invite you to learn more about history and how the National Park Service works to preserve it.
