Hi,

Just wanted to weigh in on the BPA debate. [redacted] The things I have learned about the BPA in our food supply (canned goods) has me shaking my head. [redacted] I will now err on the side of being overly cautious and am not cooking in plastic, using hard plastic bottles and am trying to refrain as much as possible from eating things in cans. I don't want to take the risk that I'm actually putting things in my body that could hurt me. Why does the government continue to back this chemical? We have an epidemic of cancer in our country; I'm not looking for revenge, just protection and knowledge so I can make good informed choices.

Thank you.
