What's New on the Commons

NIH Commons Version 2.0 is now released. Version 2.0 is open to all institutions previously registered on the NIH Commons. The profile and account information that could be validated has been migrated. Institutions that are registered in Commons Version 1.0 are asked to verify that institutional and professional profiles and account information are up-to-date.

Version 2.0 will include a redesigned user interface with improved performance and Version 2.0 feature the following enhancements: Admin module for maintaining institutional profile information, Status module and integration with X-Train interface.

Status

This is the Status section. The Status menu allows users to search information about status of proposals and type5 reports. The user's access to the Status of a proposal is determined by the user's role. If the user logs on as SO, this user has privilege to search status of proposals and type5 reports of all PIs within the institution of which this user is SO. If the user logs on as PI, this user has only privilege to view status of his/her own proposals. The content of the status information displayed is very comprehensive, including proposal status and history, study group and members, scientific Review administrator, grants management specialist, program official, and advisory council.
