Comments: To whom this may concern,

In modern day society, there should be no need for the use of living and breathing Animals for testing. Especially when you consider that human advancedment has reached such a stage as today, the use of Animals should be eliminated all together. It is disgraceful, unethical, and immorally wrong for modern day society to use live Animals to perform as test subjects so that humans can benefit, while these living creatures suffer in needless pains and death. Put yourself as being the subject of the test being performed, and try to understand their sufferings, then you will realized that what you are doing to these Animals are both EVIL, and WRONG, especially in GOD's eyes.

It should be the human endeavor to use their technology, along with their wisdoms and mindset to find more human methods of performing experiments that does not use living and breathing Animals for the benefits of both humans and Animals.

May all those who supports, and are involved in any Animal experimentations suffer in the very same FAITH that they themselves have put the Animals in as the test subjects. These people must pay in HELL, and I will pray to the almighty creator to make sure that they ALL pay dearly with the utmost PAIN they will endure till the end of time for making all those Animals suffer in this world. I will trade my own soul to Satan to make sure that all these People Pay dearly with their SOULS in HELL.
