

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The publication of a work such as this requires the cooperation and assistance of scores of people, to whom I am greatly indebted. I am most appreciative of the institutional and administrative assistance for this undertaking provided by the entire office of the Secretary of the Senate. Without the support of the Secretary of the Senate, Joe Stewart, and the administrative skills of Assistant Secretary Jeri Thomson, this project would have been impossible.

I owe the greatest debt of gratitude to the entire staff of the Parliamentarian's office, whose remarkable ability to perform the daily responsibilities of our office enabled me to devote the time necessary to complete this project. Assistant Parliamentarian Kevin Kayes, Second Assistant Parliamentarian Jim Weber, Executive Assistant Sally Goffinet, and former Third Assistant Parliamentarian Jennifer Smith, all assumed substantial additional responsibilities for the daily work of the office, and all contributed to the researching, analyzing and preparation of hundreds of new precedents included in this book.

I owe a special debt of gratitude to Tom McGlenn of the Senate's Office of Printing Services, who provided invaluable assistance in all aspects of this project. He converted the 1981 edition of Senate Procedure to machine readable text, and spent countless hours perfecting the process of data management, thereby greatly facilitating the procedure for updating that text. He also served as the Senate's liaison to the Government Printing Office on all matters affecting the printing of this edition. In these various capacities Tom modernized the production of this edition and helped create a framework for more efficient publication of future editions. In addition, he took the initiative to coordinate the indexing and cross-referencing of the book. I am grateful to Tom's supervisor Barry Wolk, for allowing me to utilize large amounts of Tom's time, and for his overall counsel in publishing this edition.

The entire staff of the Senate Library under the direction of Roger Haley assisted in the innumerable requests for research assistance. Ann Womeldorf, Greg Harness, Abbie Bradfield, Thea Koehler, and Donnee Gray were particularly helpful in providing documentation for hundreds of precedents. Ed Heiss of the Library of Congress provided all the internal page cross-references, greatly expanded the book's index, and together with Lauren Goldenstein is responsible for updating the earlier references in the index.

I would like to thank the following individuals whose understanding of computer technology moved the production of this work into the automated age: Ray Strong, Mark Taylor, and Bill Shafer. Also noteworthy were the contributions of Roy Elson, Mary Frye, and Dee Jessup, who incorporated Dr. Riddick's organizational suggestions into the early drafts of the manuscript, and who converted daily Congressional Record page numbers to permanent page numbers. I would also like to thank Bill Ballou, Al Buchwald, Tom Devine, Lyle Green, Bernie Horn and Roy Morton from the Government Printing Office, for their assistance in resolving the numerous technical issues that arose during the preparation of this book.

I am grateful to my predecessor as Parliamentarian, Robert Dove, who provided the initial reorganization of the chapter on Congressional Disapprovals, which is now titled Congressional Approvals and Disapprovals. Although additional material was added subsequent to his efforts, much of the beginning of the chapter is presented here as he wrote it. Likewise, I am indebted to him for the initial incorporation of many of the new precedents into the chapter on the Congressional Budget. I would also like to thank Michael Davidson, the Senate Legal Counsel, who wrote the chapter on the operations of his office.

It should go without saying that the transcendent debt of gratitude goes to Doc Riddick, whose work is the foundation for this volume, and who has given so much to the Senate and to his successors in the Parliamentarian's Office.
