On December 15, 1956, Jack Z. Anderson was appointed as an Administrative Assistant to the President. He held that position up to January 20, 1961.

As an Administrative Assistant to the President, Anderson was a member of the White House Congressional liaison staff--under the direction of Wilton B. Persons and later, Bryce Harlow. His principal responsibility was with the aid of the other members of the congressional liaison staff to get the Administration's legislative programs enacted by the Congress and reaching the President's desk for signature in a form acceptable to the Administration.

The file consists of correspondence, memoranda, speech drafts (some annotated), reports, tables, press releases and printed materials. No original over-all arrangement was apparent and the folders have been arranged in alphabetical order by folder title.
