

Guide to the Use of the Frederick Douglass Correspondence Index

The index to the Frederick Douglass papers is designed primarily as a research guide to the documents in the General Correspondence series (containers 3-12), and those letters at the beginning of the Addition I series (container 48). It does not include Douglass correspondence in other collections in the Library of Congress or in other repositories.

This index was produced in 1974 using an electronic data processing application innovative for its time, which permitted a number of economies but imposed in return a few limitations. Some of the details normally found in indexes and calendars could not be provided. In preparing this revised edition of the index, abbreviations were expanded, and an effort was made to regularize its format. No entries were added or deleted.

To find indexed documents in the collection, locate the writer or recipient in the main entry column, check the date, and refer to the appropriate place in the General Correspondence or Addition I series. If an item is located in the Addition I series, or filed along with an item from another date, it is so noted in the "addenda" column. A small number of items described in the Manuscript Division's finding aid to the larger collection as "account and financial notes, Fredericka D. S. Perry, 1935-1941, n.d." (Addition I series, container 50) are included in the index, but were not microfilmed, nor were they reproduced in the collection's online presentation.

This is essentially a name index. Writers of letters to Douglass or his wife Helen Pitts Douglass, or persons addressed by either of them, including organizations and governmental agencies, are arranged in alphabetical order. When the same name appears more than once, the entries are arranged chronologically, first by undated, then by dated material. Douglass's name appears in the main entry column only when he is the author of a document other than a letter, and his name is followed by the subject or other description of the document. The same is true for Mrs. Douglass, except that her correspondence with Douglass is indexed under her name. Correspondence of persons other than Douglass is indexed both by writer and recipient.

When more than two writers signed a letter, or were the recipients, the words "et al." are used after the first name that appears on the document. Generally, two signers or addressees are indexed separately. However, when a husband and wife wrote jointly, or were addressed together, the item is indexed under the husband's name, together with the titles "Mr & Mrs."

If a writer chose to disguise his identity or keep it secret, he is indexed under "anonymous," followed by any descriptive signature when one was used. If a letter is unsigned and the writer could not be identified, or if a signature is illegible, the entry is indexed under "unknown" with such information as the manuscript provides concerning identity immediately following. An asterisk preceding a name or a date indicates information supplied by the indexer, wholly or in part, or a doubtful reading of a name.

A "see also" reference is used when entries for the same person or organization appear under more than one form; a "see" reference leads from a form of the name not used in the index to the form under which the entry appears.

The final, or addenda, column of the index is used for location and other data. Location references are followed by the date under which the item may be found, or in the case of undated material, under the name in the undated material that it follows. Other notations in this column refer to the form of the material when the item is other than a letter; to the existence of additional material by or to the same writer or recipient under the same date; and, when possible, to the language in which the item is written when other than English.
