RESPONSE OF THE UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE TO ORDER NO. 164, AND NOTICE OF FILING REDACTED CONTRACT AND OTHER REQUESTED
MATERIALS

(January 12, 2009)

The Postal Service hereby provides information and documents in response to the Commission's Order No. 164.¹ In its Order, the Commission acknowledged and gave notice of the Postal Service's request to add International Business Reply Service (IBRS) Contract 1 to the Competitive Product List.² The Commission also requested that the Postal Service provide certain explanations and supplemental materials in connection with its Request, each point of which the Postal Service addresses in turn herein.

1. Confidentiality of Contract Filed Under Seal

The Commission noted that the Postal Service filed an unredacted copy of the relevant contract under seal, but no redacted version with its public filing, in apparent diversion from “past practice” vis-à-vis similar filings for domestic competitive negotiated service agreements (NSAs). The Commission asked the Postal Service “to explain why no portions of this contract can be filed publicly.”³ In lieu of such an explanation, the Postal Service has determined to file a redacted version of the contract as Attachment 1 to this Response. The Postal Service maintains that the justifications for confidentiality expressed in its Request⁴ continue to apply to the redacted portions of the contract.

2. IBRS Contingency Arrangements

The Commission further requested “any and all IBRS contingency arrangements currently in effect” under prior agreements with this and other IBRS Contract customers.⁵ Such contingency arrangements consist of (1) a provision in each IBRS Contract to govern the contingency that a new agreement might not be concluded and approved before expiration and, in two cases, (2) subsequent communication with the customer to update the contingency prices in accordance with the contract provision. The Postal Service hereby presents the Commission with the materials for each active IBRS Contract contingency arrangement as Attachments 2-A, 2-B, and 2-C. In the interest of transparency and consistency with today’s filing of the redacted IBRS Contract to which these dockets pertain, the Postal Service has filed these attachments both under seal and in a publicly accessible redacted form.

3. Questions Concerning Appropriate Classification

Finally, the Commission requested that the Postal Service answer two questions regarding classification of IBRS Contracts 1 and Merchandise Return Service, pursuant to 39 C.F.R. § 3015.6. The Postal Service addresses each question in turn.

³ Order at 3.

⁴ Request at 3-4.

⁵ Order at 3.

1. Ms. Miller's statement describing the product and why it should be classified as competitive, at least preliminarily, seems as though it could also apply to the domestic Merchandise Return Service product which is currently classified as market dominant. See Request, Attachment 1, section (d). Should this proposed product category be called "International Merchandise Return Service" to better align it with its domestic counterpart (Merchandise Return Service) and to avoid confusion with the market dominant product of the same name "International Business Reply Service"? See Order No. 43, Order Establishing Ratemaking Regulations for Market Dominant and Competitive Products, October 29, 2007 at Appendix A, sections 1540 and 1505.10.

The Postal Service believes that various factors minimize, if not eliminate, any risk of confusion in the use of "International Business Reply Service Contracts" for the instant product. First, both single-piece International Business Reply Service and bulk IBRS Contracts are limited to content within the Universal Postal Union's (UPU) definition of Letter Post (letters, cards, packets, and small packages weighing up to two kilograms). On the other hand, Merchandise Return Service contains no weight restriction. Hence, use of the term "International Merchandise Return Service" could itself lead to confusion, as one might expect such a designation to apply to a service similarly without weight restrictions (in UPU terms, a Parcel Post service rather than a Letter Post service).

Second, customers and foreign postal administrations use and understand the term "International Business Reply Service" in connection with lightweight merchandise items, as well as letters and cards. Under its former international ratemaking authority,⁶ the Postal Service has used the term in similar contracts with various customers, including the customer whose contract is the subject of these dockets and those whose contingency arrangements are filed herewith. The customer's relevant inventory is based on packaging containing the term “International Business Reply Service.” The Postal Service, its customers, and the relevant foreign postal administration have oriented their processes around recognition of labels and packaging containing that term. In sum, the Postal Service does not believe an alternative designation would promote clarity and consistency of the Mail Classification Schedule, due to the possibility for complications in customer processes and in recognition of Letter Post traffic flows.

Finally, the Postal Service believes that any necessary distinctions have been made clear in the proposed Mail Classification Schedule language for IBRS Contracts approved by the Governors of the Postal Service and submitted to the Commission in Attachment 1 of the Postal Service’s Request. If the Commission nevertheless determines that a change of designation is needed to provide further clarity (such as, for example, “International Business Reply Service (AO)⁷ Contract 1”), the Postal Service recommends that such a change of designation should be limited to the listing in the Competitive Products List, and should not require adjustment of inventory or processes on behalf of the Postal Service, its customers, or its foreign postal administration partners.

2. For the reasons set forth in Attachment 1, section (d), should a proceeding be initiated to consider moving the domestic Merchandise Return Service product to the competitive rate category? If not, please explain the processing and market characteristic differences between the proposed new product and Merchandise Return Service.

The PAEA also places all bulk international mail in the competitive category.⁸ In its Request, the Postal Service has explained why an IBRS Contract qualifies as “bulk international mail” and therefore as a competitive product.⁹ By a similar token, domestic Merchandise Return Service is currently classified as market-dominant because of Congress’s preliminary determination that special services fall within that category.¹⁰ In proceedings concerning the establishment of the ratemaking system required by the PAEA, the Postal Service suggested that domestic Merchandise Return Service, or certain permutations thereof, could be classified as a competitive product.¹¹ In response, the Commission concluded that the Postal Service would be better served to request a product transfer under 39 U.S.C. § 3642 if it wished to change the product listings:

to consider one [special service transfer] in isolation may lead to results with unintended consequences. The better practice is to utilize the procedures for transferring items between the market dominant and competitive product lists once these lists have been established as specified by Congress in the PAEA.¹²

The Postal Service has already requested one transfer of a special service product from the Market Dominant Products List to the Competitive Products List, which the Commission approved.¹³ The Postal Service is currently conducting a review of all special services, including a determination of whether individual special services should be transferred to the Competitive Products List. Therefore, the Postal Service respectfully submits that it would be premature to open a proceeding to determine whether Merchandise Return Service should be moved to the Competitive Products List, until such time as further consideration of this issue can be completed by responsible managers who bear responsibility for the domestic product portfolio. The Postal Service emphasizes, however, that the averments contained in Ms. Miller's Statement of Supporting Justification apply fully to the IBRS Contract 1 product, the listing of which is the subject of this proceeding.

¹⁰ 39 U.S.C. § 3621(a)(9). See also Order No. 26, Docket No. RM2007-1, August 15, 2007, at 52 (“Under the PAEA, special services are classified as market dominant as are First-Class Mail parcels.”).

¹¹ Initial Comments of the United States Postal Service on the Second Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, Docket No. RM2007-1, June 18, 2007, at 13 (proposing that Inter- and Intra-BMC Parcel Post be considered “bulk parcel post” and therefore a competitive product if the mailer pays postage through a Merchandise Return Service permit imprint); Reply Comments of the United States Postal Service, Docket No. RM2007-1, May 7, 2007, at 33 n.95 (“In addition, the Postal Service also believes that Merchandise Return Service, and perhaps other services, may belong on the competitive side, and will pursue that possibility in the future”).

Respectfully submitted,
