

Endless Possibilities

UPPER WIND COUNTRY

Brooks Lake

BRECCIA PEAK
BRECCIA CLIFFS

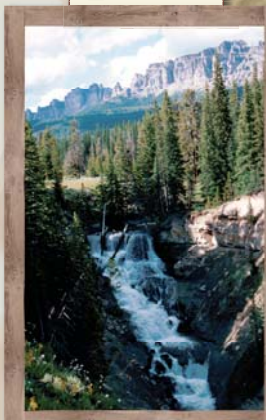

Pinnacles at Togwotee Pass

Togwotee Pass

LEGEND

- WY HWY 26/287
- Forest Service Road
- Forest Service Trail
- Campground
- Picnic Area
- Trailhead

Falls on Brooks Lake Creek

How Were the Falls Formed?
Brief explanation of how these falls were formed text text and more text to enlighten and inspire for sure.
Continuing brief explanation of how these falls were formed text text and more text to enlighten and inspire for sure.

Mountain view from Kisinger Lake

View across Pelham Lake

Mileages from Here

Yellowstone National Park	73
Dubois	23
Jackson	76
Pinedale	153

Falls Campground and Day Use Area

Welcome to Falls Campground and Day Use Area. The campground contains 44 units accomodating trailers up to 32 feet long with some pull through units for larger trailers. Nicely located to allow a variety of recreational opportunities, one can camp, hike, fish, hunt, ride bikes, ATVs or horses in spectacular country.

Enjoy the Brooks Lake Creek Falls from the trail starting from the Day Use parking area. Along that trail you can also get a great view of the Upper Wind River valley and even see into the the Fitzpatrick Wilderness on the southeast horizon. To the north and northeast are the geological features of Pinnacle Buttes and Breccia Cliffs, respectively.

Safety in Bear Country

Hike in groups and make noise. Bears don't like surprises. Carry bear spray and know how to use it.

Secure food, trash, and other attractants in a bear-resistant container, hang 10 feet high, or store in a hard-sided vehicle. All attractants must be stored at night or when unattended during the day. Ask about special regulations for harvested big game.

Human-food conditioned bears are bold and often must be destroyed.

