

- The viewer may initially take up to two or three minutes to load the program and default data. Subsequent refreshes or view changes should take much less time.
- The number and variety of possible layers will change as you zoom in and out of the view. The software is programmed to only show a layer when the scale of your view is applicable to that layer.
- If you hold your mouse over one of the icons in the tool box at the upper left, the pop-up text will tell you what the function of that icon is.
- If you turn a layer on or off, you must click the 'refresh map' button; just changing the view will not perform a refresh operation.
