

The new evidence against animal experimentation - the human cost

Animal modeled biomedical research harms humans by yielding results that cannot be extrapolated from animals to humans. It diverts research dollars that could be going to proven methods of curing disease and is used to justify the introduction of unsafe medications

Americans For Medical Advancement (AFMA) promotes human wellness by exposing the ineptitude and hazards of animal-modeled biomedical research. It educates the public, showing how government and charities misspend medical research dollars.

AFMA also discloses how industries keep unhealthy products in the marketplace through animal experiments. AFMA donations encourage safer medicine and real cures through: progressive clinical observation, in vitro experiments, advanced technology, medical specialization, human tissue research, epidemiology, and mathematical modeling to name a few!
