

November 8, 2001

Dear Dr. Stokes,

In this age of incredibly advanced technology, it is amazing to me that we still kill animals in the name of science. Animal cruelty and neglect are growing problems in our country and the medical and scientific communities continued acceptance of this practice creates an environment in which animals are thought of as disposable creatures. Please help make the prospect of in-vitro cell cultures and any further alternatives to animal testing a reality. The lives of innocent animals depend on it.

Thank you,

Apryl Bristow-Whitten