Scope and Content Note

The papers of George Lardner (1934-) span the years 1923-1997, with the bulk of the material dating from 1965 to 1995. The collection documents Lardner's career as a reporter covering national news for the Washington Post and as a commentator in other journals and magazines. Lardner maintained topical files which are organized as an alphabetical Subject File series comprising the majority of the papers. A small Miscellany series completes the collection.

The Subject File reflects the manner in which Lardner acquired, received, and pursued information and then developed his research into news stories. It includes Lardner's articles, correspondence, interviews, notes, and the research material he collected as documentary evidence. Research material includes newspaper and related clippings, reports, legal documents and trial records, government documents, some of which were obtained through Freedom of Information Act requests, congressional hearing records, photographs, and printed matter. Although Lardner's subject terms have been largely retained, personal names have been modified where necessary to conform to name authority standards of the Library of Congress.

Lardner's long tenure with the Washington Post allowed him to follow topics for many years, reporting from various angles as fresh information became available. Subjects branch into subcategories for ongoing stories of several years duration, such as the court cases of the Iran-Contra Affair. In other instances, succeeding stories arise out of new lines of inquiry. Lardner's files on the Central Intelligence Agency, for example, contain material from twenty years of news gathering and reporting. Lardner's focus was on reform efforts and congressional oversight of intelligence activities, beginning with his coverage of investigations by the "Church Committee," the United States Senate Select Committee to Study Government Operations with Respect to Intelligence Activities led by Senator Frank Church. Other intelligence-related subjects in the collection include spy cases, terrorism, the National Security Agency, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which cover, in particular, the COINTELPRO domestic intelligence program, wiretapping, electronic surveillance, use of lie detectors, and reform efforts.

Lardner's political investigations often concern corruption, wrongdoing, and conflicts of interest. His records of the Watergate Affair involve the trials, campaign funding scandals, especially the Milk Fund investigation, impeachment issues, and government and media access to Richard M. Nixon's recordings of conversations in the Oval Office. During the administration of Jimmy Carter, Lardner investigated William A. "Billy" Carter and Hamilton Jordan and reported on the "Floodgate" scandal centering on representative Daniel J. Flood of Pennsylvania and allegations of influence peddling, bribes, and Mafia connections. Abscam and Brilab files cover federal law enforcement "sting" operations.

During the Ronald Reagan administration, Lardner's files concern a number of investigations, usually led by special prosecutors. Extensive files are available for the investigations of Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan. Material concerning the Wedtech investigation relates to improper influence to gain military contracts and is filed under the company name, Wedtech, with related material filed under Franklyn C. “Lyn” Nofzinger, Edwin Meese, and E. Robert Wallach. Files on Oliver North and the Iran-Contra Affair concern the sale of arms to Iran in exchange for hostages and the diversion of money from that sale to the Contras in Nicaragua. Iran-Contra investigations continued into the George Bush administration.

Political assassinations are a prominent feature of Lardner's files, especially the assassination of John F. Kennedy. The Kennedy file includes material on Jim Garrison's prosecution in 1967 of various figures in New Orleans. Lardner later obtained documents from the Central Intelligence Agency, Federal Bureau of Investigation, and other government agencies through the Freedom of Information Act and reported on developments in many conspiracy theories. He also covered the investigation of Kennedy's assassination by the United States House of Representatives Select Committee on Assassinations and, to a lesser extent, the committee's investigation of the assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr.

Political election campaigns are a minor subject in the collection. Presidential campaign files include coverage for some of the primaries in 1972 and 1976. Files on campaign spending concern the 1984 presidential race. Lardner's files include profiles he wrote of presidential candidates Frank Church, Phil Gramm, Gary Hart, Dan Quayle, Edward Moore Kennedy, Richard Lugar, and George C. Wallace.

Lardner wrote a series of articles on the Freedom of Information Act and followed the subject for some time, developing related stories concerning presidential papers administered by the National Archives and Records Administration. Other significant files include those for Ruby Ridge and Oklahoma City which concern confrontations of private citizens with federal law enforcement agencies. Ruby Ridge files cover a federal siege and shoot-out at the Randy Weaver home near Ruby Ridge, Idaho. The Oklahoma City files concern the bombing of a federal building in the city, with related material filed under militias. Files on the Mafia are mostly related to alleged political ties and corruption of unions.

Material in the Miscellany series on the Washington-Baltimore Newspaper Guild and Lardner's employment by the Washington Post Company document aspects of the working life of journalists.
