

Concerning 73 FR 9847 this study is outdated and any recommendations should not be considered appropriate. Furthermore, a new study should be completed before any changes are recommended since the size and volume of aircraft have grown significantly since the study was commissioned.

In addition, any recommendations redirecting departures North of the airport would have a massive impact on thousands of homeowners whose homes will suffer dramatic declines in value as a result. These are not wealthy people who recently built and purchased extravagant homes and then tried to buy the decision of the FAA through lobbyists. These are working families and older couples whose home is their single greatest asset, who have lived here all their lives.

Sincerely,

Jay Thomas
