WSRC RECOGNIZED NATIONALLY BY AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION

AIKEN, S.C., (October 14, 2008) – Washington Savannah River Company (WSRC) has been recognized nationally by the American Heart Association as achieving the group's Platinum award for its efforts to keep employees fit.

The Platinum award, the highest level of recognition for companies from the Heart Association, is given to companies that promote physical activity and health in the workplace through "Start! Fit-Friendly Companies Program."

The WSRC Team is only one of three U.S. Department of Energy companies listed on the Heart Association's list of 100 Platinum winners this year. To make the Platinum list, companies must provide a variety of activities and achieve at least 50 percent participation by employees. WSRC has achieved 80 percent participation.

WSRC President Steve Piccolo said employees understand that working to improve their health leads to a better quality of life.

"Our employees strongly believe that safety is paramount in all activities, and being healthy is another mechanism to improve their personal safety at work and at home," Piccolo said. "We understand that if we exercise, get enough sleep and eat right, we are sick less often, generally feel better and have more energy, and are more focused on our jobs. I'm proud of this award because it reflects our effort to improve ourselves."

Start! Fit-Friendly Companies Program participants implement various options to encourage physical activity, nutrition and culture enhancements, such as on-site walking, annual employee health risk assessments and online tracking tools.

A special advertising section in the Oct. 27 issue of Forbes magazine will include a list of the Platinum companies.
