Annual Summary Report For 2005 (Closed Meeting Activity)

The Art Advisory Panel of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue

Four closed meetings of the Commissioner's Art Advisory Panel were held in 2005: Paintings and Sculpture on April 12 and September 21; and Decorative Arts and Antiques on May 18 and November 30. All meetings were closed to the public by determination of the Commissioner that the substantive discussions and records of the Panel dealt with the value of works of art involved in a federal tax return and were thus concerned with matters listed in sections 552b(c)(3), (4), (6), and (7) of Title 5 of the United States Code. Consequently, the meetings at which such matters are discussed and the records of such meetings should not be open to the public. This is necessary to protect the confidentiality of tax returns under section 6103 of Title 26 of the United States Code.

The Art Advisory Panel assists the Internal Revenue Service by reviewing and evaluating the acceptability of property appraisals submitted by taxpayers in support of fair market value claims on works of art involved in Federal Income, Estate and Gift taxes in accordance with the Internal Revenue Code.

All taxpayer cases selected for audit which include art work or cultural property with a claimed value of $20,000 or more must be referred to Art Appraisal Services for review by the Commissioner's Art Advisory Panel. Art Appraisal Services provides the staff support and coordination of the Art Panel and reviews appraisals of taxpayer cases on art works not referred to the Panel.

The Panel meets in Washington, DC usually once or twice a year in each specialty area. Approximately 250-300 items are reviewed at each one-day meeting. Prior to the meetings, the staff appraisers send photographs and written materials to the Panelists concerning the works of art to be reviewed. The written materials include information from the taxpayer's appraisal, such as size, medium, physical condition and provenance, as well as the staff's own market research, including information on public and private sales of relevant art work. Sometimes, one or more of the Panelists or staff will have seen the property and may have additional information to provide during the meeting.

Steps are taken to ensure the objectivity of the Panel. The Panelists are not told of the tax consequences, i.e., whether an item is a charitable contribution or from an estate. Also, to minimize recognition by the Panelists of a taxpayer's entire collection, the art works are discussed in alphabetical order by artist or, in the case of decorative art, by object type.

At the meetings, the taxpayer's appraisal and any other supporting evidence provided, along with the research and findings of both the Panelists and staff appraisers, are reviewed. After discussing each item individually, a consensus is reached on each item. Panel discussions are lively, but serious, and in spite of the different perspectives of dealers, auction house experts and museum curators, disagreements are rare. When disagreements do occur, they generally result from insufficient information. In these cases, the Panelists will indicate that additional research, such as inspection of the property or consultation with additional experts, is necessary before a decision can be made. Once the additional work is completed, the item is brought up for review at a subsequent meeting. In the event of a conflict of interest involving a Panelist and a work of art under review, the Panelist does not participate in the discussion and is excused from the room.

The Panel's conclusions are reviewed by the office of Art Appraisal Services and recommendations of fair market value are sent to the requesting IRS office. To assist the taxpayer's understanding of the Art Advisory Panel's conclusions, a report detailing its determination, together with a list of the participating Panelists, is prepared and a copy is given to the taxpayer.

Taxpayers may request reconsideration of an adjusted claimed value only if they provide additional information or new probative evidence. Such information, if deemed substantive by the staff, is submitted to the Panel for reconsideration at a subsequent meeting.

The determinations of the Art Advisory Panel become the position of the Internal Revenue Service. If agreement is not reached at the Examination level, the office of Art Appraisal Services and the Art Advisory Panel will provide assistance to Appeals and Area Counsel. This assistance includes participating in taxpayer conferences, preparing expert reports and securing expert witnesses, including members of the Panel and other outside experts.

Incorporated for the purposes of this annual report is the summary meeting report prepared by the designated committee manager. This report identifies the dates of the meetings, summarizes the statistics on appraisal reviews of estate and gift returns and charitable contribution deductions, and lists names of attending Panelists and Internal Revenue Service officials.

Summary of 2005 Panel Reviews

Four closed meetings of the Commissioner's Art Advisory Panel were held in 2005: Paintings and Sculpture on April 12 and September 21; and Decorative Arts and Antiques on May 18 and November 30. The meetings were chaired by Ms. Karen E. Carolan, Chief of Art Appraisal Services, Appeals, Internal Revenue Service, Washington, DC.

The Panel reviewed 2274 items with an aggregate taxpayer valuation of $217,981,879 on 105 taxpayer cases under consideration. The claimed value of the average charitable contribution item was $317,500 and the average estate and gift item was $95,579. The Panel recommended total adjustments of $62,852,328 on the reviews now concluded for these meetings. On the adjusted items, the Panel recommended adjustments amounting to a 86 percent reduction on the overvalued items in charitable contribution claims and a 56 percent increase on the undervalued items in estate and gift appraisals.

The Panel recommended acceptance of 75 percent of the appraisals reviewed. Adjustments were recommended on 24 percent of the reviewed appraisals. One percent of the appraisals reviewed by the Panel required additional staff development before a value decision could be made. Included were four cases with a total of 52 items in which taxpayers' requested Statements of Value under Revenue Procedure 96-15.

The Panel reconsidered 26 estate items in 9 taxpayer cases originally valued at $5,896,500 by the taxpayers and $9,613,000 by the Panel. After reviewing the additional information and the revised taxpayer value of $5,908,500, the Panel recommended $8,843,500 on these items. The Panel also considered other tax related valuation issues, such as blockage discounts.

In addition to the Panel reviewed items, eleven of the Panel cases had items in areas not reviewed by the Panel. These items and 7 additional taxpayer cases with a claimed value of $17,856,365 involving over 200 items were reviewed by Art Appraisal Services appraisers. The cases consisted of 16 estate cases with claimed values of $2,811,365 and 4 charitable contribution cases with claimed values of $15,045,000. These cases involved the valuation of various objects, such as art of Africa and the Americas, Far Eastern and Asian art, prints, furniture, guns, decorative arts and historical properties. Seven cases were accepted. Adjustments of $8,451,631 were recommended on the remaining cases.

To date the following responses have been received on the disposition of the cases reviewed by the Art Advisory Panel between 2002-2005:

	2002	2003	2004	2005
Percentage of Responses Received on Cases Reviewed	39%	32%	14%	17%
Percentage of Responses Agreed at Exam/Appeals	97%	93%	94%	100%

Attached is a list of the Panel members and other attendees. The statistical breakdown of the cases reviewed by the Art Panel in 2005 by tax consequences has not been reproduced in the public report due to I.R.C. § 6103 limitations concerning the data on the valuations for charitable contributions.
