

The New $5 Bill

Safer. Smarter. More Secure.

A new $5 bill will enter circulation in early 2008. This latest currency redesign, with enhanced design and security features, is part of the United States government's efforts to stay ahead of counterfeiting. A new $100 bill will follow. The latest redesign of U.S. currency began with the introduction of a new $20 bill in 2003, a $50 bill in 2004, and a $10 bill in 2006.

The redesigned currency is safer, smarter, and more secure: Safer because it is easier to check; Smarter to stay ahead of savvy counterfeiters; and More Secure to protect the integrity of U.S. currency.

The $1 and $2 bills will not be redesigned.

Issued: Scheduled for early 2008. Colors: Purple, gray. Symbol of freedom: The Great Seal of the United States — an eagle and shield.

Issued: 2006. Colors: Orange, yellow, red. Symbol of freedom: the Statue of Liberty's torch.

Issued: 2003. Colors: Green, peach, blue. Symbol of freedom: an American eagle.

Issued: 2004. Colors: Blue, red. Symbol of freedom: the American flag.