Title IV of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act authorizes monthly benefits to coal miners disabled from coal workers' pneumoconiosis (black lung) and to their widows and certain other dependents. SSA is responsible for processing and paying only those claims for coal miners' benefits that were filed between December 30, 1969, when the program originated, and June 30, 1973, when program administration was transferred to the Department of Labor (DOL).

This schedule reflects the effect of the Administration's proposal to transfer this program to the Department of Labor effective October 1, 2002. Since 1997, the Department has provided maintenance services to beneficiaries on behalf of SSA pursuant to an interagency agreement. However, joint SSA and DOL Office of Inspector General (OIG) audits have recommended that the program be permanently transferred from SSA to DOL. This proposal would consolidate the entire Black Lung program within a single agency, which would result in more efficient program operations and better service delivery to beneficiaries. There are no budgetary implications arising from this proposal because funding previously appropriated to SSA would be made available to DOL.

As directed by Section 104 of P.L. 103-296, the Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994, the Commissioner of Social Security shall prepare an annual budget for the Social Security Administration (SSA), which shall be submitted by the President to the Congress without revision, together with the President's annual budget for SSA.

The Commissioner is committed to assessing the level of service that SSA should provide and then determining how to meet these service goals. Pending completion of this service delivery assessment, the Commissioner's annual budget for 2003 includes a total administrative budget of $8,080 million in discretionary resources. This represents $7,997 million for SSA administrative expenses and $83 million for the Office of the Inspector General.
