This account was established by P.L. 103-211, the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act of 1994. The supplemental was enacted in response to the January 17, 1994, Northridge earthquake. The account provides the Administration flexibility to fund disaster response requirements which were not yet identified at the time the supplemental was enacted. Funds are available for any natural disaster, although most have been used to respond to the Northridge earthquake.

A total of $545 million was released in 1994 and 1995. In 1995, $6.7 million was released to FEMA to support research and development efforts to develop better methods to repair earthquake-damaged buildings. In addition, $5 million was released to Interior to support the January 1994 California earthquake historic preservation assistance.

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank) finances development projects in less developed countries. By applying banking principles to the achievement of development goals, it promotes increased economic productivity and helps developing economies meet more of the basic needs of their people.

The IBRD also plays a vital role in providing policy advice to borrowing countries, assisting in donor coordination and promoting co-financing.

The IBRD made new commitments of $16.9 billion during its 1995 fiscal year; IBRD gross disbursements were $12.7 billion. Since its 1945 establishment, the IBRD has made loans totalling $266.3 billion.

Full funding of capital subscriptions for the U.S. share of a $74.8 billion general capital increase has been provided by 1989-96 appropriations.

The Global Environment Facility (GEF) is the world's leading institution for protecting the global environment and avoiding economic disruption from climate change, depletion of the ozone layer, extinction of species, and damage to fish populations. Through its leadership role on the GEF Council as a major donor, the United States has succeeded in establishing a detailed GEF Operational Strategy that focuses available resources on a cost-effective mixture of long- and short-term responses to these global environmental problems. Operated by an independent Secretariat, the GEF coordinates work implemented through the World Bank, the United Nations Development Programme, and the United Nations Environment Programme. GEF programs place emphasis on strong local participation to ensure successful implementation. Following U.S. strategic guidance, the GEF will have prepared a workplan in April 1996 that brings total cumulative commitments to $1.3 billion (including workplan approvals that later require a final approval).

GEF participation forms the main pillar of U.S. influence in ongoing international negotiations on environment, especially the Framework Convention on Climate Change and Convention on Biological Diversity. The GEF induces increased environmental protection by the developing countries that pose the biggest long-term threat to the global environment. Also, the GEF is the pioneer in starting to harness private capital flows for investment in environmentally sound development.

The 1997 request consists of $100 million for the third of four U.S. installments to the $2 billion replenishment of the GEF.

The International Development Association (IDA), a member of the World Bank Group, provides development financing on highly concessional terms to the world's poorest and least creditworthy nations. These countries are primarily in Sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia, but also in Latin America, Eastern Europe, and the former Soviet Union. IDA places special emphasis on poverty alleviation, environmental protection, and economic reform and growth. IDA is the largest source of multilateral lending that is extended on concessional terms to developing countries. Projects have to meet the same economic, financial, and environmental standards as other World Bank projects.

During its fiscal year 1995, IDA made new commitments of $5.7 billion; IDA's gross disbursements were $5.7 billion. Since its establishment, IDA has made commitments totalling $90.1 billion (as of June 30, 1995).

The Tenth Replenishment of IDA provides donor country resources of about $18 billion. The United States has pledged $3.75 billion (20.86 percent share of all donor contributions) to the replenishment. The 1997 request consists of $934.5 million to clear unmet U.S. commitments.

The International Finance Corporation (IFC), a member of the World Bank Group, was established in 1956 to further economic development by encouraging the growth of private enterprise in developing countries. IFC provides and mobilizes loans and equity investments for promising ventures, and provides technical assistance. The IFC is now playing an important role in the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe's transition to free markets and private enterprise, due to the IFC's special expertise in foreign investment, capital markets development, and privatization.

During World Bank FY 1995 the Corporation approved 213 new investments totalling $5.5 billion and net investments for the IFC's own account were $2.9 billion. IFC's disbursed loan and equity portfolio (for its own account) was $7.3 billion as of June 30, 1995.

The 1997 request includes budget authority of $6.7 million to clear outstanding unmet commitments on the U.S. share of the $1.0 billion General Capital Increase.

MIGA is designed to encourage the flow of foreign private investment to and among developing countries by: (1) issuing guarantees against noncommercial risks and (2) carrying out a wide range of investment promotion activities. Authorization and full funding of U.S. membership was provided in 1988.

The African Development Bank (AFDB) lends at market-based rates for economic development of countries on the African continent. The United States joined the AFDB in 1983 when membership was open to non-regional countries. In 1995, the AFDB financed 11 new projects worth $683 million. Since its inception in 1963, the AFDB has financed 714 projects worth over $19.4 billion.

The African Development Fund (AFDF), the concessional lending affiliate of the African Development Bank, makes loans to the poorest African nations. AFDF operations have been interrupted since the end of 1993 when resources from the last AFDF replenishment had been exhausted and prior to conclusion of negotiations on a seventh replenishment of the AFDF. By the end of 1993 and since its inception in 1974, cumulative AFDF lending totaled $10.2 billion for development projects.

The 1997 request includes: (1) budget authority of $16 million for paid-in capital subscriptions and $112 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions on the U.S. share of the AFDB's fifth general capital increase; and (2) $50 million in budget authority for the first installment on the U.S. share of the seventh replenishment of AFDF resources.

The European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) supports market-oriented economic reform and democratic pluralism through predominately private sector lending and investments in the nations of Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. The United States and other shareholders signed the articles of agreement of the EBRD on May 29, 1990, and the Bank officially began operating on April 15, 1991. The capitalization of the EBRD is ECU 10 billion (approximately $12 billion equivalent at then-prevailing exchange rates). Paid-in contributions constitute 30 percent of total capital, with the remainder callable. At the end of 1994, the EBRD had approved 223 loans and investments totalling $5.6 billion.

The 1997 request consists of $11.9 million in budget authority for paid-in capital subscriptions and $27.8 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions to clear outstanding unmet commitments on the $1.2 billion U.S. share of the initial capitalization.

The North American Development Bank (NADBank) provides $2-3 billion in financing for high priority environmental infrastructure projects in the border region and, more broadly within the United States for NAFTA-related community adjustment and investment. NADBank operations provide significant direct benefits to U.S. citizens, particularly those in the border states. The NADBank's capital shares ($450 million in paid-in and $2.55 billion in callable capital) will be contributed equally by the United States and Mexico over a four-year period.

The NADBank will finance environmental infrastructure projects that have been certified by the U.S.-Mexican Border Environment Cooperation Commission (BECC), a new institution designed to assist border states and local communities in coordinating border clean-up. Communities on both sides of the border have long been plagued by problems such as raw sewage dumped in boundary waters, unsafe drinking water, and inadequate municipal waste disposal. Based on its paid-in and callable capital, the NADBank will be able to provide partial guarantees of private sector financing and borrow in capital markets to provide loans to help finance the projects certified by the BECC.

In addition, 10 percent of the U.S. and Mexican shares of NADBank will be available for NAFTA-related community adjustment and investment in both countries, which need not be in the border region. The U.S. community adjustment program will offer financing directly and through existing federal credit programs, such as the Small Business Administration. An Advisory Committee, which includes low income community representatives and non-governmental organizations, helps ensure broad public participation in the community adjustment window of the NADBank.

The 1997 request consists of $56.25 million in budget authority for paid-in capital subscription and $318.8 million in program limitations for callable capital subscription with respect to the U.S. subscription to NADBank initial capitalization.

The Bank for Economic Cooperation and Development in the Middle East and North Africa (MEDB) is a key element of the Middle East peace process. As the first major regional institution including Israel and her neighbors, the MEDB will lend at market-based rates to foster regional integration and private sector-led growth in the Middle East and North Africa.

The MEDB has a three-fold mandate to: (1) support the private sector; (2) assist with the privatization of state-owned enterprises; and (3) support regional integration in particular through infrastructure projects. The Bank is chartered to work as a "merchant bank," coordinating closely with private sources of finance and catalyzing additional investment into the region.

The Multilateral Investment Fund (MIF) is a component of the Enterprise for the Americas Initiative, a program to unlock the potential for domestic and foreign investment and encourage market-based capital flows. The MIF, administered by the Inter-American Development Bank, is a multilateral fund which provides grants and loans to support investment sector reforms. Special consideration is given to reforms that encourage private foreign direct investment and promote privatization. Grants and loans are used for technical assistance to identify and resolve investment constraints, for investment in human capital, and for business infrastructure and development.

The 1997 request for the MIF is $27.5 million for partial payment of the fifth and final installment on the U.S. share of MIF resources.

For the poorest and most heavily indebted countries, debt reduction will be undertaken in concert with the Paris Club of creditor nations to implement commitments made by G-7 heads of state at recent Economic Summits. The Administration anticipates that $22 million in appropriations will permit debt reduction under Naples Terms for qualifying countries. As part of the $22 million, the Administration will be seeking appropriations of $1.8 million, as well as the necessary authorization, to modify credits extended or guaranteed by the Commodity Credit Corporation for Honduras.

For Jordan, $25 million would be needed for the third stage of debt forgiveness proposed as a result of the historic peace agreement signed between the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan and the Government of Israel in 1994. This request would further the commitment made by the United States to Jordan in support of these peace efforts. The face value to be forgiven stands at about $63 million.

For Latin America and the Caribbean, the Administration proposes that debt reduction be effected at zero budget cost through buybacks and swaps of eligible debt, linked to commitment of local currency payments to support environment or child survival projects. The Administration will be seeking new authority for no-cost buybacks and swaps of P.L. 480 debt, and the approval of the appropriators for this program.

For debt reduction for the poorest countries, resulting cash flows have been recorded in the debt reduction financing accounts for the Export-Import Bank, the foreign military loans, and for the Agency for International Development. Appropriate adjustments have been made to these agencies' liquidating accounts. For Jordan debt forgiveness, appropriate adjustments have been recorded in P.L. 480 financing and liquidating accounts.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, the Program Account records the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Established by the 1969 Foreign Assistance Act, the Inter-American Foundation supports grassroots development initiatives in Latin America and the Caribbean with a direct impact on the lives and the capacity for self reliance of people at the lowest economic levels. In addition to appropriations and private gifts, the Foundation is funded by annual transfers from the Social Progress Trust Fund administered by the Inter-American Development Bank. In FY 1997, the IAF will adopt a new strategic programming approach to help grassroots organizations gain greater access to local public and private sector resources. Through its resource mobilization initiative, IAF will shift away from grants for individual projects to promote support for regional and country level grassroots development networks and consortia. These new regional structures build on local capacity and attract national and international co-financing partners, increasing the self-sufficiency and scale of grassroots development and lessen dependence on U.S. development aid. Using the Grassroots Development Framework, the Foundation will evaluate its results data collection system and make improvements as indicated, it will also disseminate the results assessment system to partner organizations in the region and other donors and grassroots practitioners in general.

Development Grants.—This activity includes the cost of all grants made directly to grassroots membership and service organizations to carry out development projects in Latin America and the Caribbean. In 1997, the Foundation plans to award approximately 160 grants and 190 grant supplements in 28 countries.

Development Research and Evaluation.—This activity funds grants and fellowships for grassroots development research and for the evaluation of the Foundation's projects.

In-country Support.—Resources associated with this activity are used by local development professionals in Latin America and the Caribbean to provide grantees with technical assistance and training when necessary to conduct and assess the results of their projects.

Program Management and Operation.—This activity includes Foundation expenses for salaries and benefits, travel expenses, rent, publication costs and service contracts, and other support costs.

The African Development Foundation is a public corporation whose mission is to help reduce poverty and promote sustainable development in Africa by assisting grassroots organizations and communities. The Foundation uses an innovative participatory methodology which expands the capabilities of its grantees to assure positive development outcomes for their constituents and surrounding grassroots communities in Africa. Through small grants made directly to private organizations in Africa, the Foundation promotes sustainable, self-reliant development and demonstrates the efficiency of its participatory approach in a variety of settings, from rural villages to the academic community. Organizations receiving support from the Foundation are carefully selected to assure that they are responsible for the design, implementation, and management of their projects. The processes they use for decisionmaking and problem solving are documented and disseminated to parties interested in development.

Over the past year, the Foundation has taken significant steps to reduce its operating costs and to streamline its operations, while improving its focus and impact. In 1997, the Foundation plans to fund projects in 16–18 African countries.

Development Grants.—Funds associated with this activity are used to award grants to African grassroots organizations to fund self-directed development projects.

Development Research and Dissemination.—This activity represents grants awarded to African researchers to carry out practical research on local development problems and to disseminate the lessons learned from this research and from the Foundation's other development activities.

In-Country Support.—Funds included in this activity are used to fund technical assistance and other support by African professionals to Foundation-funded grant projects.

Program Management and Operation.—This activity includes expenses for staff salaries and benefits, rent, travel, communications and other support costs.

As part of a general increase in IMF quota resources, the U.S. quota was increased in December, 1992 to SDR 26,526.3 billion (about $39 billion). The increase in the U.S. quota involved no net budget outlays. Similarly, use by the IMF of the quota commitment does not result in net budget outlays, because the United States receives an increase in its international monetary reserves corresponding to any transfer of dollars under the U.S. quota subscription. The United States can use these interest-bearing reserves automatically to meet a balance of payments financing need.

The General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB) were established in 1962 by 10 industrial countries, including the United States, as a means of supplementing the IMF's resources when needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. GAB members agreed in early 1983 to increase their financial commitments to the GAB from approximately SDR 6.3 billion to SDR 17 billion, with the U.S. share rising from $2.0 billion to SDR 4.250 billion, approximately $6.4 billion at the October 1995 exchange rate. Financing extended by the United States under the GAB does not result in any net budget outlays because the United States receives an increase in its international reserve assets corresponding to any transfer to the IMF under the U.S. credit line.

During 1994, no calls were made on the U.S. commitment under the GAB, and no U.S. loans were outstanding at the end of the year.

The Enhanced Structural Adjustment Facility (ESAF) was created in 1987 to enable the International Monetary Fund to provide balance of payments assistance on concessional terms to low-income developing countries with protracted payments problems. Borrowers must be prepared to adopt multi-year economic and structural reform programs.

The resources of the ESAF are provided through loans to the ESAF Trust and special interest subsidy contributions by member countries. Nearly $7.5 billion in concessional loans have been committed under the original facility. In 1994 the IMF membership agreed to a successor ESAF, bringing the total loan amount available to roughly $15 billion. Loans are disbursed over a three-year period with repayments ending 10 years from the date of disbursement. The interest subsidy contributions underwrite a 0.5 percent concessional rate of interest.

The Congress approved $150 million for the U.S. contribution to the initial ESAF interest subsidy account. The Administration offered to contribute an additional $100 million to the interest subsidy account of the enhanced ESAF, with outlays to occur over a 15-year period beginning in Fiscal Year 1997. Congress authorized and appropriated $25 million in Fiscal Year 1995. The Administration sought but did not receive $25 million in 1996. The Administration is seeking a reduced amount of $7 million, based on the minimum amount necessary to meet the outlay commitments, for Fiscal Year 1997. It is also seeking authorization of the remaining $75 million of the commitment.

[ECONOMIC SUPPORT FUND ASSISTANCE FOR ISRAEL]

[SEC. 517. The Congress finds that progress on the peace process in the Middle East is vitally important to United States security interests in the region. The Congress recognizes that, in fulfilling its obligations under the Treaty of Peace Between the Arab Republic of Egypt and the State of Israel, done at Washington on March 26, 1979, Israel incurred severe economic burdens. Therefore, the Congress declares that, subject to the availability of appropriations, it is the policy and the intention of the United States that the funds provided in annual appropriations for the Economic Support Fund which are allocated to Israel shall not be less than the annual debt repayment (interest and principal) from Israel to the United States Government in recognition that such a principle serves United States interests in the region.]

[SHORT TITLE]

[SEC. 601. This title may be cited as the “Middle East Peace Facilitation Act of 1995”.]

[FINDINGS]

[SEC. 602. The Congress finds that—

(1) the Palestine Liberation Organization (hereafter the “P.L.O.”) has recognized the State of Israel’s right to exist in peace and security, accepted United Nations Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338, committed itself to the peace process and peaceful coexistence with Israel, free from violence and all other acts which endanger peace and stability, and assumed responsibility over all P.L.O. elements and personnel in order to assure their compliance, prevent violations, and discipline violators;

(2) Israel has recognized the P.L.O. as the representative of the Palestinian people;

(3) Israel and the P.L.O. signed a Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements (hereafter the “Declaration of Principles”) on September 13, 1993 at the White House;

(4) Israel and the P.L.O. signed an Agreement on the Gaza Strip and the Jericho Area (hereafter the “Gaza-Jericho Agreement”) on May 4, 1994 which established a Palestinian Authority for the Gaza and Jericho areas;

(5) Israel and the P.L.O. signed an Agreement on Preparatory Transfer of Powers and Responsibilities (hereafter the “Early Empowerment Agreement”) on August 29, 1994 which provided for the transfer to the Palestinian Authority of certain powers and responsibilities in the West Bank outside of the Jericho Area;

(6) under the terms of the Israeli-Palestinian Interim Agreement signed on September 28, 1995, the Declaration of Principles, the Gaza-Jericho Agreement and the Early Empowerment Agreement, the powers and responsibilities of the Palestinian Authority are to be assumed by an elected Palestinian Council with jurisdiction in the West Bank and Gaza Strip in accordance with the Interim Agreement;

(7) permanent status negotiations relating to the West Bank and Gaza Strip are scheduled to begin by May 1996;

(8) the Congress has, since the conclusion of the Declaration of Principles and the P.L.O.’s renunciation of terrorism, provided authorities to the President to suspend certain statutory restrictions relating to the P.L.O., subject to Presidential certifications that the P.L.O. has continued to abide by commitments made in and in connection with or resulting from the good faith implementation of, the Declaration of Principles;

(9) the P.L.O. commitments relevant to Presidential certifications have included commitments to renounce and condemn terrorism, to submit to the Palestinian National Council for former approval the necessary changes to those articles of the Palestinian Covenant which call for Israel’s destruction, and to prevent acts of terrorism and hostilities against Israel; and

(10) the United States is resolute in its determination to ensure that in providing assistance to Palestinians living under the jurisdiction of the Palestinian Authority or elsewhere, the beneficiaries of such assistance shall be held to the same standard of financial accountability and management control as any other recipient of United States assistance.]

[SENSE OF CONGRESS]

[SEC. 603. It is the sense of the Congress that the P.L.O. must do far more to demonstrate an irrevocable denunciation of terrorism and ensure a peaceful settlement of the Middle East dispute, and in particular it must—

(1) submit to the Palestinian National Council for formal approval the necessary changes to those articles of the Palestinian National Covenant which call for Israel’s destruction;

(2) make greater efforts to pre-empt acts of terror, discipline violators and contribute to stemming the violence that has resulted in the deaths of over 140 Israeli and United States citizens since the signing of the Declaration of Principles;

(3) prohibit participation in its activities and in the Palestinian Authority and its successors by any groups or individuals which continue to promote and commit acts of terrorism;

(4) cease all anti-Israel rhetoric, which potentially undermines the peace process;

(5) confiscate all unlicensed weapons;

(6) transfer and cooperate in transfer proceedings relating to any person accused by Israel to acts of terrorism; and

(7) respect civil liberties, human rights and democratic norms.]
