Rural Development Progress Report

PA-1824

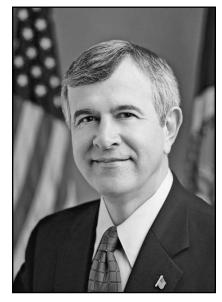

At USDA Rural Development, improving the quality of life and expanding economic opportunities in rural communities is measured in jobs created, families helped, infrastructure built, community facilities provided, and businesses grown. The mission is broad and—from increased homeownership to universal broadband access, from rural health care to business starts—it is at the heart of the Bush Administration's commitment to rural America.

Under President Bush's leadership, Rural Development has set new priorities including increased support for first responders, improved health care, universal access to broadband by 2007, and building an ownership society. Rural homeownership overall is at a record 76.1 percent, and USDA Rural Development is working to expand homeownership even more, particularly among historically underserved minority populations. We are making programs more accessible by moving them online, working with borrowers to reduce delinquency rates, and providing venture capital for a diversifying rural economy.

This is an exciting era of growth and transformation, but the unique values and traditions of rural America still endure. President Bush, the USDA Rural Development team, and I respect these fundamental values of industry, personal responsibility, and free enterprise, and we are working hard to support rural families, businesses, and communities as they build a vibrant future for all of rural America.

Mike Johanns Secretary of Agriculture

Citizens and community leaders throughout rural America share a common desire to bring economic opportunity and an improved quality of life to their community. There is a remarkable cohesiveness among rural citizens that allows the energy and enthusiasm of local citizens to harness the resources needed to bring solutions to economic and social issues facing their communities.

Today, more Americans than ever are realizing their dream of becoming a homeowner. USDA Rural Development is bringing stability to families and neighborhoods and increasing personal family wealth through building of financial equity in their future. I am proud to say that 20 percent of the first-time homeowners receiving financing this year are minority families.

We are committed to aggressively working to help families, communities and businesses build the basic community infrastructure, create more local jobs, and gain access to educational and health care services and technologies that allow them to be better prepared to compete in a global environment. USDA Rural Development is the sole government agency that can build rural communities from the ground up.

To date, the Bush Administration, through USDA Rural Development, has invested $50 billion to help create or save over 800,000 jobs. We have a team of dedicated professionals capable and ready to work with you to improve the quality of life in rural America. I encourage you to contact your local or State office to learn more about how USDA Rural Development can help improve the quality of life and increase the economic opportunity in your community.

Gilbert Gonzalez Acting Under Secretary USDA Rural Development

RURAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRESS REPORT 2004

USDA Rural Development leads the Federal effort to increase economic opportunity and improve the quality of life in rural America. The mission is broad and—with President Bush's initiatives for an ownership society, better access to critical health care, improved education, and universal broadband access—it is expanding.

2004 Highlights

For nearly 70 years, Rural Development and its predecessor agencies have spearheaded the delivery of rural electrical, telephone, and water services, expanded the rental housing stock in rural communities, helped millions of rural Americans become homeowners, and provided loans and technical assistance to thousands of small rural businesses and cooperatives. In 2004 alone, Rural Development:

- Leveraged over $14 billion in new investment in rural America at a cost to the taxpayers of just $2.4 billion to create or save an estimated 300,000 jobs.
- Delivered technical assistance, loans, or loan guarantees to over 11,500 small rural businesses—assistance which created or saved over 81,000 jobs.
- Extended new or improved electric service to 4,325,985 consumers; new or improved water or wastewater services to 965,780 users; new or improved telephone service (including broadband) to 217,602 subscriber connections. (There are usually multiple individuals at each connection).

- Extended distance learning and telemedicine opportunities to 618 schools, nearly 600,000 students, 228 health facilities, and over 2 million patients.
- Deployed broadband transmission services to critical community facilities in 16 extremely rural, lower income communities with an average population of 412, where no broadband service existed.
- Helped over 60,000 families buy or repair their homes.
- Managed a total portfolio of over $87 billion in investments in rural America, including approximately $41 billion in utilities loans, another $41 billion in housing loans, and $6.7 billion in business and cooperative loans.

Strategic Initiatives

The challenges—and opportunities—are great. Rural America covers 80 percent of the land area of the United States and is home to over 60 million people. It ranges from vibrant rural communities with diversified, growing economies to areas suffering from isolation, poor infrastructure, lack of jobs, and population decline. Each community is unique.

Fortunately, with over 40 programs ranging from housing and utilities to business development and job creation, Rural Development's reach is as broad as rural America itself. Because rural America is dynamic and rapidly changing, Rural Development is not standing still. Current initiatives to improve Rural Development's scope, effectiveness, and efficiency include:

• Leveraging and Partnerships. To maximize investment in rural America, Rural Development is increasingly emphasizing the use of loan guarantees. While grants and direct loans remain important tools, loan guarantees broaden participation among local partners, make programs more efficient and market oriented, and increase the return to the taxpayers.

- Distance Learning and Telemedicine. Since 2001, over $177 million in Distance Learning and Telemedicine loans, grants, and loan/grant combinations have been provided to link rural schools, libraries, and medical facilities to urban and university-based centers to provide virtual access to resources that would otherwise be thwarted by geographic distance. Participants have included 2,998 rural educational facilities and 1,118 rural health care institutions.
- Quality Healthcare. The absence of community medical centers in rural areas can mean long travel times and, in emergency situations and adverse weather, can have life-threatening consequences. In addition to the telemedicine initiative, Rural Development provides major direct support for rural hospitals and clinics. In 2004, Rural Development grants, loans, and loan guarantees to rural hospitals exceeded $161 million.
- First Responders. Rural Development assists rural communities in developing better emergency services such as fire stations and equipment, ambulances, paramedic and rescue units, and severe weather warning systems. These investments improve the safety of rural residents. They also support President Bush's homeland security strategy, which includes initiatives to strengthen first responder capabilities.
- Renewable Energy Systems. Increasing the domestic energy supply is a major priority of the Bush Administration. It is also an area of high growth potential for America's farmers and cooperatives. Over the last 4 years, Rural Development has invested over $190 million in renewable energy projects through traditional loan and guarantee programs, value-added ventures, and a new program, the Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Improvement Grants.

This Progress Report reviews Rural Development's 2004 achievements in three principal mission areas—housing, business, and utilities—and highlights selected new initiatives designed to meet the rapidly evolving challenges facing rural America in the 21st century.

Rural Housing and Community Facilities

- Improving Quality of Life
- Strengthening Communities
- Building Ownership and Opportunity

Since 1950, USDA Rural Development has worked to improve the availability, quality, and affordability of housing in rural communities. Rural Development also helps provide vital community facilities—schools and job training centers, hospitals and clinics, fire stations and emergency equipment, day care centers, libraries, and other important amenities—in underserved rural areas.

These investments directly enhance the quality of life of rural residents. They make rural communities more attractive for potential business investors. And they directly support the Bush Administration's strategy to create a more broadly based ownership society by enabling moderate- and low-income rural families—over 60,000 in 2004 alone, including 49,496 new homeowners—to purchase or perform vital repairs on their homes. Rural Development's housing programs also supported over 58,000 jobs in 2004.

Since 2000, Rural Development has provided more than 567,000 affordable housing units for low- and moderate-income rural Americans, through financing new homes and apartments or through financial aid to make needed repairs to existing properties. Rural Development also provided direct or guaranteed financing for almost 4,700 essential community facilities

Key Strategic Initiatives:

Minority Homeownership

President Bush and USDA Rural Development are committed to opening the door to homeownership to all Americans. This commitment includes a special effort to reach out to minority communities in which homeownership rates have historically lagged the national average. Rural Development is proud that over 20 percent of the homes it financed in 2004 were purchased by minority families.

To further encourage minority homeownership, Rural Development is actively working to increase the number of minority groups participating in the Mutual Self-Help Program, reach out to minority lenders, and promote credit counseling and homeownership education.

Serving the Taxpayers: Reducing Defaults

Rural Development's housing programs enable families of modest means to achieve the American dream of homeownership and the many benefits that accompany it: family stabilization, a more secure environment for children, building equity, and accumulating intergenerational assets. However, serving lower income homebuyers—many with past credit problems—unavoidably increases risk.

It's not enough just to put families into homes—the goal is to keep them there! Rural Development is stepping up homeowner education, intensive credit counseling, and early intervention to address problems before they spiral out of control. Since 1997, these initiatives have reduced the new loan delinquency rate by 54.4 percent and overall delinquencies by 21.2 percent.

Selected Programs: Overview

Single Family Housing

Single Family Direct Homeownership Loans (Section 502)

Provides subsidized, low-interest housing loans for very-low- and low-income rural Americans. At the current time, about half the loans are made to people whose incomes are below 50 percent of the median for their area.

Single Family Guaranteed Homeownership Loans (Section 502)

Provides loan guarantees for home purchases by families with low to moderate incomes. Borrowers are not required to make a down payment toward the home purchase. At the current time, over 30 percent of guarantees are provided to low-income families.

Mutual Self-Help Housing Program (Section 523)

Provides grants to local nonprofit groups, which supervise teams of lower income families who provide more than half the labor to build their own homes. This "sweat equity" significantly reduces the purchase price. Participating families typically finance their homes through a Section 502 Direct homeownership loan.

Housing Home Repair Loan and Grant Programs (Section 504)

Provides 1 percent loans to very-low-income homeowners to make essential repairs or rehabilitation to their homes. Grants of up to $7,500 for essential repairs are available to elderly homeowners who cannot afford even a 1 percent loan.

Multi-Family Housing

Farm Labor Housing Program (Sections 514/516)

Provides low-interest loans and grants to public or nonprofit agencies or to individual farmers to build affordable rental housing for farm workers.

Rural Rental Housing Program: Direct Loans (Section 515)

Provides low-interest direct loans to developers of affordable rural rental housing for low-income residents. Currently, almost 90 percent of Section 515 tenants have incomes below 50 percent of the median in their area, with an average income of less than $9,000. According to a recently completed analysis of the portfolio, the Comprehensive Property Assessment (CPA), approximately 57 percent are elderly.

Rural Rental Housing Program: Guaranteed Loans (Section 538)

Provides loan guarantees for the development of affordable rental housing in rural areas for low- to moderate-income residents. This program serves tenants with incomes below 115 percent of the median for their area.

Housing Preservation Grant Program (Section 533)

Provides grants to nonprofit organizations, public entities, and Native American tribes to renovate homes and rental properties occupied by low- and very-low-income families. The program leverages Federal funds by seeking partnerships with outside funders.

Rental Assistance Program (Section 521)

Provides rental assistance to some low-income tenants of Section 515 and Section 514/516 housing so that out-of-pocket rent and utilities do not exceed 30 percent of income. Rental assistance is often critical in preserving the viability of very-low-income housing complexes.

Community Facilities

Community Facilities Direct and Guaranteed Loans Assists rural communities in financing critical community facilities including schools, hospitals and clinics, day care centers, libraries, fire stations and equipment, and much more. Borrowers include municipalities, counties, special-purpose districts, nonprofit corporations, and Native American tribes. Applicants must demonstrate financial soundness, ability to repay, and ability to effectively manage the new facility.

Community Facilities Grants

Grants are typically awarded to smaller, lower income communities—often with high structural unemployment—to help finance essential community facilities. Grants are usually packaged as part of a larger financial package and are key tools in leveraging additional contributions from outside funders.

Technical Assistance

Rural Development routinely provides extensive technical assistance to applicants through all stages of project development. This is a vital service to many smaller rural communities that may lack technical and financial expertise.

Success Stories

USDA Guaranteed Loans Make Homeownership a Reality

Jamie and Yessica Cuevas wanted their own home – a place for their small child to grow up in. They applied for a USDA Rural Development guaranteed loan through the Madison County Bank in Norfolk, Neb. Their loan officer guided them through the process and encouraged them to take a homebuyer education course sponsored by the Elkhorn Valley Community Development Corporation, which they successfully completed.

Madison County Bank gave the Cuevases an $84,000 loan guaranteed by Rural Development. Major Mortgage of Columbus assisted the bank in processing the Cuevases' loan application. The Nebraska Investment Finance Authority's Homebuyer Assistance Program financed the closing costs.

Mr. Cuevas' steady employment history and the couple's ability to manage their spending habits responsibly made it possible for them to finance 100 percent of the purchase price of their new home. Guaranteeing a loan allows Rural Development to leverage its resources and provide homeownership opportunities to more people. The creditworthiness of borrowers in this program is on par with industry standards.

The Cuevases were very excited when their realtor replaced the "For Sale" sign that stood in the front yard of their new home with a "Sold" sign.

Mother and Daughter Get Accessible New Home

Making homes accessible to people with limited mobility is one of many services Rural Development provides to improve the lives of rural Americans.

Margaret Rider and her daughter Tenille, who has used a wheelchair for the past 2 years, were living in an apartment financed by USDA Rural Development in Elko, Nev., and wanted to buy their own home.

Since they needed assistance with the down payment and with accessibility upgrades, the Riders contacted Rural Development's local office in Elko for help with the loan processing. The Elko staff contacted the Rural Nevada Development Corporation (RNDC), a nonprofit group that focuses on community development and housing rehabilitation.

Rural Development provided the Riders with a direct homeownership loan. RNDC furnished the down payment assistance and made the handicapped-accessible upgrades for the 1,680-square-foot manufactured home. The Riders moved into their new home just in time for Christmas 2003.

"This is my Christmas," Margaret Rider said. "Could you think of a better present? I love it." Tenille Rider said she is excited about being able to move about the house easily.

A Lasting Love and a New Home

The year 2004 was one of the best years of many for Everett Gray, 89, and his wife, Arline, 80. The Grays were preparing to move into a home in Havana, Ark., which they had helped build through Rural Development's Mutual Self-Help program.

After living in the same house for 55 years, the Grays decided they needed to make their home more comfortable. They still lived without air-conditioning and had only one propane heater. They made an appointment with Beverly Massey of the Universal Housing

Development Corporation (UHDC) to discuss their options for help with the improvements. It was determined after the home inspection, however, that the Gray's home was so deteriorated that, even with major improvements, it could not be considered safe.

Rural Development staff suggested the Grays consider building a new home through the Mutual Self-Help program. Mr. and Mrs. Gray decided that was their best option.

The Grays' new home, which is near their old one, has 2 bedrooms,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  baths, 1,008 square feet of living area, and special features designed for persons with limited mobility.

Although the Grays said their old home was barely livable, it was difficult to leave it. It was still "home," a teary-eyed Mrs. Gray said. She again becomes cheerful and animated when talking about the new home, calling it "my own little playhouse."

Historic Town Recovers From Devastating Hurricane

It has been 5 years since Hurricane Floyd destroyed the majority of the homes in the small town of Princeville in Edgecombe County, N.C. Recognized as the first town in America chartered by freed slaves, Princeville needed to restore its population and spur economic growth.

Through its Single Family Housing loan programs, Rural Development has made homeownership a reality for many Princeville citizens, old and new. One of Rural Development's partnerships was with the North Carolina Development Initiative, which was formed to bring affordable houses into town and help first-time homeowners.

When Martin County native Loetta Joyner was riding through Princeville one day and saw one of the houses built through the Initiative, she decided she wanted to make a new home in this historically significant town and be a part of its growth. She called the number posted on the house and attended the required homeownership classes in order to qualify. Several months later, she bought the house with financing from Rural Development and became a Princeville resident.

Thanks in part to Rural Development, Princeville's population has rebounded to more than 2,000, almost the same number as before the flood, and up from a mere 921 in 2000.

By partnering with other organizations, Rural Development has stretched its funds to bring affordable housing to former Princeville citizens, as well as new ones like Loetta Joyner.

USDA Helps Rural Americans Get Homes– And Keep Them!

Nine years ago, Maricella Gonzalez and her husband received a mortgage from Rural Development for a home in Madras, Ore.

"It was an American dream," Mrs. Gonzalez said of getting the home. "We got a house and I thank God and the guys in the program I am in my house." The family had three children at home at the time.

Mrs. Gonzalez, a cook at a residential drug treatment center, is even more thankful today for her three-bedroom house. On June 9, she went into the hospital for routine surgery on her leg, but ended up needing numerous additional surgeries. Mrs. Gonzalez couldn't work and thought she would lose her house. She was now divorced and had two of her children still living at home.

As a single parent, she had difficulty making her mortgage payment because health problems kept her out of work. Rural Development allowed Mrs. Gonzalez to postpone payments. "They helped me so much," she explains. "I believe I am not going to make payments for the rest of the year, which would allow me to get my feet on the ground and pay my doctor bills. I am very thankful."

Loan, Tax Credits Help Preserve Multi-Family Housing Complex

Red Bluff Meadows Apartments – in a rural town of 13,000 in northern California – was an aging, 52-unit Section 515 rental housing complex headed for trouble. Built with USDA financing in 1979, the property was rapidly showing signs of age and was in need of repair. Roofs were leaking, siding was worn, and systems were failing. The site managers were confronted with a daily struggle to provide the tenants a good quality of life.

Today, after using Rural Development's innovative Revitalization Transfer process, Red Bluff Meadows has been sold to motivated new owners at a price below its market value. The new owners – Kimball Square Associates, LP – have recommitted the property to at least another 30 years as affordable rental housing.

The transfer was accomplished along with more than $2.1 million of rehabilitation and upgrade work on the property. The improvements were financed by a new $776,000 Section 515 repair loan, more than $1.3 million of Low-Income Housing Tax Credits, and a commercial loan. In consideration, Rural Development authorized an increased level of return for the new owners. Thanks to the cooperative financial partnership with Rural Development, Red Bluff Meadows is soundly re-positioned to continue providing affordable rental housing to rural families.

Pulaski County, Indiana, Gets First Farm Labor Housing Loan

Fred Gutwein and Sons, Inc., located in Pulaski County, Ind., has more than 60 years of seed-growing experience and is today one of North America's leading independent producers of hybrid seed corn, special market hybrids, soybeans, and alfalfa. The company needed to upgrade its farmworker housing, most of which was old, modified portable school classrooms. The carpet was worn, the walls had holes, there was no air conditioning, and there was very little heat.

USDA Rural Development provided a $250,000 low-interest Farm Labor Housing loan to Fred Gutwein and Sons, Inc., to support the construction of farm labor housing for the workers. This is the first time Rural Development has provided funding for farm labor housing in Indiana.

Most of the workers Gutwein housed came from the orange groves in Florida during slow times for that harvest. The company relies on these workers to make its business successful. The new Gollier City Migrant Housing Facility consists of eight properties providing housing for 48 workers. The workers' reaction to the improvements has been one of amazement and appreciation.

Alcohol and Drug Rehabilitation Center Expands

The Walker Center for Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, Inc., is dedicated to the prevention and treatment of alcohol and drug addiction. Walker began with a 22-bed facility in 1976 and has now evolved into a new, state-of-the-art center for 48 patients, including adolescents. This expansion was accomplished with a $2.5 million Community Facilities Direct loan, a $1 million Community Facilities Guaranteed loan, and a $2 million equity contribution.

The center is located in the 3,384-person farming community of Gooding, Idaho. It employs 58 people at the main location and an additional 18 at its outpatient care sites in 6 other rural communities.

Rural Business and Cooperative Programs

- Creating Jobs
- Strengthening Communities
- · Diversifying the Rural Economy

Today, rural America is not just farming, ranching, mining, and forestry—it's also manufacturing, professional services, retail outlets, recreational facilities, retirement communities, and much more. Even in "farm country" counties, a majority of jobs and income are derived from non-farm sources. In most farm families, at least one family member has full-time employment off the farm. The great majority of the over 60 million rural Americans do not farm at all. The vitality of the rural business sector is essential to a healthy and prosperous rural America.

Rural Development's business programs directly expand economic opportunity and enhance the quality of life in rural America. They help rural communities attract investment, build and sustain competitive businesses, and present more attractive options to young people. They contribute to President Bush's agenda for an ownership society through their emphasis on entrepreneurial initiative, small enterprises, and local control.

In 2004, Rural Development's business programs leveraged $1.1 billion in new investment in rural America, supported over 11,500 small rural businesses, and created or saved over 81,000 jobs. This was achieved through a flexible mix of loans, loan guarantees, grants, and technical assistance. In total, Rural Development manages an outstanding business program portfolio over $6.7 billion.

Business Programs: Portfolio Growth

Key Strategic Initiatives:

Value Added Production

The Value-Added Producer Grant program encourages agricultural commodity producers to further refine or enhance their products, thereby increasing their value to end users and increasing the returns to producers. Grants may be used for planning purposes such as conducting feasibility analysis or developing business plans, or for working capital accounts to pay salaries, utilities, and other operating costs.

Farmers and ranchers, cooperatives, agricultural producer groups or organizations, and majority-controlled producer-based business ventures are eligible to apply. Eligible value-added ventures include processing, identity-preserved marketing systems, marketing of organic products, and the production of farm-based renewable energy. Grant funds cannot be used for planning, repairing, rehabilitating, acquiring, or constructing a building or facility (including a processing facility) or to purchase, rent, or install fixed equipment.

Renewable Energy and Energy-Efficiency Improvement Grant Program

Created by the 2002 farm bill, this new initiative assists farmers, ranchers, and rural small businesses in purchasing renewable energy systems and making energy efficiency improvements. Eligible technologies include wind, solar, biomass, geothermal, or hydrogen derived from biomass or water using one of these alternative energy sources. This program is part of President Bush's national energy strategy, which includes increased use of renewable energy and energy efficiency technologies as high priorities. To date, nearly $45 million in grant assistance has been provided.

Growing a Family Business—Ohio

Gerber Poultry, a 52-year-old, family-owned poultry processing operation in Kidron, Ohio, needed to grow. Operating at capacity, the company was unable to accommodate customers asking for increased supply. A 24-year, $10 million Business and Industry Guaranteed Loan solved the problem.

The loan allowed Gerber to expand its 80,000 square-foot plant in Kidron with an additional 6,000 square feet for new production and processing space, 14,000 square feet for a larger refrigerated storage area, new shipping docks, and improvements to the waste water treatment system. Gerber will also add 7,000 square feet to its chick hatchery in Orrville. The plant and hatchery already employed 293 people and the additional capacity allowed Gerber to create another 23 jobs.

The company hopes the increase in production at the hatchery and processing plant will help increase its total production by 40 percent within 2 years, with projected sales of over $50 million annually. In addition, 82 farmers in Wayne, Holmes, and Tuscarawas Counties raising over 10 millions chickens a year will benefit from the expansion.

Effective Support for Regional Growth—Wisconsin

An expected 15-20 businesses in Northwest Wisconsin will benefit from two Rural Business Enterprise Grants to the Wisconsin Business Innovation Corporation. These funds, in the amounts of $65,000 and $62,875, are supporting two initiatives:

- (1) Technical assistance to a growing cluster of medical device companies in Northwest Wisconsin, and
- (2) Natural Capitalism-Science Based Agriculture, Engineered Wood Products, and Renewable Energy. This program focuses on technologies that achieve greater yields from natural resources, replace nonrenewable with renewable resources, or use recycled material as feedstock.

Through September 2004, the program's first quarter, the Wisconsin Business Innovation Corporation has assisted four medical device companies and three natural-resources-based companies with technical assistance for business planning, market development, preparation of financial applications, and plan operations.

Sewing a New Future—Utah

Bringing new hope and a brighter future to an economically distressed area, a closed sewing plant has been reopened as a Navajo women's worker cooperative. The Montezuma Creek, Utah, facility, now known as Navasew, had been idled for over 2 years. With assistance from Rural Development, the plant is back in business, currently employs 14 people, and has strong potential to grow to 60-70 employees in the next several months. In a community of approximately 500 people, the impact is enormous.

The turnaround began with the Rocky Mountain Farmers Union Educational & Charitable Foundation, which obtained a $46,545 Rural Business Opportunity Grant to develop a business plan and fund startup activities. As the project matured, the Foundation received a subsequent $95,000 Rural Business Enterprise Grant to fund equipment purchases, technical assistance, and contract acquisition activities. The Foundation leases the plant and equipment to Navasew.

Committed to the future of rural communities

Navasew itself is organized as an LLC with majority ownership being held by the workers. Minority shares are held by the Navajo Nation and Omega Apparel, an experienced Smithville, Tenn., apparel manufacturer that is providing project mentoring, production training, and subcontract work.

Wool Growers Staff the Meat Counter— Utah

The Utah Wool Growers Association (UWGA) has marketed an exciting new product—King's Peak Lamb Medallions—with the assistance of a $420,000 Value-Added Producer Grant from USDA Rural Development. The grant was made in 2002 and the product first appeared on supermarket shelves in the spring of 2004. It has been an immediate success, having sold more than 18,000 packages in 3 months.

UWGA partnered with the meat research lab at Utah State University to develop the 4-ounce, boneless lamb medallion. The medallions are small meat pieces that have been sectioned, shaped, and formed through the use of naturally occurring enzymes and proteins, much like in the production of ham. The medallion is then injected with moisture by an air injector to enhance its flavor.

UWGA combined its Rural Development grant with assistance from KSL, the NBC television affiliate in Salt

Lake City, and Agri Solutions to promote its product through radio and television advertisements in the Salt Lake City area. The advertising has emphasized the local character of the product: the lamb used for the medallions was born and raised in Utah, and the manufacturing is also done in-state. More than 18,000 packages of King's Peak Lamb Medallions flew off supermarket shelves in just 3 months.

A Sweet Business in Michigan

A Michigan farmers' cooperative is now employing over 1,350 people and producing record amounts of sugar thanks to a $500,000 Value Added Producer Grant from USDA Rural Development.

The Michigan Sugar Beet Growers, Inc. (MSBG) was approached by the financially distressed Imperial Sugar Company about purchasing a subsidiary, the Michigan Sugar Company. The growers formed the cooperative in 2000 to explore the feasibility of running Michigan Sugar. They then obtained a $50,000 grant from the Huron County Economic Development Corporation to assist with attorney costs, as well as a $210,000 Rural Business Enterprise Grant from USDA Rural Development to conduct a feasibility study. Meanwhile, however, Imperial Sugar filed for bankruptcy.

MSBG was able to negotiate a purchase agreement with Imperial for Michigan Sugar. The sale was completed in February 2002 with the assistance of the Rural Development grant. In the first year under MSBG's ownership, Michigan Sugar produced a record amount of sugar, over 630 million pounds. The company also provides 350 full-time and over 1,000 part-time jobs and contributes $180 million to the Michigan economy.

From Farming to Pizza Crusts— Oklahoma

Around Alva, Okla.., hard red winter wheat is the make-or-break crop, and local producers were looking for new markets. With the help of USDA Rural Development, they are now marketing a wide variety of dough and bread products made from locally grown wheat.

Value Added Partners, Inc. (VAP) was formed by a group of wheat producers looking for new business opportunities. In 1999, VAP began an equity drive to purchase a site for a frozen dough processing plant. Producer response was strong, and VAP was able to obtain a $7.5 million Business and Industry Guaranteed Loan from Rural Development for the purchase of a site in Alva, Okla.. This was followed in 2001 by a $500,000 Value Added Producer Grant to help market the product.

The processing plant now produces several types of dough and bread products, including pizza crust, its mainstay, and a frozen microwavable cinnamon roll, its newest addition.

The operation has 80 full-time employees, and VAP has recently launched its own trucking company to handle shipping.

Rural Utilities

- Equal Access to Essential Services
- A Cleaner Environment
- Infrastructure for Growth

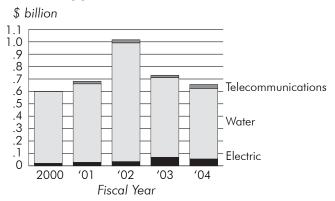

USDA Rural Development's utility programs constitute one of the most successful public initiatives in history and continue to be a model of effective public-private partnership. Through the provision of rural electrical, telephone, and water systems, they played a decisive role in bringing rural America into the modern age.

These services are as vital now as in the 1930s—indeed, they are even more important today, in terms of modern expectations and evolving lifestyles. In addition, the advent of modern telecommunications and broadband service has added an exciting and urgent new dimension to the definition of critical infrastructure.

· Committed to the future of rural communities

"All Americans should have affordable access to broadband technology by the year 2007."

—President George W. Bush, April 2004

Rural Development administers a growing utility portfolio, currently valued at over $41 billion, in loans and loan guarantees for water, telecommunications, and electrical infrastructure projects. This investment affords all Americans unprecedented freedom of choice in where to live, work, and raise a family. It gives rural Americans a vastly higher quality of life. It supports critical business development and opens the door to greater economic opportunity to over 60 million people living in rural America. And it directly creates or saves jobs in rural America, over 155,000 in 2004 alone.

In addition to direct loans and loan guarantees, Rural Development's utility programs are able to provide modest levels of grant assistance. Long a staple of the Water and Environmental Programs, grant assistance has recently been made available in the Telecommunications and Electric Programs as well. This allows service to reach customers who might not otherwise be able to afford these services. Grant dollars are typically combined with loan assistance as a leveraging technique and are a key tool in improving the quality of life for thousands of rural Americans.

Key Strategic Initiatives:

Broadband

Rural Development has as one of its highest objectives equal opportunity for rural areas: equal opportunity to participate in the nation's economic growth; to compete effectively in the global marketplace; and to enjoy services fundamental to a modern quality of life. Access to a seamless, nationwide telecommunications network is essential, yet the availability of broadband service in rural areas continues to lag significantly behind comparable infrastructure investments in urban areas.

The explosive growth of broadband creates a major new program objective for Rural Development. In less than a decade, broadband has moved from highly specialized applications to mass market acceptance.

As broadband becomes the Internet standard, it is rapidly becoming an essential business tool. Universal access to broadband is a key objective of the Bush Administration, and Rural Development has placed a high priority on full implementation of its new broadband initiative. Since 2001, Rural Development has utilized a variety of loan and loan guarantee programs to provide over $3 billion in funding and assist over 1.3 million rural subscribers in accessing new broadband technologies.

High Energy Cost Grant Program

Created by Congress in 2000, this program focuses on pockets of exceptionally high home energy costs (over 275 percent of the national average). In the past 4 years, over $26 million has been awarded to improve energy generation, transmission, and distribution facilities for exceptionally high-cost areas in 9 States.

Selected Programs: Overview

Water and Environmental Program (WEP)

WEP provides loans and grants to rural communities and municipalities of 10,000 or less population for the development, replacement, or upgrading of water and waste disposal facilities. Applicants must be unable to obtain sufficient credit from commercial sources at reasonable rates and terms.

Since the program's inception in 1937, water and waste disposal borrowers have received $29 billion in direct loans, loan guarantees, and grants. With its current loan portfolio of $8.2 billion, WEP continues to play a major role in the development of rural areas. In FY 2004, WEP provided new or improved access to safe drinking water or sanitary wastewater disposal for 965,780 customers.

Telecommunications

The Telecommunications Program has three major components: loans for initial construction, improvement, or expansion of telecommunications infrastructure; loans and grants for distance learning and telemedicine initiatives; and loans and grants for the deployment of broadband service. These programs make essential contributions to the economic vitality of rural areas. They also enhance the educational and health care services available in rural communities across America:

Electric

The Electric Program is the largest of Rural Development's infrastructure programs, representing $28.5 billion of the $41.1 billion in the current utility loan portfolio. The mission today, as in 1936 when the Rural Electrification Act was signed into law, is serving low-density areas: Rural Development's electric borrowers sell 5-7 percent of the kilowatt-hours sold in the country but span 60 percent or more of the nation's land mass.

Success Stories

Nevada City, California

Nevada City is located on the western slope of the Sierra Nevada mountain range not far from where the first gold was discovered in California.

The city has a population of 3,000 and an annual household income of $25,000. Its wastewater treatment plant is under a cease and desist order from the California Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Working with the Rural Development State Engineer, the city's consultant was able to design a plant upgrade that would meet State requirements, work within available funding limitations, and keep the project affordable.

Rural Development approved a loan of $2.188 million and a grant of $1 million. On Earth Day 2004 Rural Development staff presented a ceremonial check to Nevada City. The city is now completing the design of the facility, with construction expected to begin in the spring.

North Dakota

SRT Communications, Inc. is a long time Rural Development borrower. SRT helped to set up the connections whereby the North Dakota Center for Persons with Disabilities in the city of Minot (population 35,000) provides telehealth and education training services to disabled persons living in some of the state's most rural areas using the cooperatives' advanced communications infrastructure.

In the first year that the Flatlands Disability Network was developed, nearly 900 hours of speech/language therapy were provided to 28 students living in some of North Dakota's most rural communities without subjecting them to the usual North Dakota "windshield" time.

The state's information technology network relies on the Dakota Carrier Network's (DCN) fiber optic backbone. DCN is a company formed by 15 independent telephone companies in North Dakota, most of which are Rural Development borrowers. Dakota Carrier Network was the recipient of a $5 million combination loan/grant award in 2002.

Springerville and St. Johns, Arizona

Navopache Electric Cooperative (NEC) is headquartered in Lakeside, Arizona and recently completed construction of two more photo voltaic arrays. Both of these new renewable energy sources are connected to "the grid" such that the power is integrated into NEC's power lines that serve all the members with electricity.

NEC currently is developing a tariff for renewable energy that will enable members who choose to support development of renewable energy to purchase "green power" as part of the monthly electric bill.

Financing by Rural Development's Electric Program helps this cooperative meet the requirements set by the Arizona Corporation Commission for deploying renewable energy resources on its power system.
