Please consider that European doctors are educated in the use of vitamins and herbology. Therefore their doctors can and will perscribe them. However, US. educated physicians receive VERY LITTLE information on the therapeutic use of vitamins and herbs. To put those of us who are educated in their use at the mercy of those who know next to nothing is absurd!!

Please check the recent edition of JAMA to see that physicians are the number 3 cause of death in the U. S. When death from natural supplements reaches 10th place then maybe we should consider this proposal.

What possible benefit is there for the American people to have our laws standardized with European laws?
