

622

Crane, Nancy T

From: The Connells [connell@cox-internet.com]
Sent: Monday, August 26, 2002 5:42 PM
To: Crane, Nancy T
Subject: Codex, etc.

02-022N 02-022N-622 Christina Connell

Regarding the regulation of supplements by the government, the more regulation that exists, the more loopholes people will try to find. It should say something that most persons being treated for cancer have looked to alternatives, meaning treatments not deemed worthy by federal agencies and large interest groups. It does not mean these people are fools looking for just anything they can get their hands on—they want real options that are not financed by huge drug companies. Do you have a loved one being treated for cancer? I think you will find that the cure rate has not changed much, and people are looking for much less toxic forms of treatment, and they often find things that extend their lives in the process.

Yours,

A 2-year survivor of advanced breast cancer and going strong,
Christina Connell
connell@cox-internet.com