General Comment:I don't think we need more chemicals in our diets today. I firmly believe that this is why we have so much cancer in this country today. I don't feel comfortable buying any of these animal products that you are saying are safe to eat. There was not enough testing done on Melamine to claim it is safe for human consumption. If it can kill dogs and cats, what can it do to children/adults? You feed these animals to your family and let me know how it affects them years down the road--because I'm sure not going to feed these animals to my family.
