

RECLAMATION

Managing Water in the West

I am pleased to present the Great Plains Region Overview for 2007. As you will discover in these pages, our region is large and diverse. We extend from the Canadian border along the northern edge of Montana and North Dakota to the southern tip of Texas.

The projects and programs we manage provide water for irrigation; municipal, rural and industrial systems; recreation, fish and wildlife; flood control; and hydroelectric power. Millions of Americans, including members of 66 Native American tribes, benefit from the water.

In this document we provide a broad overview of who we are, the facilities we manage, and the benefits they provide. More detail about the Great Plains Region is available on our website at <http://www.usbr.gov/gp>

Thank you for your interest.
