

Profile: Kevyn Juneau

Kevyn J. Juneau is a graduate research assistant with IPM Florida and is pursuing a master's degree in entomology. His research focuses on implementing IPM in college housing. Kevyn is from a town in northeastern New York nestled between the Adirondack Mountains and Lake Champlain where he also earned his B.S. in biological sciences. Before attending graduate school at the University of Florida, Kevyn worked as a lab technician for Wyeth Research. Kevyn is a self-proclaimed outdoorsman whose hobbies include hiking, birding, and cycling.

Kevyn taking a break during a ride through the Adirondacks.

Kevyn helping the UF Agronomy Dept. on a project in north central Florida.