

AVAILABILITY CHARGE

The following tables contain the documents analyses used to determine the Availability Charge. These includes 2 Nonfirm Revenue Analysis Program (NFRAP) printouts, a summary sheet, and some historical data from the Real-time Operations and Dispatch System (RODS) regarding scheduling utility purchases of economy energy from other utilities. The RODS data is presented to document increasing the percentage of non-Federal resources available for use to displace Federal power purchases. This data shows that not only do generating public utilities use their own resources to displace purchases, but that they also purchase from investor-owned-utilities and even extra-regional utilities. The amount of potential displacement is still limited to the amount of generating public utility loads.
